Twelve Greatest Women
Women Lack Choice
Pictures of a Prince
Women on Farms

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Ladies of the League of Women Voters want a list of the twelve greatest women in America, but say they cannot make the list—and they can't indeed. No one today could name even one of them.

Three hundred and fifty-seven years before Christ, the bad-tempered, wild, murderous daughter of King Neoptolemus was making miserable the life of Philip, her new husband. She danced, naked, with snakes wrapped round her—nevertheless, she was the greatest woman of that period, for she bore Alexander the Great.

Who, in 1808, seeing a tall, gaunt young woman, going in and out of a windowless hut in Hardin County, Kentucky, looking about for bears and Indians, keeping house on a dirt floor, would have chosen her for what she was, the world's greatest woman of that time. In that hut, one year later, she bore Abraham Lincoln.

Ye shall know them by their fruits. That applies to women as to fruit trees. A man is judged by the work he does, a woman by the children she creates. The curious thing is that women are not satisfied with that judgment. They admit that Phidias was greater than his greatest statue, but do not realize that Phidias' mother was greater than he. The creator is greater than the thing created.

There is one unjust feature about woman's work. Man selects his material for work. Woman depends, for results, partly on the sort of man she marries and is not always allowed to choose. That is a handicap that should be adjusted in some way. It will be adjusted in the end by women making the average man good enough. Once woman had to pick and choose among cannibals. Now, usually, the worst choice she makes is a nonentity.

Women that deny fundamental differences between men and women should consider the Vassar baseball game, with college girls playing against their fathers. The fathers won. Could anybody imagine the mothers of college boys beating their sons at baseball? The idea is ridiculous. The power of woman goes first into creating the human race and then civilizing it. That ought to be a job big enough to satisfy even ambitious woman.

Fliers risked their lives taking to London the earliest photographs of the Prince of Wales in Egypt. How foolish, we say, to risk life for pictures of a youth that never did anything, except come into the world in fortunate fashion.

Then we recollect that our fliers risked their lives carrying first photographs of the Dempsey prize fight, and our democratic scorn calms down. Adoration of a reigning nonentity is at least more respectable than adoration of a prize fighter.

Flammarion, French astronomer, aged eighty, says he can prove that the soul exists, that man has two bodies, spiritual and physical. But the unusual human being says, "Thank you, I need no proof." We feel about the soul as Samuel Johnson felt when freedom of the will was discussed: "Sir, we know that the will is free, and that's an end of it."

Human beings know, from within, that the soul exists, and that's an end of that. Let anybody in doubt read Wordsworth's poem on immortality. He will know that the spirit within cometh from afar.

Once statistics told you that of inmates in our insane asylums the largest class was made up of farmers' wives. On lonely farms, alone all day, nothing interesting in sight, monotonous fields stretching in all directions, no companionship. Cooking, washing, mending for many, women found relief in insanity.

Some would have said, "It is the primal curse on women." Others would have said it was the "fault of capital," that a revolution was needed. But farm life has changed, farmers' wives no longer go insane as they did, and science, not revolution, has made the change.

Telephones, washing machines, kerosene cookers, talking and singing machines, radio—and above all, automobiles, have changed life completely. Many problems that seem unsolvable will be solved, each in turn, by human intelligence.

The most important change will come when INDUSTRY IS MADE ATTRACTIVE, when every worker will like his work, and when there will be more than enough for all. In that day, which is coming, men will work, as they now play golf, from choice.

Secretary Weeks thinks that primaries, enabling voters to choose and nominate their own officials, are highly dangerous. So they are, for political machines—ask Pennsylvania, or Indiana. But the primaries suit

ACTION IS BASED ON STEARNS CASE

Former District Attorney Held Guilty of Conspiracy Against Army Officer

Nathan A. Tufts, former district attorney for Middlesex County, was disbarred today by order of Judge Crosby of the Supreme Court.

The former district attorney was charged with extortion or aiding in the extortion of large sums of money by threats of criminal prosecution.

Mr. Tufts also was accused of having been guilty of perjury at his trial before the full Supreme Court bench, at the time of the ouster proceedings last year.

It was agreed by counsel for both sides that the matter of Tufts' disbarment go to the court on the charges made by Attorney-General Allen in the Stearns divorce case. The court was furnished with a stenographic record of the evidence introduced in this case at the trial of Mr. Tufts, which resulted in his ousting by the full Supreme Court.

STEARNS' CASE EVIDENCE.

Mrs. Anna E. Brown testified that she accompanied Mrs. Helen W. Stearns, wife of Captain Charles B. Stearns of Waltham, to Mr. Tufts' office, where Mrs. Stearns consulted him about a divorce. Mrs. Stearns showed District Attorney Tufts letters and other exhibits including the photograph of a young woman and a pair of white kid gloves.

Mrs. Brown said Mr. Tufts told Mrs. Stearns that there was not sufficient evidence to warrant a separation, but that he would put the case in the hands of friends who could arrange to get evidence.

The evidence further showed that while Captain Stearns was stationed in Virginia a fashionable young woman from Boston made his acquaintance, that they became fast friends, that she kept in touch with Stearns by letter and that the pair were caught in a Cambridge apartment in a raid during Commencement at Harvard of which Stearns was a graduate.

On this Justice Crosby ruled:

"The argument to procure evidence against Stearns by which his wife could obtain a divorce, and

AMERICAN IS SLAIN BY MEXICAN BANDITS

Washington, June 19.—(By International News Service)—Warren D. Harvey, an American citizen, was murdered by bandits on Saturday, five miles out of Tampico, Mexico, the American consul at Tampico today notified the State Department. Harvey was a paymaster for an American oil company.

The usual representations have been made to the government at Mexico City and the authorities have promised an investigation.

Washington, June 19.—The American embassy in Mexico City and the consulate at Tampico were instructed today to request Mexican officials to make every effort to apprehend the murderers of Warren D. Harvey, an American citizen, killed June 17, near Tampico.

JESSE MURPHY INDICTED FOR MURDER

Jesse Murphy, who is serving a long term in Eastern Penetentiary in Philadelphia, was today indicted by Suffolk Grand Jury charged with murder of the two managers of Atlantic & Pacific tea stores for which George and Charles Rollins, brothers, have been found guilty. The indictment was returned before Judge Keating in Superior Criminal Court. Murphy confessed to the murders. If convicted the Rollins brothers will be pardoned.

2 KILLED WHEN TAXI HITS TREE AND UPSETS

Troy, N. Y., June 19.—Charles McLoughlin of Bennington, Vt., and Charles J. Hupe, a taxi driver of this city, were killed today on the State road in Raymertown, when an automobile in which they were riding collided with a tree and overturned.

FOUR KILLED ON 'SAFE' RAILROAD CROSSING

The Peabody Death Crossing, where four Roxbury men went to their deaths and two were seriously injured Sunday, was not considered dangerous, according to S. Howard Donnell, district attorney of Essex county.

The crossing is at Russell street, West Peabody, on the Boston & Maine Railroad.

Six Roxbury young men in an automobile expected to slide across it. Instead, they crashed into an express freight train. Four were killed outright, two seriously injured and the machine dragged several hundred feet and reduced to so much twisted junk. The young men were on their way from Nahant to attend church in [illegible]well.

GLANDS COST McCORMICK $50,000

Chicago, June 19.—Wesley Memorial Hospital today is an armed camp.

Private detectives guard the grounds, the doors and the windows. Four sleuths have stations on the fifth floor with general and special orders to keep everyone away from the room where Harold F. McCormick, chairman of the board of directors of the International Harvester Co., is recovering from a gland transplantation to recover lost youth.

The operation is said to have cost McCormick $50,000.

Inside the hospital there is one word that is never mentioned. That word is "McCormick." And pending the outcome of a rigid investigation by hospital authorities of the "leak" by which the American was able to

LAWYER IN DRUG CASE HELD

Harrington and Mrs. Shea to Be Tried June 23 as Result of Raid

Francis F. Harrington, a Boston attorney, and a young woman who claimed to be his wife, but who gave the name of Mrs. Anna Shea, were arraigned in Roxbury court today charged with having been present where narcotic drugs were found.

Judge Hayden continued the case until June 23, to give time for further investigation and held the prisoners in $2,000 bail each.

Attorney Harrington and Mrs. Shea were arrested in Harrington's apartment, No. 68 Bartlett street, Roxbury, Saturday, by inspectors attached to the narcotic squad.

According to Officer Robert Caverley, who obtained admission to the apartment in the guise of a janitor, both Attorney Harrington and the woman resisted arrest and attacked him.

Mrs. Shea is wanted by the police of Lynn to answer to a number of default warrants charging her with violation of the narcotic drug act.

The raid resulted, according to the police, in the seizure of a quantity of narcotic drugs concealed in a woman's stocking and hidden on the roof of the building. The drugs were valued at several thousand dollars.

TWO LIQUOR RAIDS AT SALISBURY BEACH

Salisbury Beach, June 19.—Two liquor raids were made by local police officers. The Foley and Bradley restaurant was the first place visited, and James E. Bradley of Haverhill was arrested after a quantity of liquor was discovered there. At the second place, a cottage near the shore, John Cocco was seized, while a gallon of moonshine was confiscated.

14 BELIEVED LOST WITH BRITISH VESSEL

London, June 19.—(By the Associated Press)—The Admiralty announces that the drifter Blue Sky, which left Portsmouth June 12 for Invergordon, Scotland, is presumed to be lost with all hands. Wreckage of the Blue Sky has been washed ashore. The vessel carried a lieutenant, two midshipmen and eleven men.

GO HONEYMOONING ON "BICYCLE BUILT FOR TWO"

Framingham, June 19.— John Emil Laine and his bride are on a bicycle honeymoon trip to Maine. They plan to pedal 284 miles, camping every night en route to Wiscasset. The bride has been employed in the Dennison Manufacturing Co. The groom is a musician in the 13th Regiment Band at Camp Devens.

Roar of Thunder Helps Crooks in Three Crimes

While the thunder storm was raging early today thieves took advantage of the opportunity and entered a drug store [illegible] a tailor shop on Da[illegible] [illegible] $150 in cash and a big supply of cigars and cigarettes.

The thieves forced a rear window of the Back Bay Pharmacy, No. 96 Dartmouth street. There they helped themselves to cigars and cigarettes and a rubber coat. They also took $150 from the till.

Two doors above the drug store they forced their way into the tailor shop of Jarm Kaloatian. They carried away ten suits of clothes valued at $400.

When the thunder and lightning was over the thieves had departed.

REPORT TWO VESSELS SINKING; CREWS SAVED

Key West, Fla., June 19.—Marine men were puzzled today by reports telling of the rescue of survivors of the small American freighter Bella and of the 3,600-ton tanker De Soto, both described as sinking in widely different localities off the Florida coast. The survivors from the Bella were taken aboard by the coast guard cutter Tamaroa, en route from Norfolk to the Canal Zone, and which reported she would place the shipwrecked sailors ashore at Kingston, Jamaica.

The De Soto's crew was reported taken off by the Norwegian steamer Borgestadt.

ENGLAND BEATS ITALY IN DAVIS CUP MATCH

Roehampton, Eng., June 19.—England won from Italy in the first match of the Davis Cup lawn tennis series between the two countries, played here today. F. Gordon Lowe of England defeated Count Di Robecco of Italy, 6—1, 6—3, 6—1.

SHIPMENT OF GUNS CHARGED

Accusation Is Result of Seizure Made on Ship at Hoboken

Trenton, N. J., June 19.—Colonel Marcellus H. Thompson, vice-president and active head of the Auto-Ordnance Company of New York, has been indicted by the Federal Grand Jury here on a charge of conspiracy to ship arms to Ireland in violation of the neutrality laws.

The announcement was made today by Assistant United States District Attorney Thomas V. Arrowsmith.

Colonel Thompson is a son-in-law of Colonel George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain.

Indictments also have been returned against the Auto-Ordnance Company and seven other individuals on the same charge, as the result of the seizure at Hoboken last June of the Cosmopolitan line freighter East Side, in the coal bunkers of which were found 495 machine guns. The guns were alleged to have been destined for use by the Sinn Fein in Ireland.

The other individuals indicted are: Frank Williams, alias Lawrence de Lacy, alias Lawrence Pierce, who is alleged to have paid for the shipment of guns, and his brother, Fred Williams, alias Edward de Lacy, who is alleged to have been implicated in the purchase of the guns. Both are now believed to be in Ireland.

salesman, who is alleged to have placed an order for the guns with the Auto-Ordnance Company.

Frank J. Merkling, secretary of the Auto-Ordnance Company.

Frank B. Ochsenreiter of New York and Washington, who is accused of giving the first order for some of the guns with the Auto-Ordnance Company.

Jim Culhane, a truckman of New York, who is alleged to have carted the guns from the American Railway Express Company in New York to his storehouse in the Bronx for Frank Williams.

A Mr. Brolhy, whose first name is unknown to the Federal authorities, who is alleged to have carted the shipment from Culhane's storehouse to the East Side.

The guns were manufactured by the Colt Patent Arms Company of Hartford, Conn., and are alleged to have been sold by the Auto-Ordnance Company. Their inventor is said to be General John T. Thompson, father of Colonel Thompson.

CLAIMED GUNS STOLEN.

There was considerable mystery about the guns after their seizure and an investigation was started by the United States Shipping Board and the Department of Justice. Frank Williams claimed ownership of the guns after the seizure. He declared he had purchased a number of guns through the Auto-Ordnance Company and stored them in a warehouse. He said they had been stolen from the warehouse and asserted he did not know how they got on the ship.

Rorke later was arrested and was released on $3,000 bail. He is said to have admitted that he sold the guns to a group of strange men.

The indictments were returned by the January Federal Grand Jury, which concluded its work in April. Information concerning the indictments was withheld because of the inability to reach some of those indicted.

The technical indictment against the men as a body charged them with "conspiracy to set on foot and provide the means for military enterprise to be carried on against the territory of a foreign prince with whom the United States was at peace."

Thompson Is Graduate of West Point

New York, June 19.—Lieutenant-Colonel Marcellus H. Thompson—son of the inventor of the Thompson gun, and son-in-law of Ambassador George Harvey—charged with conspiracy to ship arms to Ireland in violation of the neutrality laws, is a West Point graduate with a seventeen-year army record including active service in the American expeditionary forces from August, 1917, until after the close of the war.

In the A. E. F. Colonel Thompson was with the Fifty-first Coast Artillery, in charge of heavy guns behind the lines. He resigned from the military service in December, 1919, and later became the head of the Auto-Ordnance Company of New York.

WARD'S FATHER EXPECTED TO SURRENDER

New York, June 19.—A well-defined report that George S. Ward, millionaire father of Walter S. Ward, slayer of Clarence Peters, would appear before Justice Morschauser before night, to tell what he knows of the mysterious case, was in circulation in White Plains early today.

The elder Ward has been in Pennsylvania for more than a week. It is believed he has been delaying his return in the hope of making terms with the Westchester officials in regard to his appearance.

It is now reported that Ward has abandoned hope of any favors and has decided to return and take his chances.

NEW WITNESS EXPECTED.

It was also reported that a mysterious witness who had been sought for two weeks had been located and would appear today. This witness, it was rumored, would give an entirely new turn to the case and bring in a number of persons not before mentioned. The whole blackmail plot would be bared at the courts inquiry into an alleged conspiracy to block justice, it was said.

Another new turn to the case was the statement of Mrs. Clara Adams, of No. 330 West Ninety-fifth street, that a man known to her as Sidney Lampart, a former boarder, left a blood-stained silk shirt when he departed hurriedly shortly after the slaying of Clarence Peters by Walter S. Ward.

Mrs. Adams, through her attorney, said a man resembling Walter Ward and another looking like Peters had stopped at her house in the past. Her story is being investigated.

That the defence has become alarmed at the events of the last week and their inability to force the State to agree to an early trial has become apparent. Ward, from the Westchester County Jail, sent for his attorney, Elwood Rabinold, and the latter held a two-hour conference with him. Rabinold declined to make any public statement after the interview.

STRAIN TELLS ON WARD.

The strain of the dull routine of jail life is beginning to show on Ward. Since his incarceration he hasbravely tried to convey the impression to his fellow-prisoners that he is much unconcerned about the position he finds himself in. His face, however, is drawn and haggard. For hours he sits silently gazing, out into the exercise court in front of his cell. At times when spoken to he seems startled.

After Ward had taken the regular prison breakfast, he told Joseph McMullin, the prison cook, that the bread he baked would be much better if he cut down on the amount of yeast he put in it. The suggestion was well taken. For his other meals Ward sent over to the Carpenter House. He spent much of Sunday afternoon reading magazines.

Although the regular visiting days at the Westchester jail are Wednesday and Saturday, Ralph Ward was allowed to see his brother. He was with him for about a half hour. Later, following the attitude of silence that has characterized every member of the Ward family since the tragedy, he refused to make any statement to reporters.

BLACKMAIL PROBE ON.

Among the witnesses who will surely be examined today in the conspiracy probe are Allen R. Campbell and Elwood Rabinold of counsel for the defence. The others will be witnesses who appeared at the Grand Jury inquiry, except the mysterious witness who has just been located.

Unbounded efforts are being made to find the two somewhat fantastical figures of Jackson and Rogers, who are said to be the "missing links" of the mystery. It is only after they have found that the defence may expect the prosecution to consent to trial.

Chauffeur Exonerated in Bloody Shirt Clew

Falmouth, June 19.—Sydney T. Lambert, a New York chauffeur on vacation here, was fully exonerated of blame in connection with the murder of Clarence Peters, for which Walter S. Ward had been indicted, after he successfully explained the finding of a bloody shirt in his New York rooming house.

The officials who questioned him did so on the statements of a New York landlady, who produced a shirt covered with blood, and intimated that he might have connection with the Peters case. After scoring his former landlady as "erratic," Lambert, who is a former sailor, admitted the stained shirt was his. He stated that it was in that condition after it had been used as a covering for a pillow after extraction of several teeth. Local police officials know him and his story is fully believed.

Women Are Sole Occupants of Liner's Cabin

New York, June 19.—A new kind of trans-Atlantic record is claimed for the steamship Columbia of the Anchor Line which arrived from Glasgow, via Moville, Ireland, and brought seven first-class passengers.

Here's the catch: All of the passengers were women, the first time, according to the "record claimers" that a ship ever came here with its first cabin list exclusively feminine.

The ship also brought 202 second cabin and 153 steerage passengers.

SUPREME COURT DISBARS TUFTS

which the respondent told her he could arrange for, it would seem was carried out; and upon all the evidence and rational inferences to be drawn therefrom, lead to the conclusion that a conspiracy, as charged, was entered into as found by the court in the case of the attorney general versus Tufts.

"On the evidence presented, without further evidence to control, contradict or diminish its effect, or to show that the result reached in that case was erroneous, it must be found that the charge is sustained.

"If there was no evidence of a conspiracy, the advice given to Mrs. Stearns by the respondent that she could obtain a divorce by ensnaring her husband to have illicit relations with another woman, and thereby inducing him to commit a criminal offence was improper, inconsistent with the principles o fright and justice, and in violation of the respondent's oath as an attorney.

"In view of the conclusion reached respecting the charge above referred to, it is unnecessary to consider the other allegations contained in the petition.

"The entry of an order of disbarment is directed."

In his argument at disbarment proceedings June 6, Attorney Johnson declared Mr. Tufts had been "punished sufficiently in being ousted from office as district attorney," and asked that the court deny the Bar Association's petition that the former prosecutor be disbarred.

The Stearns case, said Mr. Johnson, was the only one in which Mr. Tufts had been convicted of conspiracy. The only evidence against the former District Attorney, added the lawyer, was that he had suggested to Mrs. Stearns that "a woman could be obtained to lure the captain into immoral conduct" so that Mrs. Stearns might be able to obtain a divorce.

The ousting of Mr. Tufts as District Attorney of Middlesex County had constituted "punishment enough," declared the attorney.

IMPOSE LIQUOR AND AUTO FINES AT DEDHAM

In Dedham Court today Frank Dastole of Norwood was fined $150 and sentenced to two months in the House of Correction for liquor sales and $50 more for keeping and exposing for sale.

Tofie Bader, of Norwood, was fined $50 for keeping and exposing; and John Gaidu, of No. 531 Pleasant street, Norwood, $50 for making a sale of liquor to Alfred Welsh on June 16.

Rbert W. Canavan, of Brookline, paid $50 fine for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor in Needham, last Sunday.

PAWTUCKET STRIKERS KEEP AWAY FROM GATES

Pawtucket, R. I., June 19.—The twenty-second week of the textile strike opened quietly today. The strikers of the Lonsdale, Berkeley and Ashton mills refused to take advantage of the permission granted by Sheriff Andrews to have three pickets at the gates of the larger and two at the gates of the smaller mills. They kept away from the gates, but assembled in the villages and watched all roads leading to the mills. Few workers except overseers, second hands and officials reported.

FIVE FLEE BURNING AUTO AT REVERE

Three men and two girls fled from a burning automobile during the thunderstorm on North Shore boulevard, between Oak Island and Point of Pines, Revere, early today. The car, a sedan type taxi, was destroyed, despite the efforts of the Revere fire department. The automobile party consisted of two sailors and two Revere girls. They were being driven by John J. Dyer Jr., of Revere. The back fire of the motor started the fire.

FRENCH TROOPS CLASH WITH POLES, GERMANS

Berlin, June 19.—An afray is reported at Biskupitz, Upper Silesia, between a small detachment of French troops and a force of plebiscite police, a mixed body of Poles and Germans, which had been ordered to relieve the communal guards.

FEAR DE VALERA WILL REPUDIATE IRISH TREATY

Belfast, June 19.—Threats of murder reprisals caused intense activity on the part of police and soldiers today. The situation has been intensified by another wave of incendiarism. The streets which have been storm-centres in the past are under military patrol.

London, June 19 (By the Associated Press).—Eamon De Valera's keenly anticipated statement, looked for today, is expected to denounce and repudiate the proposed Irish Constitution. It is also universally believed that the statement will doom the Collins-De Valera agreement under which last week's elections were held.

Views differ as to what effect dissolution of the agreement will have on the general peace program. Some predict a violent catastrophe.

The army convention held at the Mansion House in Dublin is regarded as hardly less important than the De Valera statement may prove to be. It is assumed the attitude of the convention was strongly hostile to the Constitution, although complete secrecy was maintained concerning the proceedings.

Say Election Results Show Treaty Is Upheld

Dublin, June 19 (By the Associated Press). — The Dublin newspapers treat the election results thus far recorded as conclusive evidence that the voters support the Anglo Irish Treaty.

The Irish Times prints a detailed report of the proportional representation voting in Cork city, arguing that it shows that labor voted 15 to 1, in favor of the treaty, and that the total polling was more than 4 to 1 in its favor.

The Irish Independent says the results plainly indicate the trend of the country's opinion regarding the treaty, and adds: "Already the antis have suffered some notable reverses. It is significant that in the first constituency in Munster in which decision of a contest is known the result is a serious reverse for the antis."

Results in Cork are believed to sound the death-knell to the hopes of Republicans. The complete defeat of Lord Mayor O'Callaghan amazed the De Valeraites.

CORK RESULTS.

Returns from Cork, which is regarded as a hotbed of extreme Republicans, are:

R. Day, Labor candidate, 6,836; Alderman William Rosch, pro-treaty candidate, 6,147; J. J. Walsh, pro-treaty candidate, 6,097; Mary MacSwiney, anti-treaty candidate, 6,066; Professor Beamish, Independent candidate, 4,769; Frank Daly, 3,043, and O'Callaghan, 1,807.

The first four candidates have been declared elected to the Dail Eirean. Mr. Day favors the treaty.

It was said here today that the Republicans would have made no showing at all had not Michael Collins agreed to form a coalition government.

LABOR EXULTANT.

The Republicans have now lost two seats to the Free Staters. The Labor party is overjoyed, declaring that it will win at least four seats in Dublin. Organizer Foran of the Labor party said that he regretted that labor was not represented by more candidates.

He continued:

"The next election will result in a labor government."

Everybody is convinced that De Valera's pact with Collins is now dead and that a coalition government is unlikely.

the people, and Mr. Weeks does not help his administration in suggesting that it will endeavor to kill the primaries.

Sad-eyed machine Republicans say primaries mean that only rich men can be nominated, they alone having money to make the fight. Even so, the people prefer a rich man, nominated with his own money—honestly spent—than a corporation man named by a machine on corporation orders. The other day, by the way, the Republican machine was beaten at the primaries by a man who spent less than $500 on his campaign.

For part of one stamp collection, sold at auction, more than seven million francs are paid, and except as a record for museums, the entire collection is not worth a franc and a half. Such collecting, a non-productive substitute for useful activity, is an inheritance that goes far back in our animal ancestry. The jackdaw is a collector, so are the lowest savages.

WIFE CLAIMS McADOO'S SISTER ESTRANGED HER HUSBAND

SAYS HE IS AFRAID OF MOTHER

Mrs. Foster Has $50,000 Alienation Suit Pending and Seeks Separation

New York, June 19.—Mrs. Angelo Scarpa Foster for the first time disclosed the details of her romance with the adopted son of Mrs. Nona McAdoo Foster, Angelo Scarpa Foster. Mrs. Foster is a sister of William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury.

Young Mrs. Foster has brought a $50,000 action for alleged alienation of affections against Mrs. McAdoo Foster and a suit for separation against Angelo Foster.

Denying the husband's alleged version of how the parties became engaged, the wife said:

BROKE WITH FIANCE.

"I had known Mr. Foster some time before a romance developed. At the beginning of this romance I was engaged to marry Lieut. William Kenyon Lloyd. Mr. Foster asked me to break this engagement and become engaged to him.

"When I consented, he obtained an antique ring from his mother's safe-deposit vault, brought it to me and, after asking my mother if he would be a suitable son-in-law, asked me before mother to use this ring as an engagement ring. He said a diamond solitaire would create suspicion, and he did not want his mother to know he was engaged.

"It is not true that I suggested the later marriage. After we had been engaged for about a month he purchased a wedding ring. He told me of the purchase on New Year s Eve, 1920, and said we should get a marriage license."

DARED TO GET LICENSE.

The young bridegroom is quoted as saying he obtained the marriage license on a dare from his bride. Of this, the wife said:

"Following luncheon and a visit to my father's office, early in January we approached the subway station at Brooklyn Bridge. Mr. Foster remarked that the Municipal Building was handy and that it would be a good time to get the license. I told him there was plenty of time, whereupon he put me on a subway train.

"After the train had started Mr. Foster came through the train looking for me and said that he dared me to go back and get the marriage license. We got off the subway at Spring street, returned to the Municipal Building and obtained the license."

As to the statement of her husband that the subsequent marriage was suggested and planned by her, the younger Mrs. Foster said:

WAS URGED TO WED.

"The idea never entered my head at the time when Mr. Foster, on January 6, 1921, phoned me to meet him, presumably to go to the movies. Without making any preparations whatsoever, I took a taxi to meet him. He said that he wanted to be sure of me and wanted to marry. He said we had the license, the ring and my mother's consent. I finally consented and we were married by the Rev. B. C. Warren.

"After the ceremony Mr. Foster again cautioned me not to disclose our marriage because his mother had invested certain moneys for him and was extremely jealous of his affections. He insisted I not tell my father because he was dependent upon his mother for support and my father might desist supporting me if he knew I was married."

In these statements the younger Mrs. Foster was supported by her mother, Mrs. May Whitney Helms, and her aunt, Miss Pearl Whitney.

Angelo Scarpa Foster refused to confirm or deny any statements made by his wife.

That's the reward won by an ad in The Boston American's "Lost and Found" columns.

The power of a few lines under this classification is wonderful. Almost magical is the way they have of locating what has been counted lost.

These ads render a far-reaching search for lost articles, because The American has the largest evening circulation of any newspaper in New England.

They give further assistance by printing the ads of those who find lost valuables.

BIGAMIST GETS 6 MONTHS; NO. 1 TO BE TRUE

Lawrence Bolles, confessed bigamist, was given six months in the House of Correction by Judge Connelly in Brighton Court today.

Bolles, who is an automobile mechanic, left the courtroom with the faith of his first wife pledged to him when he is released from custody, but Wife No. 2 is to know him as a stranger.

Mrs. Bolles No. 1 was Beatrice C. Casey of South Boston. She married Bolles seven years ago. They have two children.

Gladys O'Neil, twenty-two years old, of Pepperell, became Mrs. Bolles the second of April 11. They were married by the Rev. Norman J. Raison, pastor of the Allston M. E. Church, at the church parsonage at No. 33 Chester street.

Today in court tears brimmed in the eyes of Bolles' first wife as he was led away.

"I still love him," she said. "He's the father of my children."

She left the courtroom to tell Bolles she would be waiting for him when his time is up.

Wife No. 2 with relatives spurned the man who had deceived her.

LOSING IN LOVE, TAKES POISON

Providence, June 19.—Disappointed over a love affair is believed to have caused Mary Saccocio of No. 55 Vavina street, Cranston, to take poison at a rooming house on Pond street. She was sent to the Rhode Island Hospital, where her recovery is expected.

The police found in her room a long letter to "Joe," saying that on a recent trip to Brooklyn she contemplated committing suicide by jumping from the boat.

DR. JAMES B. NIES, NOTED ORIENTALIST, IS DEAD

Philadelphia, June 19.—The death in Jerusalem of Rev. Dr. James B. Nies, of Brooklyn, N. Y., an eminent Orientalist, was announced today by Rev. James A. Montgomery, Philadelphia, president of the American Schools of Oriental Research.

Dr. Nies gave $50,000 for the erection of a building for the American school in Jerusalem, and left last March to superintend its erection. He was trustee of the American Schools of Oriental Research and a notable benefactor of archaeological undertakings. He was an Episcopal clergyman.

BOLT CLIPS BIG CHIMNEY; 500 GIVEN SCARE

Boston's freak thunder storm, in which lightning shot fork-tongues of flame through the early-morning sky, caused damage amounting to several hundreds of dollars and threw a scare into 500 occupants of the House of the Angel Guardian in Jamaica Plain.

A bolt struck the top and one side of the 100-foot chimney attached to the institution's power plant, sent a shower of bricks into nearby streets, splintered several panes of glass in apartments and tore a gaping hole in the roof of a house.

Brothers and boy pupils in the home were aroused and badly frightened although there was no panic.

HURLED 100 FEET.

Bricks, hurtled a hundred feet, caused damage to apartments at Nos. 98, 100, 120 and 122 Day street and one house in Bymmer street. A hole was torn in the roof of the house at No. 100 Day street, owned by May Dooley and occupied on the top floor by Thomas O'Malley and family. Several panes of glass in the O'Malley apartment were shattered.

In the apartment of John Fitzgerald at No. 98 Day street glass was broken. Windows were shattered in apartments at Nos. 120 and 122. In Bymmer street several windows were broken and bricks found scattered about the street.

Officials at the Angel Guardian Home said repairs to the chimney would be made immediately.

They reported that every window in the industrial school and the grounds was broken.

Ventilators in the roof of the power house were damaged and the roof broken through in two places.

RAIN TO CONTINUE.

More unsettled weather tonight and probably tomorrow is predicted today by the weather bureau.

Heavy rainfalls occurred in other parts of New England and in the South, the precipitation being 4:42 inches, at Portland, Me.; 1:12, at Concord, N. H.; 1:36, at Boston; 1:54, at Louisville; 1:52, at Atlanta, Ga.; and 1:34, at Memphis, Tenn.

Much lower temperatures are reported today in Northern districts, while normal temperatures prevail in the remaining parts of the country.

ROXBURY MAN IS KILLED BY AN AUTO

John Ollis, fifty years old, of No. 18 King street, Roxbury, was struck by an automobile at Tremont and Vernon streets, Roxbury, today, and instantly killed.

The machine was driven by John J. Hourihan of No. 4 Estey street, Roxbury.

A request by police for a warrant to charge Hourihan with manslaughter was denied in Roxbury Court. He was exonerated from blame for Ollis' death by witnesses.

SAVE FOUR BOYS BURIED IN SAND

Pittsfield, June 19.—Frantic efforts of volunteer workers saved the lives of four lads who were buried alive for more than twenty minutes underneath tons of sand. All four are in the Mercy Hospital, one of them suffering from a possible fracture of the skull.

The boys are: Edward St. Clair, ten years old; Samuel Sonnetto, ten; Nicholas Pignone, twelve, and James Merowitz, ten, all of Pittsfield. The St. Clair boy is on the danger list at the hospital as the result of being struck in the head by a workman's shovel.

They were playing on the Clapp playground when a storm broke and they sought shelter in a small hut they had built at the base of a sandbank. The bank crumbled and the boys were buried underneath the sand.

Doctor of Divinity: Rev. George Angier Gordon, pastor of the Old South Church, Boston; and Rev. Everett Edward Lewis, Haddam, Ct. Doctor of Humane Letters: Stuart Pratt Sherman, professor, University of Illinois. Master of Arts: Mortimer Winfield Thomas, vice principal Drury High School, North Adams; and the late David Everett Wheeler, Williams '94, who was killed during the world war.

JEALOUS HUBBY HAD KNIFE FOR SANBORN

Another chapter dealing with the adventures of young Jack Sanborn, son of the Boston coffee king, whose separation from his child-wife, Eleanor Montgomery Sanborn has created a sensation in Boston society circles, was revealed today.

This chapter deals with a boathouse steward, his wife, a pair of fists and a knife. The knife was never used, but the fists were, according to the Boston American's informant, and young Jack is said to have been on the receiving end.

It was several years ago that the steward of a fashionable boat club brought his young wife down from Maine. The woman was stunning and many an eye turned for a second glance as she passed along the street on the arm of her husband. The husband was proud.

DISPLAYED KNIFE.

Came a day when the steward appeared with bood in his eye. He was mad clear through. He was out for blood and revenge. He stormed around the streets searching, he declared, for "young Sanborn."

A reputable citizen of Winchester met the man on the street and asked for an explanation. "I'll get that young Sanborn yet!" cried the steward, as he displayed a knife with which he declared he desired to carve the young scion up, it is reported.

The stewad did not meet the young man while in the heat of anger, but report has it that he later met him and administered a sound beating.

EMPLOYED BY SANBORN.

Then the wife of the steward turned up in the Sanborn home at Aigremont. There she was said to have been employed as a servant. A short time later the steward himself was installed in the Sanborn home as a butler, and the episode apparently passed away peacefully. The couple remained at the Sanborn home for a time, and then dropped out of sight.

The Sanborns still remain in seclusion at their home in Winchester, where they refuse all newspaper men. But it was learned today that young Sanborn has paid several visits to a Boston hotel during the past few days. This hotel saw a great deal of the young man before the separation became known.

In former days he is said to have staged many joyful parties there. But his visits now are quiet, and he takes pains to avoid most of his old friends.

WESLEYAN DEGREE FOR BISHOP HUGHES

Bishop Hughes.

Middletown, Conn., June 19.—One hundred and twelve degrees to members of the largest graduating class in the history of Wesleyan University and five honorary degrees were awarded today at the commencement exercises of the institution. The five honorary degrees were given to Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of Malden, Mass., Dr. John Campbell Merriam, president of Carnegie Institute, Washington, and Cornelius Cole of Los Angeles, who received the Doctor of Laws degree, and Rev. Harry S. Scarborough of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Rev. Robert Leroy Thompson of Troy, N. Y., who received the degree of Doctor of Divinity. Senator Cole is the oldest living alumnus.

SOUTH BOSTON GIRL WAR VETERAN'S BRIDE

Florence M. Scott

Florence M. Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Scott of South Boston, and Henry G. Fay of No. 12 Creighton street, Jamaica Plain, were married in St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, by the Rev. Joseph G. Lyons.

Mr. Fay is the son of Mrs. Frances M. Fay. He served overseas in the 101st Infantry. On their return from their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Fay will reside in Jamaica Plain.

LIQUOR CARGO CLAIMED BY R. I. AND U. S. OFFICIALS

Providence, R. I., June 19.—State and Federal officials have clashed over the seizure of the schooner Katie B. and her cargo of liquor by State authorities. Customs officials have filed a formal claim for the cargo, which is said to have been consigned to a multi-millionaire of this city, on the ground that the stuff entered this country from a foreign port without the payment of customs duties. The validity of the State law under which the seizure was made is now before the Supreme Court for decision.

Flapper Has a Raw, Raw Time With Harvard Grads at Beach

She Becomes Seeress and Learns Lot of Dark Secrets.

By the FLAPPER.

Once a year, my dears, the Harvard grads who have grown up to be Supreme Court judges, missionaries to the Sudan, heads of hospitals and such, check their chin whiskers somewhere in Cambridge and embark for Nantasket to gambol on the green, sport about in the surf, ride the roller coasters and chuck the Palm Garden waitresses under the chin.

Saturday was the day!

If you ask me what kind of a time the dear boys had, I'd say it was pretty raw, raw, raw!

The only difference between an annual meeting of the Associated Harvard Clubs and an Elk convention is red bands instead of purple. Only the toughest Elk who ever dangled a tooth from his watch-chain wouldn't dare be as rodwy as the gentlest chap of the Harvard gang.

DOCTOR EATS HEARTILY.

They were certainly a merry throng. They all wore white pants and they all got them muddy before the day was half over. The world-famous doctor who has written the famous tract on diet and its effect on the country's progress, gorged himself on clams seasoned with sand, hot dogs, lemonade with and without, pickled limes, cracker-jack and all day suckers.

The little man who gained such distinction in the '98 graduating class in the Divinity School got dizzy riding on the wiggle-woggle and fell head first into a fountain.

The youth from the war class of '18, who survived a year or so with the Royal Flying Corps, stepped out of the revolving airplane while it was in the air and gave his ankle a nasty twist.

The shark of the psych 4 class back in '08, got his fortune told. And that's where I come in. For it was this way, mates:

I had been chumming with the boys to get some dope on the festivities so I could write a piece for the paper. And they had been treating me like Yale. I'd ask 'em what time it was or who was winning the baseball game or som'thin' like that, and they'd tell me not to use their right names because they were prominent back home.

DONS DISGUISE.

With all the news they'd give me I'd have a nice compact paragraph for the obit column. So I put my head together and got an idea.

I disguised myself as a fortune teller, sat in awhile at Mlle. Etta's Palmistry Parlor in Paragon Park and—well, whad' a'ya wanta know about any Harvard graduate from the year '98 to '22 inclusive? Ask me, ask me. I'll sell 'em out for a nickel!

"Read your life like a book! Your money back if you're not satisfied," I shouted.

And in they flocked. I leave it to Mlle. Etta if she ever had a busier day.

"You're married," I told a '03 man in a red coat, who clasped an over-dressed kewpie doll in his arms.

"How'd you guess that?"

"Because you're having such a good time."

WILL MARRY AGAIN.

"But you will be married again and your next wife will bring you much wealth and happiness." (Break up homes an' everything.)

"Cross my palm with silver—next customer."

"If you're such a good fortune teller, what's my name?" my next victim challenged me.

"Your name," I said, impressively, "is Mr. Mackay Wells. You graduated from Harvard in 1908."

"How," gasped the gent, "did you ever know that?"

"Simple," I said. "I loked at your badge. Now, then, you will have a long life. There is an ocean voyage——"

"I'll say there's an ocean voyage," cried my subject. "Glad you reminded me. The boat leaves for Boston in ten minutes, and here I am half a mile from it——" And off he bundled.

Thus as I have said above, I learned enough secrets to fill Town Topics and the Police Gazette and the Yale Daily News for weeks to come. Ask me; ask me.

FLAPPER HOLDING HANDS

Beware of a dark woman who will come into your life . . . Mr. Mackay Wells, Harvard, '08, is here seen having his fortune told by Mamzelle Mayme (nee me), wur-r-rld's greatest palmist. How's he gonna fix this up with the folks back home?

ARCHBISHOP IS SHOT CELEBRATING MASS

Montevideo, June 19.—The condition of Archbishop Juan Francisco Aragone, who was shot while celebrating mass in the Cathedral here yesterday, was reported worse today. Surgeons upon extracting the bullet found the intestines perforated, and peritonitis is feared. The prelate was attacked by Benigno Herrrera Salazar, twenty-three-year-old Spaniard, who recently arrived here from Buenos Aires. After firing five shots Salazar pursued his victim to the sacristy, where the assassin was overpowered by members of the congregation.

AND THEY SING YO! HO! AND A BOTTLE O' RUM

New York, June 19.—"Yo, heave, ho, and a bottle of rum," has become the most popular song of the day here, the majority of male citizens having become seafaring men as a result of an announcement that a large fleet of rum-running vessels is lying off New York.

A constantly increasing flotilla of small craft is headed out of the harbor, the occupants, armed with glasses, anxiously scanning the sky-line for a glimpse of the treasure galleons.

Nautical phrases, culled from the best works of fiction, and emitted in hoarse tones, may be heard on every hand. Boats of every description are at a premium, and many a man who has heretofore looked upon water with abhorrence has trusted himself to a frail craft in the hope that his reward will be great.

The announcement which caused the modern exodus was made by Zone Prohibition Agent John D. Appleby, who said the officers of the liquor fleet were acting in open defiance of the customs and prohibiton men and inviting the agents to "come out and get them."

Agent Appleby admitted that the authorities were powerless to act, valued at $1,500,000.

The manifest lists of the vessels show from 5,000 cases upwards of real Scotch whiskey of various bet as all the vessels have clearance papers from Scotland and are flying the British flag. The fleet, he said, is the largest that has approached the shores of the United States since prohibition, and is lying about thirteen miles out with cargoes of liquor ter brands.

COUNTER REBELS RULE TERRITORY IN RUSSIA

London, June 19 (By International News Service). — Revolution against the Soviet government has broken out at Buturlinov, in the Province of Voronesch, according to a dispatch from Copenhagen today, quoting a report from Helsingfors. The dispatch said 10,000 counter revolutionists under Mironov had captured Buturlinov, and held a large extent of territory in that district.

ROXBURY MAN IS FOUND DEAD BY DAUGHTER

Miss Mary Warren of No 9 Bickford street, Roxbury, found her father, Patrick R. Warren, lying unconscious on the floor of his room today. She immediately called the police, and the man was removed to the City Hospital, where he was pronounced dead from natural causes.

300 GALLONS OF WINE FOUND IN RABBI'S CELLAR

Providence, R. I., June 19.—David H. Bachrack, rabbi of the congregation of the Sons of Israel and dean of the rabbis of Rhode Island, has been summoned to appear before Prohibition Enforcement Director Edward J. Dunn today to answer questions regarding the presence of 300 gallons of wine in his cellar.

Harry Mincoff of No. 20 Shawmut street also has been summoned before Mr. Dunn, and Louis Strasnick of No. 99 Garfield street, Central Falls, is locked up at police headquarters awaiting arraignment before United States Commissioner Archibald Matteson on charges of violating the Volstead act.

Strasnick's arrest followed a raid by Director Dunn and Chief Enforcement Agent Frederick A. Bailey on the home of the rabbi, No. 325 North Main street, following reports that wine was being sold in large quantities.

According to the account of the affair given by the dry enforcement officers they first went to Strasnick in Central Falls, where they arraigned for the purchase of twenty gallons of wine. They say that Strasnick told them he would have to go to Providence to get the wine and they paid him in advavnce, using marked bills.

After he had received the money, say the officers, they followed him to the home of the rabbi, which he entered. They forced their way in and claim to have discovered Strasnick and the rabbi in the cellar.

They also declare that the marked money was found in the possession of the rabbi, and that more than 300 gallons of wine were found in the cellar.

LONDON PLANS GREAT WELCOME FOR PRINCE

Premier Poincare

London, June 19.—The Prince of Wales will receive the greatest welcome of his career when he arrives home from his eight months' trip to India, Japan, Australasia and Egypt.

The battleship Renown, upon which the prince traveled, is due to reach Plymouth tomorrow night, when the celebration will start. The ovation will culminate when the prince arrives in London on Wednesday. King George, Queen Mary and other members of the royal family will greet the prince when he arrives at Victoria station.

WIRE KILLS 3 TRYING TO SAVE HORSE IN POND

Water Highly Charged With Electricity Causes Strange Maine Tragedy

North Anson, Me., June 19.—A woman and two men were killed today when a high tension wire crossed a guy wire and electrocuted a horse in the millyard of the North Anson Manufacturing Company.

The dead, all residents of North Anson, are: Mrs. Thomas Moran, Ora Pullen and Warren Nutting.

One of the wires of the power line connecting the stations of the Central Maine Power Company here with that of the Franklin Power & Light Company at Cleveland Rips, two miles above here, sagged so that it came into contact with the guy wire.

The current was communicted to the horse, belonging to the manufacturing company and driven by Pullen. The animal, which was feeding while standing in a small pond of water accumulated from the heavy rain, was killed instantly.

Pullen, without knowing what had happened to the animal, went to his assistance and was knocked down and probably killed outright when he stepped into the water. Nutting and Mrs. Moran saw the accident and went to aid Pullen. Both were killed when they entered the water charged with the deadly current of thousands of volts.

Others in the vicinity, who began to comprehend the dangerous situation, stood guard until word had been passed to the power station and the current switched off. Those who approached the spot afterward said the electrical charge was still noticeable and that they felt slight shocks.

POINCARE CONFERS WITH LLOYD GEORGE

Prince of Wales

London, June 19.—The first formal meeting of Premier Poincare of France and Premier Lloyd George took place at a luncheon today. Most of the members of the British Cabinet were present.

Premier Poincare is anxious to reopen discussions for an Anglo-French alliance, but it is reported that Premier Lloyd George wants an understanding first on the Near East question. The Hague conference and German reparations.

REVERE SHOPKEEPER IS BEATEN, ROBBED OF $25

Henry Forni, thirty-five, who conducts a store at No. 81 Beach street, Revere, was knocked senseless and robbed of $25 by two men, said to be Italians, who entered the store as he was about to close up. He notified the police and furnished a description of his assailants.

658 GRADUATES BEAT RECORDS AT B. U.

Business, law and medicine claim the majority of the record classes of 658 students of Boston University who received their degrees in Symphony Hall today. Among the graduates of the College of Business Administration is Ting K. Liang, the son of the ex-Premier of China.

Dr. Francis McConnell of Pittsburgh, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, delivered the commencement address on "Social Imagination," before the faculties, graduates and 2,000 guests.

TEACHING STILL POPULAR.

That the teaching profession is popular with Boston University students is still in evidence, since more than 50 per cent. of the senior class of the College of Liberal Arts become teachers, mostly in the public high schools. In addition to these, sixty students who have taken specialized training in the School of Education or the Graduate School will enter educational work.

Of this year's graduates, 120 are planning to go either into the ministry, religious education, or some form of social service. Ten of these students will sail as missionaries to China, Japan, India and Africa in the early part of the Summer.

LUNCHEON TO GRADS.

Commencement exercises were followed by a luncheon given by the University to the members of the graduating class in the balcony foyer of Symphony Hall. The faculties, trustees and their wives were present.

The principal speaker at the University convocation composed of graduates of all departments to be held in Symphony Hall will be Dr. Thomas A. Watson of Boston, who was associated with Dr. Alexander Graham Bell when he was a professor at Boston University.

MAN HIT WITH GLASS TRYING TO STOP FIGHT

Playing the role of peacemaker resulted in Abraham Tisboy, forty-three years old, of No. 18 Hudson street, South End, being struck in the face with a glass tumbler. According to Theboy's story to the police, he was standing in the doorway of a confectionery store, at the junction of Dover and Washington streets, when his attention was attracted to a fight between two inside the store. He rushed into the store to separate the men. A glass tumbler was thrown at him by one of the participants in the fray.

200 AUTOS STALLED ALL NIGHT BY HEAVY RAIN

Pittsfield, June 19.—Many couples were forced to spend the night in autos lashed by spray after four feet of rain water flowing across the highway blocked passage. The stalled cars, numbering 200, are unable to move from Jacob's Ladder on the Lee side. Several parties are bound for Boston.

Miss Goldberg, by the variety and attractiveness of her costumes, has been acclaimed by her classmates at Boston University as the best dressed of the girls who graduated today.

GAMBLING DENS IN BLUE HILLS

More than a score of gambling resorts have been discovered in the woods of the Blue Hills in the vicinity of Stoughton, Milton and Randolph, by police hunting clews to the murderers of Patrolman Farrington of the Milton police. They announced today they intend to stamp out these resorts.

The places are reported to be well furnished and guarded by "lookouts." Minature roulette wheels, cards, dice and tops are the gambling implements with which most of them are equipped.

Regular poker booths are said to have been arranged for the use of the patrons for week-end parties. Food, and in many instances drink as well is furnished by the house.

HUGHES FAVORS SOME SECRECY IN DIPLOMACY

By International News Service.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 19.—International negotiations cannot be conducted successfully in face of a fire of criticism from a "clamorous public," Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes declared today in an address at the commencement exercises at the University of Michigan.

Asserting the old European diplomacy of intrigue was discredited by the war, Mr. Hughes insisted a certain amount of secrecy and reserve is necessary even in the "open diplomacy" of America.

Premature discussions in the press or public forums he declared, may prevent the accomplishment of the most enlightened aims, giving opportunity for the insidious efforts of selfish interests as well as favoring opposition abroad.

The diplomacy of the United States should be responsive to enlightened public opinion, Mr. Hughes said, and since public opinion is developed by consideration of the facts, there should be every possible facility for presenting the true situation to the people at the proper time.

The Secretary of States and members of his department should be free to appear before the Senate and explain or defend his foreign policy and to have an opportunity of meeting any exigency which might arise in the course of debate over an important treaty, Secretary Hughes asserted.

"Our ultimate security will not be found in consitutions or statutes or treaties or conferences," he said, "but in the self-respect that will not permit abasement in the national pride and just self-interest that will not tolerate interference with independence; in the spirit of helpfulness which seeks not alliances, but honorable co-operation."

FOURTH VICTIM DIES IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mrs. Delia Phillips of Plainfield, victim of a crossing accident at Sterling last week, died at the Day-Kimball Hospital. She is the fourth victim of the crash, her husband, Byron Phillips, and a sister, Mrs. Phoebe M. Hebert, being killed, and another sister, Mrs. Jennie Mette, dying a few hours later. Two small children, daughters of Mrs. Hebert and Mrs. Mette, are the only survivors of the tragedy.

AMERICAN GIRL IS HEROINE IN CHINA

By International News Service.

Canton, China, June 19.—Heavy fighting is reported to be continuing three miles north of here between the forces of Sun Yat Sen, who are returning from the north, and those of Chen Chiung Ming, whose military coup last week ousted Dr. Sun from Canton.

In the first clash 1,000 are reported to have been killed. Panic reigned in Canton today as a result of the intermittent shelling of the city by three cruisers in the Pearl River which remained loyal to Sun. Refugees poured southward to Hong Kong by the thousands. The streets were deserted.

The heroine of the hour is Mrs. Samuel Wong, American wife of Wong, Harvard graduate and technical adviser of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, who risked her life passing through Canton alone to Shameen Island, where she appealed for help to locate Madam Sun.

According to Mrs. Wong, Dr. Sun fled under fire disguised as a coolie making his way to a waiting gunboat. Friends of Madam Sun are greatly worried as they believe she failed to escape from the palace and all efforts to locate her since the coup have failed.

TAKE BODY OF CRIPPLE SON FROM THE LAKE

Worcester, June 19.—After dragging the water of Middle River with improvised grappling irons, Mr. and Mrs. William Alexanderovich, 611 Millbury street, drew to the surface the body of their eleven-year-old, crippled son, William, pupil at the Millbury street school. He had been missing since Friday when he went to the library for a school reference book. Medical Examiner Baker said it was accidental death.

BRIDGEPORT WOMAN IS DISCOVERED SLAIN

Bridgeport, Ct., June 19.—Mrs. Lillian Northrop was found dead in her rooming house today, her skull having been crushed, nose broken and eyes blackened. Her body lay on the bed in her room when the door was broken in by Charles Nadew and George Coftis, roomers, and two policemen.

PRESIDENTIAL PARTY BACK FROM CRUISE

Washington, June 19.—President and Mrs. Harding and their guests on a week-end cruise down the Potomac on the Mayflower returned today to Washington. The President immediately went to the executive offices and started on a long list of appointments, including a call by a committee of church men to present a memorial on the coal strike and a visit by Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador, to say farewell before leaving Washington to spend the Summer at home.

PROTESTS SUNDAY BALL GAME COLLECTIONS

Declaring the collection of money at Sunday ball games in North Cambridge was "an outrage to public sentiment and should be stopped" Rev. Martin D. Kneeland of the Lord's Day League, at Porter Square Universalist Church, denounced the practice. He said that between $1,500 and $2,000 was collected at each of these games.

Mr. Kneeland said the games were played under the auspices of the North Cambridge Knights of Columbus, and that when he conferred with State Deputy William C. Prout he said the practice must stop. Cambridge K. of C. officials deny the team represents that council.

3 BOYS DROWN, 2 OTHERS ARE RESCUED

Three boys were drowned and two almost lost their lives in Nahant, Worcester and Woonsocket, R. I.

Caught in the heavy seas off Bass Point, Nahant, John Lamphier, seventeen years old, was drowned in plain sight of several hundred cottagers on shore. The youth's death came as the result of his attempt to put out in a leaky rowboat to rescue two youngsters who were in peril on a water-logged raft.

Lamphier, who lived on Sea View road, Nahant, was on shore when the two boys on the raft began signalling for help. He leaped in the first rowboat he could find and started to the rescue.

RESCUE TWO ON RAFT.

Joseph Cox and John W. Weeks started to his rescue in another boat when his craft sank. At the same time Raymond Watt leaped from the pier and swam toward him. 658 GRADUATES BEAT RECORDS AT B. U.

Business, law and medicine claim the majority of the record classes of 658 students of Boston University who received their degrees in Symphony Hall today. Among the graduates of the College of Business Administration is Ting K. Liang, the son of the ex-Premier of China.

Dr. Francis McConnell of Pittsburgh, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, delivered the commencement address on "Social Imagination" before the faculties, graduates and 2,000 guests.

TEACHING STILL POPULAR.

That the teaching profession is popular with Boston University students is still in evidence, since more than 50 per cent. of the senior class of the College of Liberal Arts become teachers, mostly in the public high schools. In addition to these, sixty students who have taken specialized training in the School of Education or the Graduate School will enter educational work.

Of this year's graduates, 120 are planning to go either into the ministry, religious education, or some form of social service. Ten of these students will sail as missionaries to China, Japan, India and Africa in the early part of the Summer.

LUNCHEON TO GRADS.

Commencement exercises were followed by a luncheon given by the University to the members of the graduating class in the balcony foyer of Symphony Hall. The faculties, trustees and their wives were present.

The principal speaker at the University convocation composed of graduates of all departments to be held in Symphony Hall will be Dr. Thomas A. Watson of Boston, who was associated with Dr. Alexander Graham Bell when he was a professor at Boston University.

MAN HIT WITH GLASS TRYING TO STOP FIGHT

Playing the role of peacemaker resulted in Abraham Theboy, forty-three years old, of No. 13 Hudson street, South End, being struck in the face with a glass tumbler. According to Theboy's story to the police, he was standing in the doorway of a confectionery store, at the junction of Dover and Washington streets, when his attention was attracted to a fight between two inside the store. He rushed into the store to separate the men. A glass tumbler was thrown at him by one of the participants in the fray.

200 AUTOS STALLED ALL NIGHT BY HEAVY RAIN

Pittsfield, June 19.—Many couples were forced to spend the night in autos lashed by spray after four feet of rain water flowing across the highway blocked passage. The stalled cars, numbering 200, are unable to move from Jacob's Ladder on the Lee side. Several parties are bound for Boston.

GAMBLING DENS IN BLUE HILLS

More than a score of gambling resorts have been discovered in the woods of the Blue Hills in the vicinity of Stoughton, Milton and Randolph, by police hunting clews to the murderers of Patrolman Farrington of the Milton police. They announced today they intend to stamp out these resorts.

The places are reported to be well furnished and guarded by "lookouts." Minature roulette wheels, cards, dice and tops are the gambling implements with which most of them are equipped.

Regular poker booths are said to have been arranged for the use of the patrons for week-end parties. Food, and in many instances drink as well is furnished by the house.

HUGHES FAVORS SOME SECRECY IN DIPLOMACY

By International News Service.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 19.—International negotiations cannot be conducted successfully in face of a fire of criticism from a "clamorous public," Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes declared today in an address at the commencement exercises at the University of Michigan.

Asserting the old European diplomacy of intrigue was discredited by the war, Mr. Hughes insisted a certain amount of secrecy and reserve is necessary even in the "open diplomacy" of America.

Premature discussions in the press or public forums he declared, may prevent the accomplishment of the most enlightened aims, giving opportunity for the insidious efforts of selfish interests as well as favoring opposition abroad.

The diplomacy of the United States should be responsive to enlightened public opinion, Mr. Hughes said, and since public opinion is developed by consideration of the facts, there should be every possible facility for presenting the true situation to the people at the proper time.

The Secretary of States and members of his department should be free to appear before the Senate and explain or defend his foreign policy and to have an opportunity of meeting any exigency which might arise in the course of debate over an important treaty, Secretary Hughes asserted.

"Our ultimate security will not be found in consitutions or statutes or treaties or conferences," he said, "but in the self-respect that will not permit abasement in the national pride and just self-interest that will not tolerate interference with independence; in the spirit of helpfulness which seeks not alliances, but honorable co-operation."

FOURTH VICTIM DIES IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mrs. Delia Phillips of Plainfield, victim of a crossing accident at Sterling last week, died at the Day-Kimball Hospital. She is the fourth victim of the crash, her husband, Byron Phillips, and a sister, Mrs. Phoebe M. Hebert, being killed, and another sister, Mrs. Jennie Mette, dying a few hours later. Two small children, daughters of Mrs. Hebert and Mrs. Mette, are the only survivors of the tragedy.

AMERICAN GIRL IS HEROINE IN CHINA

By International News Service.

Canton, China, June 19.—Heavy fighting is reported to be continuing three miles north of here between the forces of Sun Yat Sen, who are returning from the north, and those of Chen Chiung Ming, whose military coup last week ousted Dr. Sun from Canton.

In the first clash 1,000 are reported to have been killed. Panic reigned in Canton today as a result of the intermittent shelling of the city by three cruisers in the Pearl River which remained loyal to Sun. Refugees poured southward to Hong Kong by the thousands. The streets were deserted.

The heroine of the hour is Mrs. Samuel Wong, American wife of Wong, Harvard graduate and technical adviser of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, who risked her life passing through Canton alone to Shameen Island, where she appealed for help to locate Madam Sun.

According to Mrs. Wong, Dr. Sun fled under fire disguised as a coolie making his way to a waiting gunboat. Friends of Madam Sun are greatly worried as they believe she failed to escape from the palace and all efforts to locate her since the coup have failed.

TAKE BODY OF CRIPPLE SON FROM THE LAKE

Worcester, June 19.—After dragging the water of Middle River with improvised grappling irons, Mr. and Mrs. William Alexanderovich, 611 Millbury street, drew to the surface the body of their eleven-year-old, crippled son, William, pupil at the Millbury street school. He had been missing since Friday when he went to the library for a school reference book. Medical Examiner Baker said it was accidental death.

PRESIDENTIAL PARTY BACK FROM CRUISE

Washington, June 19.—President and Mrs. Harding and their guests on a week-end cruise down the Potomac on the Mayflower returned today to Washington. The President immediately went to the executive offices and started on a long list of appointments, including a call by a committee of church men to present a memorial on the coal strike and a visit by Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador, to say farewell before leaving Washington to spend the Summer at home.

PROTESTS SUNDAY BALL GAME COLLECTIONS

Declaring the collection of money at Sunday ball games in North Cambridge was "an outrage to public sentiment and should be stopped" Rev. Martin D. Kneeland of the Lord's Day League, at Porter Square Universalist Church, denounced the practice. He said that between $1,500 and $2,000 was collected at each of these games.

Mr. Kneeland said the games were played under the auspices of the North Cambridge Knights of Columbus, and that when he conferred with State Deputy William C. Prout he said the practice must stop. Cambridge K. of C. officials deny the team represents that council.

3 BOYS DROWN, 2 OTHERS ARE RESCUED

Three boys were drowned and two almost lost their lives in Nahant, Worcester and Woonsocket, R. I.

Caught in the heavy seas off Bass Point, Nahant, John Lamphier, seventeen years old, was drowned in plain sight of several hundred cottagers on shore. The youth's death came as the result of his attempt to put out in a leaky rowboat to rescue two youngsters who were in peril on a water-logged raft.

Lamphier, who lived on Sea View road, Nahant, was on shore when the two boys on the raft began signalling for help. He leaped in the first rowboat he could find and started to the rescue.

RESCUE TWO ON RAFT.

Joseph Cox and John W. Weeks started to his rescue in another boat when his craft sank. At the same time Raymond Watt leaped from the pier and swam toward him. The trio reached him simultaneously and succeeded in dragging him ashore. Protracted efforts with a pulmotor, however, failed to revive him.

The two boys on the raft, William Sampson and Thomas Fanalori, were rescued a few moments later.

Pearle Burdick, seventeen-year-old senior at Killingly High School, Danielson, Conn., was drowned in Webster Lake, Worcester, in sight of a number of his school companions. They had been enjoying a picnic on the shore of the lake. Burdick sank suddenly before his comrades could go to his aid. Burdick was to have graduated next week.

NEW YOUTH OF McCORMICK PUT AT 6 MONTHS

Harold F. McCormick, the Chicago millionaire who underwent an operation to recover his lost youth, will find Old Age, which he thought to have postponed indefinitely creeping back on him within six months.

The glands which were transplanted into his body will, because of the intricacies of the surgical operation lose their patency in that length of time and the millionaire will find himself again worn out and old.

This is the prediction made by Dr. A. F. Christian of the Back Bay, who has made extensive researches in gland transplantation.

"Assuming that the transplanting operation was a success—and it should be—at most Mr. McCormick will be given a brief six months only the ability to love and express the love that was surrendered by the younger man," said Dr. Christian.

The young man who sold his glands to McCormick for a sum reported to be $500 is likened by the physician to Esau, selling his birthright for a mess of pottage.

IS AKIN TO MURDER.

"Not only is the millionaire unwise," continued the doctor, "but the young and virile man who sold his right to love for a paltry $500 is considerably more of a fool—he is apparently basely ignorant of the value of love and the ability to love."

Other local physicians expressed similar views. Dr. Lily Owen Burbank of Huntington avenue said she believed the operation entirely possible, but declared it was unfair to rob youth in order to bolster up the tottering footsteps of old age. "It is unfair, wrong, murder, if a millionaire can buy another man's youth and life with dolars," she said.

Mr. McCormick, said Dr. Christian, will feel young, vigorous and rejuvenated when he emerges from the hospital. For about six months he will have the feeling of well-being.

MISERY WILL FOLLOW.

"After that? I can foresee naught but misery," continued Dr. Christian.

"This transplanting of human glands is new, I agree.

"I cannot concur with other authorities, including the Chicago surgeon, that the transplanting of a human "love gland" will prove one whit more beneficial than if the gland of an animal had been given to the millionaire.

"The 'love gland' of a monkey might well have been used. The period of temporary rejuvenation would be the same.

"I am sure that sex in animals can be changed by transplanting of organs. Hens can be made into roosters and roosters into hens. The change can be effected in all varieties of animals.

"Because man is on a so much higher psychic plane, the transplanting of animal glands into his body would have no effect upon his usual thoughts, mannerisms or his actions.

DECRIED BY DOCTORS.

"To make a man cut 'monkey shines' by transplanting monkey glands, is farcial, impossible. To effect such a change would require the transfer of all the vital organs. It can't be done.

"The lay public may well be assured that Man will always be Man and Monkeys always Monkeys."

Dr. James W. Manary, surgeon at the Boston City Hospital, said: "I fail to see how it will be of help to the patient. There has been a great deal of talk in the last few years about transplanting the glands of monkeys and other animals to human beings, but this is the first case I have ever heard of where the glands of one man were transferred to another."

Operation Is Doomed to Failure, Says Specialist

Chicago, June 19.—The "Fountain of Youth" sought by Harold McCormick will prove as illusory as did the one for which Ponce de Leon hunted centuries ago in the everglades of Florida.

Such at least is the belief of Dr. Arthur F. Schuettler of Chicago, who for many years has specialized in the process of rejuvenation.

"It is absurd to believe that any organ can be taken from the body of one man or animal and made to function in another body," said Dr. Schuettler.

"If this doubtful treatment had been established as scientifically effective it would be a most common operation because of its vast importance. The gland treatment has failed," concluded the doctor.

Walska Ignorant of Gland Operation

By Universal Service.

Paris, June 19.—If Harold F. McCormick sent his cable announcing "operation successful; much love," to Ganna Walska Cochran, as reported, she had not received it when interviewed today.

"I have heard nothing of any operation performed on Harold F. McCormick," declared the singer. "He was to have started to Europe for his daughter, Mathilde's marriage, last week, but was taken ill and prevented from sailing. That, doubtless, gave rise to the silly reports."

Love Will Find a Way, and So They Are Married

DR. J. H. SELIB.

Despite annoyances of a rival who demanded the return of a $900 solitaire from the girl, Dr. Selib, a Dorchester dentist, went through with the ceremony that won him the idol of his heart.

C. L. U. TO SEND AID TO STRIKING MINERS

Following an address by Lawrence Dwyer, member of the international executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, members of the Boston Central Labor Union adopted measures for aiding the striking miners. Dwyer said that in West Virginia more than 80,000 people are living in tents and are depending on outside assistance for their food.

GETS $900 RING BUT LOSES GIRL TO RIVAL

After several days of strife over a $900 diamond ring and other gifts to his prospective bride by a former admirer, Dr. Joseph Henry Selib, a Dorchester dentist, has succeeded in marrying Miss Bernadine F. Sturman at the Powers Hotel in Rochester, N. Y.

Dr. Selib went to Rochester last week to wed Miss Sturman. Fifty invitations were sent out. Friday, Morris M. Minsker, treasurer of the Jamestown (N. Y.) Iron and Metal Company, appeared, with proceedings to get a diamond ring and other gifts he declared he gave the girl at the time of their engagement in 1920. Since then the Jamestown man declares he has spent a small fortune in telegrams and letters in his attempt to recover the solitaire.

Service of court papers on Miss Sturman last week was difficult. She barricaded herself in her home and refused to see either her former sweetheart or the deputies. A maid informed all callers that Miss Sturman's marriage had already taken place and that the couple had left for Canada on their honeymoon.

Finally Minsker, with three sheriffs, drove to the Sturman home. Minsker remained in the motor car while the sheriffs went to the front door and heard the same story from the maid that Dr. Selib and his bride had felt on their honeymoon.

As the deputies were talking to the maid, Minsker saw his former fiancee leave the house by the rear door. He shouted to the sheriffs and the girl hurriedly returned to the house. One sheriff, however, made a quick dash to the house and shoved his foot against the door, keeping those inside from closing it.

The male members of the wedding party inside the house took a hand, but the sheriff won and the papers were served. A few minutes later the Jamestown man climbed aboard a train with the diamond ring dangling from his watch chain.

Dr. Selib and Miss Sturman, very happy, went to the Powers Hotel for the wedding festivities.

MAIL DRIVER IS ARRESTED IN WILD CHASE

A wild automobile chase through downtown streets, which started when an alleged intoxicated driver guided his U. S. mail truck into a touring car, skated across a sidewalk and then sped towards Back Bay, ended when his machine crashed into the curbing by the Selwyn Theatre, smashed two wheels and came to a halt.

Two police officers in a commandeered taxi pursued him from his starting point. They arrested him on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He gave his name as Cornelius Moylan of Malden.

DRIVING AT HIGH SPEED.

Moylan was driving his truck along Washington street at a high rate of speed, according to witnesses, when he struck the touring car of Straty Sculos of No. 37 Clinton street, Framingham, which was parked at Washington and Kneeland streets.

The driver did not stop, but increased his speed and turned into Eliot street, while the two officers climbed into a taxi to chase him. In making the turn he drove on the sidewalk, knocking over a post which bore a sign dedicating the square to Michael J. Breen, and smashing a cigar store window.

SCURRY TO COVER.

Going down Eliot street he increased his speed to a terrific rate. Pedestrians scurried to cover, while other motorists pulled into the curb in alarm. When Moylan tried to turn into Columbus avenue he skidded and his car swept sidewise against the curb by the theatre.

One rear wheel splintered to fragments, while the other cracked and dropped its tire. The truck halted, the officers pulled up and Moylan was placed under arrest.

McCORMICK PAID $50,000 FOR GLANDS

print, exclusively, on Saturday morning, the story of McCormick's operation, and its nature, nurses, internes and clerks are under strict orders that it means their jobs to discuss the patient or the case in the smallest detail.

Five minutes after he had seen these papers that storm broke. It left Dr. E. S. Gilmore, superintendent of the hospital, in a state bordering on nervous collapse.

And in spite of the tightening of the coils of espionage and superfurther details of the preparation for the operation, its actual consummation and the almost hour by hour vision, the American was able to get incidents that have followed.

It was two months ago that Mr. McCormick first conceived the idea of the gland operation and took it up with Dr. Lespinasse at his North Side home. It was then that the preliminary examinations were made and the commission given to Dr. Lespinasse to start negotiations for a man willing to sell his glands that the multi-millionaire might carry out his hope of rejuvenation.

"VICTIM" MEETS TESTS.

From that date, it is said, a number of candidates were examined and their blood tested, that glands might be selected which would be most similar to those of Mr. McCormick, and most liable to function and thrive when transplanted.

Three weeks ago, it is said, a proper candidate was found and the agreement reached by which he agreed to sell a part of his body to the multi-millionaire, though even the candidate did not know who was to be the purchaser.

No one, until this time, knew anything of the proposed operation except Mr. McCormick, Dr. Lespinasse, and the man who was to sell, and only Mr. McCormick and the doctor knew of the details.

Then Dr. Lespinasse and Mr. McCormick went to the Wesley Hospital and inspected it. The sixth floor suite was decided to be a suitable one and arrangements were made to take it over, though it had then been decided that the actual operation would not take place until June 12.

STRICT SECRECY KEPT.

Two internes, who had completed their actual period of work in the hospital, but who were remaining on through the Summer for additional experience, preparatory to actively entering the profession, were chosen as assistants.

Three days before the operation, on or about June 9, one certain section on the sixth floor was fenced off and walled in. There was one chamber for the patient. Then, side by side, but with a partition separating them, so that the patient in one could not see into the other.

Two other rooms were set aside, one for the internes and one for the three nurses, who were called in and told that their case was one of extreme importance "to themselves and the hospital, as well as to the patient," and that they would, from the time they went on the case, remain in the suite at all times, and even after they did leave, when the case had been completed, to refrain from talking of it.

OPERATION NOT UNCOMMON.

Sunday night, June 11, a large black limousine drew up to the main entrance. Two men got out. One was Dr. Lespinasse, the other Mr. McCormick. They went directly to the sixth floor section.

Early Monday morning a special nurse arrived. She is said to have been Dr. Lespinasse' trained and trusted aide. From conversation between her and Dr. Lespinasse, others in the suite gathered that the McCormick operation is not the first of similar nature among wealthy patients of the doctor.

DONE IN HALF HOUR.

At 11 o'clock Monday night, June 12, Dr. Lespinasse personally administered a local anaesthetic to Mr. McCormick. From that time until 11:30 he moved rapidly between the two operating rooms, and at 11:30 the operation was said to have been completed.

Neither the interne in Mr. McCormick's room, nor the nurses there knew the source of the gland they saw transplanted to Mr. McCormick. Dr. Lespinasse, his unnamed nurse and the interne and nurse in the other operating room knew where the gland came from, but only, Dr. Lespinasse's secret nurse knew the story of both sides of the partition. Whether the second operation room held man or monkey is still a mystery.

At four o'clock Monday afternoon Dr. Lespinasse called one of the internes and told him to sterlize his instruments with extreme care.

The interne who was on duty from that time in the room where Mr. McCormick was operated on did not see the other interne from that afternoon on.

From the time Mr. McCormick was placed back in his bed he remained prostrate until Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Dr. Lespinasse made two or three trips daily to visit his patient, but no one else left the suite of rooms and no visitors, not even members of Mr. McCormick's family were admitted.

Even the cleaning and the removing of dishes after the specialty prepared food had been brought to the door, was performed by the nurses and internes. It is not known even if the McCormick family knew of the operation.

Saturday night Dr. Lespinasse again visited the hospital and suggested that a formal statement, telling the whole story, be made, to "forestall needless comment and conjecture that was bound to follow an operation on a man of such prominence." Mr. McCormick, however, was adamant. Dr. Lespinasse left.

Then Sunday morning before Dr. Lespinasse arrived, Mr. McCormick sent for all the papers—demanding them. One of those present in the room later described the ensuing laguage as "vividly descriptive and vividly vile."

Tamed the "Wild Women," but It Was Big Job

Bedford, N. Y., June 19.—A report of the State Prison Commission on its investigation of the State Reformatory for Women here shows Major Amos T. Baker, the superintendent, has been able to tame the institution's "wild women."

It finds, however, that too much work is being put upon the superintendent for one man, and that "he is on duty practically twenty-four hours each day."

DORCHESTER MAN FIGHTS TO SAVE HIS PARENTS

Nubar Gulumian of No. 87 Kirwin street, Dorchester, World War veteran, is waging a battle in the New York Federal courts to prevent the deportation to Constantinople of his parents and little sister.

They arrived after the quota from Turkey had been exhausted.

ASTOR DIVORCE ACTION DENIED BY MOTHER

New York, June 19.—Vincent Astor's mother-in-law, Mrs. Robert P. Huntington, declared at her home in Staatsburgh, N. Y.:

"What outrageous lies are these reports that my daughter, Helen Dinsmore Astor, is going to divorce Vincent!

"I am Helen's mother, and I certainly would be the first one to know if Helen contemplated a divorce. I have heard nothing about it.

"It is an outrageous report!"

Both Vincent Astor and his wife are in Paris. Cabled dispatches reported she was suing for divorce.

RUM SALES ON U. S. LINER $2,000 FOR THE VOYAGE

New York, June 19.—The price of drinks are reaching pre-war level according to satisfied passengers landing here from the United States line steamer America, proudly brandishing a wine list that showed Mumm's Gordon Rouge (1911) at $5 a quart.

Rye and bourbon—even the longed-for Haig and Haig—cost only 20 cents a shot. Though the America had only a small passenger list $2,000 was taken in wine sales during the trip from Europe.

Artist About to Be Evicted Learns He Won Big Prize

New York, June 19.—Just as he was about to be evicted from his home for failure to pay the rent, Alfred Floegel was informed that he had been awarded the Prix de Rome which carries with it $1,000 income for each of three years and an opportunity to travel abroad.

Mr. Floegel's story of starvation to fame in seven years rivals a movie plot. The buckles on his suspenders rivaling the seat of his trousers in shininess. Mr. Floegel said he had been awarded the Prix de Rome for his masterpiece "music" on which he worked for five months.

U. S. HISTORIES DEFEND ACTS OF BRITISH

Writers Confess Inability to Fix Cause of the Revolutionary War

Did you know that in the battle of Bunker Hill British pluck triumphed? It must be so, for it is so stated in Barnes' "American" history. Also in the McLaughlin and Vantyne "American" history.

Are you aware of the fact that some of our early patriots were nothing but criminals; that the Boston Tea Party was nothing but a disorderly riot; that to this day it is not easy to say why the colonies felt so dissatisfied; that there is little use in trying to find whose fault it was that the Revolutionary Was began?

If you do not know these illuminating facts, it is because you do not read the "American" histories of McLaughlin and Vantyne, West, Hart, Barnes, Gitteau, Gardy, Magruder, Morris and Woodburn and Moran.

PATRIOTS BELITTLED.

Texts from the above school histories used in the United States are examined at great length and roundly scored in an investigation just concluded in New York City. It was made by the Department of Education, and in a report issued it is charged that "no advocate could plead the British cause in a more partisan spirit" than is done in some of these textbooks.

It is sharged in the report that the authorities have belittled American patriots, and have been guilty of "inadequate, false and narrow accounts of stirring events of the colonial and revolutionary period."

Among the things criticized in various of these "American" histories are the following:

Dismissal of the Declaration of Independence with sneers as to its wording and no recognition of its inspiring power and world-wide consequences.

APOLOGY FOR ARNOLD.

Pro-British accounts of the burning of the Gaspee, the Boston Massacre and the Boston Tea Party.

Too great emphasis on the faults of the Continental Congress without appreciation of their services.

Distorted pictures of revolutionary heroes due to exaggeration and dragging in gratuitously their alleged defects and foibles.

Apologies for the conduct of Benedict Arnold.

The representation of Hancock and other colonists as criminals because they engaged in smuggling, without showing they were resisting tyrannous laws.

Of the account given by West of the causes of the Revolutionary War, the committee says:

"The writer is constantly finding defence for the course taken by the British Government. The American side of the argument is entirely ignored."

BRITISH PLUCK TRIUMPHED.

There is a long chapter on the Battle of Bunker Hill. The textbook passages examined include one from McLaughlin and Vantyne which says:

"But British pluck triumphed."

Also—

"To march, as those British soldiers did, straight up to the works, so near that each one felt the one who was aiming at him could not miss, required a nerve as steady as was ever shown on the battlefield." This one was culled from Barnes' "American" history. Commenting, the committee said:

"The historians have stressed the courage of the British soldiers so markedly that their account is in derogation of the courage of the Americans."

Several of the historians are censured because they mourn the fate of Andre and do not mention Nathan Hale. In general, they are criticized for failing to take large and comprehensive views and for exaggerating small points, usually to the disparagement of the Americans.

COAL STRIKERS WARN OF FAMINE DANGER

Washington, June 19.—The beginning of the twelfth week of the coal strike finds 650,000 striking miners more determined than before, a statement issued by the United Mine Workers of America says. There have been and will be breaks in the ranks, the statement declares. In the meantime the supply of coal in the country is diminishing at the rate of approximately 4,000,000 tons a week.

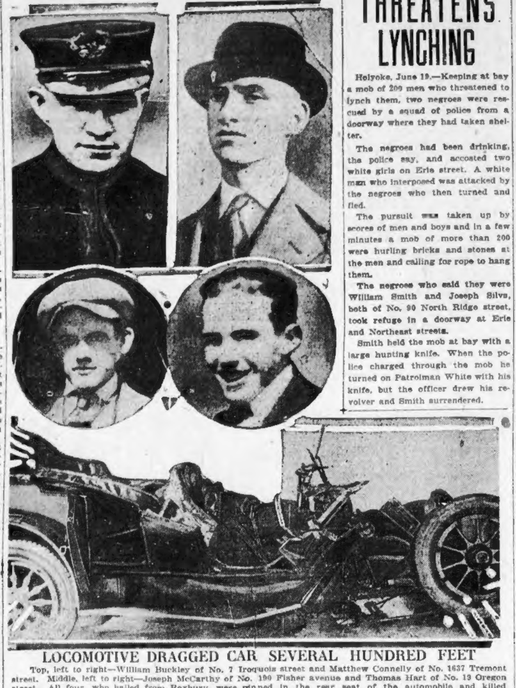
"Apparently the public has not yet awakened to the true situation in regard to its coal supply," says the statement "It will be impossible for the coal industry to catch up the production that has been lost in the last eleven weeks and next Winter is not far off.

"If the public actually realized the danger of this situation, it would compel the coal operators to live up to their agreement and meet with the miners for the purpose of negotiating a new wage contract that would again set the mines in motion."

BOSTON COLLEGE HOLDS CLASS DAY TOMORROW

Class Day at Boston College will be tomorrow afternoon at University Heights at 2.30 o'clock. The program will be opened by flag raising and the singing of the class songs. James H. Doyle, president of the senior class, will deliver the Mantle oration. Francis E. Magennis of Medford will deliver the Tower oration. The class prophecy will be read by Daniel McSweeney, and the class poem by James J. Connolly. The undergraduate classes will furnish entertainment, each putting on a burlesque act.

FOUR VICTIMS AND WRECKED AUTO



LOCOMOTIVE DRAGGED CAR SEVERAL HUNDRED FEET

FOUR KILLED AT 'SAFE' CROSSING

CONSIDERED SAFE.

"This was not considered a dangerous crossing," was his statement. "About a year ago there was a complete investigation made of several railroad crossings considered a menace to life. Orders were given the railroad officials by the Public Utilities Commisson to man all but the Russell steet crossing with crossing tenders. These orders were carried out."

The distict attorney said that reports that two other persons had been killed at the Russell street crossng this year were erroneous.

"There hasn't been a fatal accident there in ten years," he said.

Mr. Donnell said he would not start an investigation into the Sunday disaster unless requested to do so.

THE DEAD:

Joseph McCarthy, twenty-one years old, of No. 190 Fisher avenue; Thomas Hart, twenty-one, of No. 19 Oregon street; William Buckley, twenty-three, of No. 7 Iroquois street and Matthew Connelly, twenty-two, of No. 1637 Tremont street.

THE INJURED.

Leonard Coppenrath, twenty-two, of No. 1578½ Tremont street.

Charles Edmond Lewis, twenty, of No. 37 St. Alphonsus street, Roxbury.

They are in the J. B. Thomas Hospital, Peabody, Coppenrath, who was driving the car when the crash occurred, believed to have a fractured skull.

Seventeen other persons were injured in accidents over Sunday, a Peabody man and his wife with a young Russian girl, a recent arrival in the country, being hurt when their car skidded and overturned not far from the Russell street disaster.

THE INJURED

Miss Elina Armanian, twenty; cuts and bruises; and the four following persons are at the J. B. Thomas Hospital, Peabody:

Charles Lewis, nineteen years old, 37 St. Alphonsus street, Roxbury; fractured shoulder.

Leonard Coppenrath, twenty-one, No. 1578½ Tremont street, Roxbury, fractured jaw, lacerations of the scalp and cuts and bruises.

Albert Kilkinen, thirty-two, No. 23 Sherman street, Peabody; cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Lena Kilkinen, thirty; cuts and bruises.

Francis C. White, twenty-five, No. 41 Main street, Cambridge; cuts and bruises; Cambridge Relief Hospital.

John Janussi, fifty-eight; his daughter Mary, six; his wife Consetta, thirty-five, and Vito and Camilla Farfieo, both thirty years old, all of Spruce street, Winchester; cut about the face and hands; Cambridge Municipal Hospital.

Gilda Rocha, six, Somerville; cuts and bruises; Somerville Hospital.

Mrs. George I. Holland, No. 42 Amsden street, Arlington; cuts and bruises; taken to her home.

Patelo Colomio, twenty-one, Naples street, Worcester, fractured leg.

Mrs. Louis Callahan, thirty-four years old, No. 10 Navillus street, Dorchester, cuts and bruises.

Miss Louise Burke, No. 20 Tremont street, Lowell, fractured leg.

Nelson Gilbert, No. 62 Merrimack street, Lowell, fractured skull and wrist.

Will Hunt for Vast Gold Deposit in Belgian Congo

New York, June 19.—Seeking "a gold carpeted spring," which is said to be somewhere in the Belgian Congo, 600 miles from civilization's last outpost, eight men from Katonah, N. Y., sailed on the Majestic Saturday, it was learned today. Every effort had been made to keep the expedition secret.

The adventurers believe they will strike a gold deposit that will make the old Klondike look like a piker field. They are prepared to search for six months.

HOLYOKE MOB THREATENS LYNCHING

Holyoke, June 19.—Keeping at bay a mob of 200 men who threatened to lynch them, two negroes were rescued by a squad of police from a doorway where they had taken shelter.

The negroes had been drinking, the police say, and accosted two white girls on Erie street. A white man who interposed was attacked by the negroes who then turned and fled.

The pursuit was taken up by scores of men and boys and in a few minutes a mob of more than 200 were hurling bricks and stones at the men and calling for rope to hang them.

The negroes who said they were William Smith and Joseph Silva, both of No. 90 North Ridge street, took refuge in a doorway at Erie and Northeast streets.

Smith held the mob at bay with a large hunting knife. When the police charged through the mob he turned on Patrolman White with his knife, but the officer drew his revolver and Smith surrendered.

PEACEMAKER'S FACE SLASHED

Lawrence, June 19.—John Rea, No. 142 Common street, is in the Lawrence General Hospital with his face badly slashed, and three other Italians are under arrest, charged with assault and disturbing the peace.

Rea tried to act as peacemaker when Luigi Valenti, No. 159½ Common street, and Luigi Fragenti, No. 195 Oak street, started to settle their differences at Jackson and Common streets, near the entrance to the Lawrence Common.

The men commenced to fight with their fists, but when it developed into a knife duel, Rea interfered. Then Fragenti turned on him.

Pasquale Valendi, No. 116 Elm street, also got mixed up in the disturbance, and he was taken along by the police, who stopped the brawl about the time Rea was fainting from loss of blood.

CALL MEETING TO FORM NATIONAL LABOR PARTY

New York, June 19.—Resolutions adopted by the convention of the Minnesota State Farmer-Labor party calling a conference in Chicago in November, immediately after election, to form a national labor party, were made public here.

Filipinos Not Ready for Independence, Says Forbes

Hartford, Ct., June 19.—W. Cameron Forbes, former Governor-General of the Philippines, in an address before Trinity College graduates, said he did not think the Philippine Islands would be ready for independence for one or two generations.

"While the government at present appears to be stable on the islands," he said, "this is because our naval and military forces are there."

FRANCE TO BAN POLITICS AT THE HAGUE

By the Associated Press.

Paris, June 19.—France will take part in the conference at The Hague with the Russian delegates, beginning June 26, it was announced at the Foreign Office today. If political questions are introduced, however, the French delegates will withdraw.

The French delegates have received strict instructions to adhere to the French policy as outlined at Genoa. They will stick closely, it is stated, to the French contention that the Soviet authorities must recognize the principle of respecting foreign-owned private property and the payment of foreign debts.

The Russian delegation is expected to arrive a week from today to begin joint sessions with the mixed subcommissions representing the other European powers.

The popular antipathy to the number thirteen apparently is shared by the statesmen gathered here. M. Van Karnebeek has been approached privately by many delegates, who suggested that more than eleven members on each of the three subcommissions would be unwieldy. Besides, they believe there were enough rocks ahead without tempting the thirteen hoodoo—so eleven members only will be named.

Premier Lenine's illness, and reports of friction among the Soviet leaders, who are eager to take over his power, are intensifying the interest in the Russians.

MAKES 'SIGN OF HORNS'; BOY IS KILLED

By International News Service.

New York, June 19.—Because fourteen-year-old Reuben Harriton, unwittingly made the "sign of the horns," considered by the Latins as a direct insult, the boy is dead today in Bellevue Hospital.

The "sign of the horns" is made by putting the two first fingers of a hand near the nose. Reuben, who did not know that, proudly announced that he could whistle with two fingers. He placed the two first fingers in the mouth to demonstrate. An older boy, of Latin descent, thinking it was the "sign of the horns," rushed up and fired a blank cartridge at Reuben's jaw.

The woundc, shrdlu cmfwyp ulu spite receiving an injection of tetanus serum, lockjaw developed and the boy died. His assailant is held by the police.

GEN. G. W. B. MORRISON STRICKEN AT OTTAWA

Ottawa, Ont., June 19.—General G. W. B. Morrison, who commanded Canada's artillerymen in France, was stricken with paralysis today as he ran to enter an office building elevator. At St. Luke's Hospital his condition was said to be critical.

DISCUSS MORAL WELFARE AT CONVENTION

One hundred and fifty delegates to the Moral Welfare Conference of the Florence Crittenton League of Compassion in joint session of the fortieth annual convention of the Florence Crittenton Homes, gathered at the Twentieth Century Club today for the first of the three-day session.

Clarence R. Preston, member of the executive committee of the league, was chairman, and the conference was opened with an opening prayer by Right Rev. Samuel G. Babcock, D. D., suffragan Episcopal Bishop for Massachusetts.

Miss Irene Headley Armes, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A. of Boston, told of the work that institution is trying to do among young girls and women coming to Boston seeking work. Miss Mary E. Driscoll, New England supervisor for the United States Interdepartmental Board of Hygiene, spoke on the evil influences exerted by the public dances, some movies, "leg shows" and similar forms of entertainment.

Music was by the Girls' City Club at the luncheon, and the afternoon session was devoted to addresses by Dr. C. MacFie Campbell, director of the Boston Psychopathic Hospital, who spoke on "Feeble-Minded Sex Offenders"; Judge Jean H. Norris of the New York Women's Court, who talked on "Court Methods of Dealing With Sex Offenders," and Robert S. Barrett of Buenos Aires, South America, who spoke on "The Responsibility of the Business Man."

The conference will last until Wednesday afternoon.

$45,000,000 BRIDE THIEF VICTIM

Philadelphia, June 19.—Burglars broke into the "love nest" of Anastase Vonsiatskoy-Vonsiatsky and his $45,000,000 bride, who was formerly Mrs. Marion Ream Stephens, and stole several hundred dollars' worth of the bride's Paris lingerie.

For a time after the robbery was discovered by the police of the exclusive suburb, Ridley Park, it was believed spies sent by the first wife of the bridegroom had been responsible for the break.

That theory was abandoned when it was learned, on the return of the bride and bridegroom, who had been on an automobile trip, that the thief had taken quantities of the bride's belongings.

Among other things missing are twenty-seven dainty bits of underwear, of real lace, and imported from Paris. They were worth $700.

The robber got a fur coat valued at $500, a quantity of trinkets, and a beaded, cigarette case which was a gift of the brdie to the groom.

Mr. Vonsiatskoy-Vonsiatsky, a young mechanical engineer, is serving an apprenticeship at the Baldwin loomotive works in this city. He declined to discuss the robbery, saying it is "nothing to worry about."

INVENTOR'S WIFE SAYS HIS WIRES ANNOYED HER

Girl Swimming in Florida Killed by "Sea Tiger"

By Universal Service.

St. Petersburg, Fla., June 19.—A giant barracuda, known to Florida fishermen as the "tiger of the sea," attacked and killed Dorothy McClatchie, eighteen years old, member of the State champion swimming team of St. Petersburg High School. The tragedy occurred while Miss McClatchie was swimming in the ship channel of Tampa Bay opposite this city in company with her chum, Mary Buhner, seventeen, also a member of the championship team.

Miss Buhner, at the risk of her own life, held her companion with one arm while with the other she signalled to the shore, half a mile away, for help.

It is the first tragedy of the kind ever recorded in Florida waters.

FINGER MARKS ON MURDERED MAN'S THROAT

Chicago, June 19.—James E. Stroud of New York City, an electrician, was found murdered in the rear of No. 575 Sebor street here today.

There were black finger marks on his throat. His shoes were off, the laces having been cut and his hose were pulled down. His false teeth were lodged in his throat.

He carried a baggage ticket on the New York Central railroad from Albany, N. Y., to Des Moines, Ia. A slip of paper bearing the name of "Williams McLaughlin, No. 2154 Southwestern avenue," was found in his clothes. In his straw hat were the initials "J. E. S."

The victim had a railway ticket from Chicago to Des Moines.

One theory was that the victim was a resident of Albany and that he had been stopping at the McLaughlin home on his way West. He wore a gray suit, tan shoes and black hose. He was about five feet eight inches tall and weighed about 150 pounds.

VERMONT UNIVERSITY GIVES SIX DEGREES

Burlington, Vt., June 19.—The University of Vermont at its 118th commencement today conferred the honorary degrees of Doctor of Divinity on the Rt. Rev. George Williams Davenport, Episcopal Bishop of the Eastern Diocese of Maryland, and Doctor of Engineering on Major-General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the air service. Other degrees conferred were: Doctor of Laws—Henry Wallace Clark, lawyer, New York, and Charles Winfield Waterman, lawyer, Denver; Doctor of Letters—Dorothy Canfield Fisher, author, Arlington, Vt. and Lawrence Fraser Abbott, editor, New York.

FLAYS MOVE TO LINK KLAN AND FREEMASONRY

"No Room in U. S. for Men Who Wear Masks," Says N. Y. Grand Master

Nyack, N. Y., June 19.—Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins denounced the attempt to link Freemasonry with the activities of the Ku Klux Klan, in a statement issued here.

Justice Tompkins, who is Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons of New York State, said:

"Masonry cannot be the ally of this infamous organization and must be its enemy because the Ku Klux Klan is un-American in principle. Freemasonry has no sympathy with any movement, dogma or propaganda that antagonizes any class, creed, sect or race."

WOULD ENDANGER STANDING

Referring to the alleged scheme of Klan leaders to construct a nationwide secret organization aimed to eliminate members of the Roman Catholic church from public positions, particularly in the public schools, Justice Tompkins said:

"Should a Mason so far forget his obligations to his fraternity, his God, his country and his fellow-man as to become affiliated with this organization known as the Ku Klux Klan, his right to remain a member in good standing of the Masonic fraternity would be seriously questioned.

"The movement of the Ku Klux Klan is vicious, dangerous and repugnant to the ideals and traditions of the American people. Its existence is wholly unjustifiable in this nation, governed by law and generally well governed.

"It is pernicious in that it sets up false standards of citizenship. It is un-American in that it does not recognize the political equality of all races, colors and creeds.

FREEDOM FOR ALL.

"The Klan is composed of fanatics and religious bigots and should be denounced by every true Mason and loyal American. There should be no room in this country for men who wear masks.

"Freemasonry recognizes the right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of conscience. Freemasonry insists that all men, Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, have a right to their opinions and political and religious preferences."

FORE RIVER OFFICIAL DIES OF AUTO INJURIES

$6,000,000 IS LOSS IN BIG MILL STRKE

The Boston American is making a thorough and an impartial study of the textile strike centres of New England. The underlying causes, the issues involved, the progress of the strikes, the obstacles in the way of settlement and the peace outlook all are being considered.

The sixth of the series on the New Hampshire situation is printed herewith, and, in a few days, the strike stories of other localities will begin. Pains will be taken to make them careful and calm expositions of the real situations. Criticism of this series is invited. Tomorrow there will be another instalment on the New Hampshire situation.

By CHARLES O. POWER.

Manchester, N. H., June 19.—Today ushers in the nineteenth week of the big textile strike in New Hampshire. In the seven centres of trouble 24,000 operatives are loafing, 16,000 of them in this city.

Every business man in the seven cities and towns is anxious for a settlement of the strike. Every day it is prolonged means a loss that is a step nearer a daily deficit for merchants.

Every day means added fears and worries. There is ample evidence of this in all lines of business. Indeed it is not confined to business circles.

Two men on the train from Manchester to Concord were discussing the stike situation. One called the other doctor. Both deplored conditions and criticised the Amoskeag officials for refusing to listen to appeals for arbitration, for pursuing the policy of rule or ruin.

BAD BLOW TO MANCHESTER.

"This strike has been a bad blow to the community of Manchester," said the doctor, "and, even if it should be settled within the next week or so, the city would not recover from the effects of it for at least ten years."

"I quite agree with you," remarked the doctor's companion, "because it has interfered with my plans and affairs seriously and what is true in my case is, of course, true in the cases of many others who, like myself, have not a lot of working capital and depend largely upon cash sales to keep us going on a safe course. We are keeping on hand a reduced supply to meet the reduced demand, but, if they do not get together and settle this thing pretty soon, we are going to have a hard time trying to meet expenses."

There are some things everybody needs that can be bought just now for less money in Manchester stores than in the stores of big cities. This applies to wearing apparel, but not to food. The proof is this story told by a Boston business man, who passed through Manchester on an automobile trip.

SOME PRICES LOWER.

"Week before last the clever advertisements of a bargain sale of men's underwear, put out by one of the big stores in New York city lured me into the place," said he, "and, among other things, I bought two suits of underwear made by a Massachusetts company. Discriminating folks know that nothing wears better or feels better than this particular brand of union suit.

"Knowing that, because of its excellence, it commands a fairly good price, I paid willingly $2.50 per suit, and it seemed to me I had paid more in times past. This morning I discovered that, in packing my bags, I had forgotten to put in my union suits. So I consulted the store windows and finally went to one of the better class stores right here in Manchester. I was shown various styles and, finally, asked if the store kept my favorite brand.

"The clerk said it did, but there had not been much call for such class lately; that, while business was fair, it was not what it should be, by a long shot; and that the largest volume of buying was in the lower priced merchandise. He found the box and I asked the price. What do you know? There were just two suits of my size and he said I could have them for $2 per each. I took 'em, wishing there were more.

$6,000,000 LOSS.

"'You've been having quite a strike here,' I said to the clerk, just to be chummy.

"'You'd know it, all right, if you lived here,' he shot back at me. 'Eighteen weeks of it. I read in the Boston American that the weekly loss in wages is $350,000 a week. I understand it is closer to $400,000. Figure that out and see if it does not show a loss of more than $6,000,000 in purchasing power. Outsiders are not coming to Manchester to boost trade and insiders can't do it. There you are. Hence the demand, such as it is, for low-priced goods. And millions lost, they say, never come back.'

"That's what the clerk said to me, and it gave me something to think about, gave me a better realization of how a community suffers from a long-drawn-out strike. A clerk who sold me some soft collars for less than I have been paying for them in my own favorite store, talked to me in the same strain when I started him on an explanation of business conditions."

INNOCENT THIRD PARTY.

That is the story the Boston motorist told. He is thinking it over. He never has had much use for strikers. They were trouble makers and deserved little sympathy. But he is not quite so sure about it now. He says the Manchester case has given him a new slant on the question of guilt in industrial disputes.

The case of the innocent third party has been put up to him; he has bumped into the rights of the business community. He is of that very element, in a city blessed with varied industries and comparatively free from strikes; and he has learned that the strikers are willing to arbitrate the Manchester troubles while the Amoskeag officials spurn the suggestion. Which emphasizes the slighting of the community factor.

That is what happened to one Boston business man who would a-motoring go from his happy home in a Boston suburb through the White Mountain State. Business men and strikers of Manchester pray that a like experience befall many another man of the same school. They feel that it would hasten the coming of an effective public opinion whose force would be as potent with the magnates as with the operatives.

ANXIOUS FOR SETTLEMENT.

Every strike leader is anxious for a settlement and speedy return to work. As they but reflect the sentiment of the rank and file, their attitude indicates that every striker is anxious to resume employment. Only Dumaine—Frederick Christopher—trustee, treasurer and big chief of Amoskeag, composite representative of the powerful board of twelve, is stubborn and deaf to every appeal for a word of hope and encouragement.

The cave of Adullam was no more secure and safe as a hiding place for David from the hunting Philistines than the offices in the Ames building, Boston, for Dumaine and the twelve trustees of Amoskeag. No appeals can reach them there. To that retreat public opinion publicity cannot penetrate if it is counter to the brand meet for the approval of the Amoskeag masters.

There, undisturbed and unruffled by knowledge of what others may think, they may brood over "Southern competition" and "narrow margin of profits" and the "life and death" struggle to operate the Amoskeag plant on a paying basis unless hours of labor are increased from 48 to 54 a week, wages cut 20 per cent, and the amount of spindle care per operative added to by from 10 to 20 per cent.

AMOSKEAG'S PROFITS.

That the value of the goods produced in mills by wage earners in the North is higher than in the South, and is increasing steadily and more rapidly in the North than in the South, is proved by the latest United States census report. Nothing in that indicates a life and death struggle to operate the Northern mills profitably. What constitutes profitable mill operating? Here is some information from Amoskeag reports relative to the company's receipts and profits:

The 1907 receipts from sales were $17,879,642, net profit $1,232,667; 1908 receipts $16,109,124, profit $1,250,655; 1909, receipts $16,966,991, profit $782,418; 1910, receipts $20,477,136, profit $760,967; 1911, receipts $21,659,339, profit $721,825; 1912, receipts $20,766,798, profit $1,622,752; 1913, receipts $21,517,017, profit $1,580,826; 1914, receipts $20,658,269, profit $1,541,287; 1915, receipts $19,124,682, profit $1,597,513; 1916, receipts $20,634,294, profit $1,697,581; 1917, receipts $30,439,215, profit $1,852,009; 1918, receipts $49,458,082, profit $5,571,081; 1919, receipts $44,055,912, profit $8,463,346; 1920, receipts $56,319,935, profit $4,868,118; 1921, receipts $31,287,074, profit $1,722,647.

In this array of figures what is found? A tremendous jump in sales and profits in the war years of 1917 and 1918, still higher in 1919 and 1920 on the journey back to normalcy, and more business and profit last year than in any other normal year of the Amoskeag's life.

It will be noticed that, while the receipts in 1919 are about $5,000,000 less than in 1918, the net profit is about $3,000,000 more, and that, while the receipts in 1920 were $12,000,000 more than in 1919, the net profit was almost $4,000,000 less. It would be real interesting to have the Amoskeag experts explain.

Of course, there is a drop from the war years and the immediate post war years in Amoskeag business. But that company is not alone in that respect. It was to be expected that the war business would be excessive and the price of Amoskeag products would show an increased percentage of profit. It was not to be expected that the war prices and profits could go on forever. That would be gross profiteering and profiteering is so obnoxious to our government that Attorney-General Daugherty, with the approval of President Harding, it is said, and a special appropriation of $500,000 from Congress, is going to get after every suspected war profiteer with a very sharp stick.

STRIKE LEADERS' CLAIMS.

As an offset to the Amoskeag wail about the ghosts of fleeting profits which haunt the dreams of the trustees, it is but fair to place these claims of the strike leaders:

That in 1921 cotton mill wages, both in the North and the South were further below wages in all other industries than in 1914.

Tomorrow Robert P. Bass, of Peterboro, former Governor, will talk to the people of New Hampshire about the textile strike through the medium of an interview with the representative of the Boston American.

MARTIAL at Armand uses printed chiffon in silver and black for an evening gown showing the classic influence. The skirt is fringed with black monkey fur and black jet makes the shoulder straps and girdle ornament.

LACE is decidedly "in" this Summer so far as Paris is concerned. It is used for entire frocks as well as for trimming. In the gown at the right, mauve chiffon crepe is decorated with insets of cerise lace, a curious color arrangement, but a very successful one. The cerise velvet cords are amusing.

BLIND LAWYER SAW WIFE ONLY AS CHILD

By GRACE DESCHAMPS.

"No, I haven't seen my wife since she was a little kid about five or six years old. And I've never seen my children."

The man who spoke smiled as he talked. There was nothing in his voice to indicate the unhappy husband. In fact, as he gathered up his nine-year-old daughter on his lap, there seemed between them a camaraderie uncommon between father and child.

"You see," the man went on, "I became stone blind back in 1901, and I wasn't married until nearly ten years later. I had known my wife when she was a little girl, but I hadn't met her in the intervening years.

"Are we happy? Well, well, well!"

Even the youngster on his lap seemed to catch part of her father's expressive grin.

John D. W. Bodfish, one of the foremost attorneys in the State, and a candidate for Attorney-General, was being interviewed about his remarkable career.

MARVELOUS MEMORY.

Incidentally, Bodfish is credited with the finest memory in the country.

He acquired it in the bleak years that followed the tragedy that overtook him while a young man about to begin a teaching career, when he gave up the principalship of a school and made his way to a lonely little farm on the Cape, unable to meet the pity that well-meaning friends would have visited upon him.

Now he goes to court without notes of any kind, relying upon a memory that has never failed him, and proceeds to try his cases without a single reference to data of any kind.

"How did I do it?" repeated Bodfish. "Oh, that's easy! A man can do ANYTHING when he HAS to. Well, I had to, that's all.

WORK LED TO LIGHT.

"Back on the little poultry farm I bought when I had to give up my school, I nearly lost my mind. There was nothing ahead of me that I could see except darkness. Just a sort of an imbecilic life, groping around in the night and trying to raise blue-blooded chicks that I couldn't even see.

"Monotony was beating me out, and I knew I'd have to find light somewhere or lose out."

"Finding the light" for Bodfish consisted of applying himself to the four systems of reading and writing invented for the blind and coming out thoroughly familiar with all of them, including the Braille system, New York point, line type and moon type. For recreation he learned the broom-making, cane-seating and carpet-weaving trades.

After accepting the superintendency of a school for the blind in Delaware, the restless Cape Codder turned his thoughts to new territory.

HEADED HIS CLASS.

"About this time a relative left my wife a little legacy and we decided that I would go to law school, since she would be able to get along on the legacy," continued Bodfish.

"I entered Boston University Law School in the Fall of 1911, and graduated in 1914."

Here's where Bodfish forgot to mention that he was graduated at the head of his class and that he worked his way through.

"I was admitted to the bar in 1915," he resumed, "and came back here to my cranberry bogs in my home town of Hyannis.

"That's just about the whole of it. I started a law practice and have been here ever since, except the three years I was a member of the Constitutional Convention.

"Oh, yes—and except that during those uphill years there was a lady"

"Yes, yes?" prompted the reporter.

"—who furnished all the sunlight anyone could want. That was my wife."

LAUDS PUBLICITY.

Incidentally, there are three little Bodfish sunbeams now—Abbie, nine; Pearl, six, and John, four. They are solid behind their dad, too, in the campaign for attorney-general.

Bodfish did not talk politics, but hinted that there were "other counties besides Middlesex and Suffolk that could stand a little dusting."

There's just one other comment he made. It's from a conservative man to the folks who think a newspaper has no province beyond publishing scandal.

"One of the best things a smug community can have," says Bodfish. "When you've a damp, evil-smelling cellar, a good dose of sunlight cleans it up—just like a good dose of publicity on unhealthy conditions. Acts just the same way."

HONEST BAGGAGEMAN RETURNS LOST WALLET

An example of honesty occurred when John Cronin of Jamaica Plain, a baggageman at the South Station, found and returned to its owner a wallet containing $160 in bills and valuable papers. He was alone when he found it and requested time to take it to the home of Clarence Adams, a Roxbury undertaker, the owner. Adams liberally rewarded him.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

ARREST TWO ON LIQUOR CHARGE AFTER FIGHT

William Brown, thirty years old, and Fay Grigley, twenty years old, were arrested at No. 877 Harrison avenue today after a free-for-all fight with Liquor Officers David McCarthy and Martin Conroy of the East Dedham Street Police Station. Razors and clubs played a prominent part in the fight.

Officers McCarthy and Conroy, disguised as bootleggers, gained admittance to the building and asked for liquor. Brown brought out some moonshine, according to the officers, and they paid for the liquor with two marked one dollar bills, then announced that they were police officers.

The fight followed, but the officers subdued the two men and brought them to the station house.

REFUSES TO BECOME MUSICIAN, DISAPPEARS

Rebelling against the desire of his mother to make a musician of him, seventeen-year-old Eric Nitzscke of No. 36 Broadway, Chelsea, has left home for the New Hampshire woods to become a lumberjack.

Mrs. Nitzscke asked the police to look for him, saying she wanted him to study music, but that he would not, and that she believes he has left for some logging camp.

MRS. LULA VANN FULTON, ARK,

Suggests to Suffering Women the Road to Health

Fulton, Arkansas.—"I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a soreness in my side. I would suffer so badly every month from my waist down that I could not be on my feet half the time. I was not able to do my work without help. I saw your Vegetable Compound advertised in a newspaper and gave it a fair trial. Now I am able to do my work and don't even have a backache every month. I cannot praise your Vegetable Compound enough and highly recommend it to those who have troubles like mine. I am willing for these facts to be used as a testimonial to lead all who suffer with female troubles, as I did, to the right road to health."—Mrs. LULA VANN, Box 43, Fulton, Arkansas.

It's this sort of praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, given by word of mouth and by letter, one woman to another, that should cause you to consider taking this well-known medicine, if you are troubled with such symptoms as painful periods, weak, nervous feelings, miserable pains in your back, and cannot work at certain times.

PROSECUTIONS IN TUFTS RIOT ABANDONED

Investigation by officials of the Somerville Fire Department into the near-riot which followed efforts of the firemen to extinguish a bonfire which Tufts College students had built in celebration of their victory over Harvard, disclosed that 150 feet of hose, costing $1.10 a foot, had been cut and rendered useless in the mixup.

While the police were collecting evidence and names of parties involved, and were deliberating as to the wisdom of instituting prosecutions for malicious destruction of property, Fire Chief S. W. Rich made an attempt to get in touch with Tufts College officials.

He finally located Professor Frank G. Wrenn, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, and told him of the situation. Professor Wrenn admitted that the college was in large part responsible for the destruction of the hose, and ended by promising him that the loss would be made good.

The police accordingly dropped the case.

Trouble started when sparks from the bonfire endangered surrounding dwellings. When the firemen turned water on the fire, the crowd attacked them and tried to prevent the quenching of the fire. It was during the mixup that the hose was cut.

Sergeant Thomas P. Walsh was tripped and kicked during the melee and was obliged to fire three shots into the ground to disperse the young men who had surrounded him.

CHEAP ICE STATIONS ARE OPENED TODAY

Cash and carry ice stations which will sell 100 pounds of ice for 25 cents open today in four sections of the city. This announcement was made by George H. Voter, who is working with authority from Mayor Curley. The stations are to be located at the following places: North square, North End; Emerson, H and Third streets, South Boston; Day square and Gove street, between Orleans street and railroad, East Boston; Brighton street, West End. Ice will be donated to the needy families by the various ice companies of the city.

LIQUOR KILLS 2 WOMEN; 6 ARE NEAR DEATH

Norfolk, Va., June 19.—Mara Savage and Mabel Drummond, negroes, are dead and six other negro women are in a serious condition following a drinking party in which they are believed to have drunk liquor containing wood alcohol.

Paul Wright, who is declared to have sold the liquor to the women, is under arrest on two charges of murder. Annie Johnson is accused of being an accessory in both cases.

CONVICT FLEES SING SING PRISON

By Universal Service.

Ossining, June 19.—Sing Sing's siren aroused the countryside proclaiming the disappearance of Charles Greer, alias John Kelly, twenty-three, serving a twenty-year sentence for a murder in Westchester County.

Greer was in a cell block that consists of six tiers. How he could escape from there is mystifying. One theory, that he had climbed through a trap door in the roof, was discounted as almost a physical impossibility.

They also said he could not have been smuggled out, as nothing was shipped from the prison. Assuming he escaped by the trapdoor in the roof, he would have had a ten-foot jump to the residence occupied by Warden Lawes. This house is outside the wall.

The siren blew for fifteen minutes. Prison guards, led by Warden Lawes, State troopers in automobiles and a detachment of the Ossining police, joined in the search. Special patrols were assigned to the country estates of Frank A. Vanderlip, William and John D. Rockefeller and James Speyer. These estates are heavily wooded.

FREEDOM FROM MARRIAGE FOR WOMEN URGED

New York, June 19.—The new woman—the free woman—is being championed with much success by Mrs. Harriet Luella McCollum of Brooklyn, recently of Kansas City, Kan. Mrs. McCollum, who lectures on applied psychology, boldly attacks marriage in its present form.

She said today:

"I believe a woman should keep her own name after her marriage. If I were a conventional woman I would be known as Mrs. Grosow, which was my husband's name.

"Children should take which ever parent's name they prefer, be called after the parent they love best. My children took my name.

FOR LIMITED MARRIAGE.

"Why should women marry for a lifetime because they have the maternal instinct? If a woman makes her intention of becoming a mother and not remaining a wife, that is her right. Many women do not care to live as wives for a lifetime.

"There is no danger that men will lose anything as woman gains in freedom. A husband gains with his wife. If he loved her as an individual he will not wish to change her to a nonenity.

"Man is naturally more aggressive than woman and women will always receive a certain amount of protection from men because they are essentially of a more sensitive nature.

"My daughter Marion, who goes by her own name, will go to art school next Winter and the following Autumn she will leave her husband for a year and go to Europe to study art and her husband fully approves. This is as the modern marriage should be—freedom on the part of both to live their own lives.

MEN BECOME ABNORMAL.

"My grandmother married at fifteen and on her wedding day her husband handed her the Bible and ordered her to read the passage where St. Paul says 'Wives, submit yourselves unto your husbands.' That sentence typifies her life. She hated her husband as long as she lived.

"The constant counseling of men through their over-emphasis on sex has made them abnormal. Sensitive, refined women, while wishing to be mothers, often do not care to be wives over a long period of years.

"Every girl should have a gainful occupation that she may remain alert and self-reliant and independent whenever she wants to be. And first of all women must eradicate fear from their minds. To do this they must re-educate their atomatic or sub-conscious minds — which means a lifetime of the study of psychology."

SOVIET OFFICIALS AND INTERNATIONALE CLASH

Copenhagen, June 19.—Dissensions have broken out between Soviet officials at Moscow and the executive committee of the Third Internationale, according to a dispatch printed here today. Soviet officials demanded an explanation of the disbursement of 30,000,000 gold rubles by the Third Internationale. The explanation was unsatisfactory.

Betty Alden Says Natalie Hammond Makes Society Debut This Fall

MISS NATALIE HAMMOND

Well known to the younger set on the North Shore is Miss Natalie Hammond, daughter of the John Hays Hammonds of Washington and Gloucester. Miss Hammond is to be presented this coming season.

By BETTY ALDEN.

FOR another season "Lookout Hill," the Gloucester Summer estate of the John Hays Hammonds, is to be without a master or mistress.

Last season the Hammonds were abroad, I believe, and this Summer such extensive alterations and repairs are being made on their showplace that they will not be able to occupy it for some time.

However, the Shore is not to be deprived of the Hammonds' presence, for they have leased the new house on the hill opposite their own place which commands as fine view of the ocean as "Lookout Hill."

The youthful daughter of the house, Miss Natalie Hammond, is, I understand, to be of the 1922-23 debutante contingent, and unless I am greatly mistaken, her distinguished pater and mater will give a number of parties in her honor during the next few months. The Hammonds, by the way, recently started on a trip around the world, which was rather abruptly broken up shortly after they arrived on the Pacific Coast, owing to the sudden illness of Mr. Hammond, who is now quite recovered.

SATURDAY was quite a "large" day for the "debbies" of the past season, for it was the wedding day of one of their fellow-buds, Miss Katherine—or "Kat" Coolidge—and young Geoffrey Story Smith.

The daughter of the William H. Coolidges of Beacon street and Magnolia, who was one of the very first debutantes to be presented last season, was the first to announce her engagement, and the second of this group to become a bride. The former Mary Bartow took first honors in winning this title a short time ago when she married young William Bacon of Brookline, though there had been no formal announcement of their betrothal.

The former "Kat" Coolidge wore a wedding gown of white satin, boasting a square court train of rose point lace, the sleeves also of lace. The billowy tulle veil was held in place with a wreath of orange blossoms, and a pearl necklace encircled her throat.

Mrs. Samuel S. Stevens (Isabel Coolidge) attended her sister as bride, her gown being of blue chiffon, with delicate cream color lace and a hat to match. The ten bridesmaids—the Misses Marion Fenno, Rose Fessenden, Mary Hall and Katherine Winslow, all of Boston, and also the Misses Mary Elliot, Birch Warner, Elizabeth Keays, Frances Davison and Elizabeth Forrest—all wore frocks of pale pink chiffon with blue sashes and hats of blue, with cream color lace.

The bridegroom, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brinton Smith of Philadelphia, had as best man his brother, Albert Smith, while a large corps of ushers showed the guests to their seats. St. John's Episcopal Church at Beverly Farms was crowded for the ceremony, which was followed by a reception at "Blynman Farm," the Magnolia estate of the bride's parents.

AMONG the guests at the wedding were two of the bride's fellow-debutantes, the Misses Eleanor Musgrave and Alice Onderdonk. The latter, I note, are quite as inseparable as the widely press agented Damon and Pythias or the equally well advertised pair of tiny black sprites whose cleaning abilities are recommended to all housewives.

Both these girls, who were given a very jolly dance and house party by the Charles Allen Porters of Beacon street at the North Shore last Fall, took prominent parts in this year's Vincent Club show.

I WONDER how many of the people who made their way on Saturday to "Weld," the Larz Anderson's estate in Brookline, realized that the very simply garbed figure who moved so modestly about was actually the chatelaine of beautiful "Weld?"

The Andersons very kindly threw open the grounds of their estate on the holiday for a tea and dance in aid of the Army and Navy Club, and it was interesting to see that Mrs. Anderson herself did everything possible to help the success of the affair. From the time that the grounds were opened at 4 o'clock, until "closing" time at 9, Mrs. Anderson was moving from spot to spot to help out those in charge of the various entertainments of the day. She wore a simple dress and cap of gray jersey, trimmed with braid, and a hat to match.

HEROIC SISTER OF HUB BANKER DIES IN FIRE

By Universal Service.

Minneapolis, June 19.—Miss Lucy Gilbert, head of the art department of the Minneapolis Public Library and sister of George E. Gilbert, Boston banker, was burned to death in a fire that destroyed the fashionable Lafayette Club here today, because she refused to leave the side of an old and crippled friend.

Miss Gilbert and Mrs. Martin B. Koon, widow of Judge Koon and member of a prominent Minneapolis family, fell two stories, locked in each other's arms, after Miss Gilbert had refused the aid of a man who tried to carry her out of the flames. Her last words were:

"Get the others out My friend is dying and I will stay with her."

Their bodies were found late today, both almost consumed.

ALLEGED BOGUS CHECK PAIR BROUGHT BACK

Inspectors Pelton and Ring returned from Baltimore, Md., with Benjamin Lefcourt, alias Louis Jaffe, and Christie Connors, alias Seaman, who are accused of obtaining $240 from four down-town department stores by means of worthless checks. Lefcourt is twenty-eight and lives at No. 2138 LaFontaine avenue, New York, while Conors, who is thirty-two years old, lives at No. 21 LeRoy street, New York. The two are said to have drawn four checks on the Chatham Phoenix National Bank of that city, and are accused, in indictments, of forging and uttering and larceny.

NOBLE WOMEN WAIT ON TABLE TO LIVE

Cossack generals in full uniform acting as hat checkers, princesses and countesses as waitresses and counts and colonels as cooks and dishwashers are all to be found in Constantinople restaurants, according to Mrs. Jasper Whiting and Mrs. Henry H. Sprague, Boston women, who have just returned from a trip through Southeastern Europe.

Mrs. J. Whiting

Mrs. Whiting says that 100,000 Russians of the old regime are starving in Constantinople and the lower Balkan States. Steps have recently been taken to provide these refugees with one meal a day and the Emergency Fund for Russian Refugees in Constantinople and the Balkan States is supplying material help to the old, sick and very young.

Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, wife of the American High Commissioner in Constantinople, is receiving and distributing the funds.

Under the direction of Mrs. Whiting, several fetes and entertainments for the purpose of raising money, will be held during the summer. Allan Forbes of the State Street Trust Company is treasurer of the fund.

WOMEN VOTE IN FIRST MAINE PRIMARIES

Augusta, Me., June 19.—Maine women went to the polls today, participating for the first time in a primary for the special election for Congress in the third district last March, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Congressman John A. Peters of Ellsworth, to become judge of the United States Court for the district of Maine.

U. S. Senator Hale

Various contests in the Republican party are expected to bring out a large vote. In the last Republican primary, two years ago, approximately 51,000 votes were polled in the contest between Carl E. Milliken of Augusta, Louis A. Jack of Lisbon Falls, John P. Deering of Saco and Frederic H. Parkhurst of Bangor for the Republican nomination for Governor. It is expected that 75,000 or 80,000 votes will be polled in the Republican primary today.

WOMEN ON BALLOT.

It is also the first time in the history of the State when the names of women appear on the primary ballots. Two women are candidates for the State Senate, seven for the House of Representatives, three for county treasurer, two for county commissioner, two for register of probate and five for register of deeds in the several counties.

Three candidates are in the line-up in the Republican primaries for United States Senator—Senator Frederick Hale of Portland, who is seeking a re-nomination, Ex-Congressman Frank E. Guernsey of Dover and ex-State Senator Howard Davies of Yarmouth.

Governor Percival P. Baxter, who became Governor on the death of Governor Leon F. Higgins of Brewer, formerly president of the Senate, and John P. Deering of Saco, a former member of the Senate, who was a candidate in the primaries two years ago.

The three candidates for State auditor are Elbert D. Hayford of Farmingdale, the present auditor, Maurice W. Bragdon of Monmouth and Edwin J. Morrill of South Portland.

The four members of the National House of Representatives from Maine, Carroll L. Beedy of Portland in the First District, Wallace H. White of Lewiston in the Second District, John E. Nelson of Augusta in the Third District and Ira G. Hersey of Houlton in the Fourth District, will be renominated without opposition in the Republican primaries.

CURTIS FOR SENATOR.

Ex-Governor Oakley C. Curtis of Portland, ex-Attorney-General William Pattangall of Augusta and Frank R. Madden of Skowhegan will be nominated for the offices of United States Senator, Governor and State auditor respectively, without opposition in the Democratic primaries. The following will be nominated for Congress in the Democratic primaries without opposition. First District, Captain Louis A. Donahue of Portland; Second District, Bertrand G. McIntire of Norway; Third Distrist, Mayor Leon O. Tebbetts of Waterville; Fourth District, James W. Sewall of Old Town.

Woman Is Candidate for Senate From Minnesota

St. Paul, Minn., June 19.—Minnesota voters went to the polls today to nominate party candidates for the United States Senatorship, Congress and State officers.

Mrs. Anna Dickie Olesen of Cloquet, Minn., is contesting with two men for the Democratic Senatorial nomination, and Senator Frank B. Kellogg, an avowed supporter of the national administration, had two opponents.

Mrs. Olesen has set the pace throughout the campaign by making a State-wide tour in an automobile driven by herself.

Mrs. Lillian Cox Gault, Mayor of St. Peter, has no opposition for the Democratic Congressional nomination in the Third District. This year the former Non-Partisan League candidates generally are under the banner of the Farmer-Labor party, whose slate is without a contest today.

TEN-YEAR-OLD TELLS "GOOD NIGHT" STORIES

New York, June 19.—Betty Gulick has been telling "Good Night" stories to kiddies since she was four years old. She is ten years old now. She is the youngest person ever to have her stories recorded for the whirling disc. During the past six years she has held special matinees in the hotels of New York, Boston and Philadelphia, where she has entertained children with her original "Good Night" stories.

HUSBAND KILLS FORMER BOSTON GIRL AND SELF

Cobleskill, N. Y., June 19.—Alfred B. Hunt, porter at a local hotel, killed his wife and then committed suicide by shooting. The couple had been separated two months. Before her marriage Mrs. Hunt was Catherine O'Brien of Boston.

Youth Accused of Murder and Slain Keene Farmer

IN TRAGEDY.

John Oja (at top), under arrest for the murder of his father, after brother had confessed that he (John) committed the deed and at bottom, Herman Oja, who was shot to death.

CAUSES ARREST OF BROTHER FOR MURDER

Keene, N. H., June 19.—Following a confession by Elmer Oja, a younger brother, John Oja, has been charged with the murder of his father, Herman Oja. The killing took place on the night of January 19 on the Oja farm. John is alleged by the police to have confessed that he killed his father.

Family troubles and the ill-treatment of the lad's mother by his father are said to have led up to the shooting. It is alleged that when the father threw Mrs. Oja on a hot stove, John went to his room and secured a revolver, saying that he was going to kil his father.

Herman Oja was lured to the barn and John followed him. When halfway there John shot his father through the head, it is alleged.

When police first investigated the killing, members of the family said that Mr. Opa was shot when John attempted to wrest the revolver from him. The case was reopened a few months ago but the county authorities were unable to secure sufficient evidence to warrant an arrest.

Elmer confessed that his brother did the shooting, after he had been arrested on the complaint of his mother, who said he stole $40.

THUG BEATS UP AND ROBS NEWSBOY

Bleeding and unconscious, Thomas O'Neill, fourteen-year-old Somerville newsboy, was found in a field where he had lain for six hours, by Somerville police after he had been beaten and robbed by an unidentified man.

According to the lad's story, after regaining consciousness, he had been approached by a man on Mansfield street, Somerville. The man pointed a gun at his head and demanded money, which the youngster had collected on his paper route.

BEATEN UNCONSCIOUS.

Before the boy could answer, the stranger remarked: "I won't shoot you, it's too dangerous, but I'll beat you good!" Without further ado he struck the newsboy, beating him into unconsciousness. He then took $5 in pennies and nickels from the boy's pockets.

Lieutenant James M. Harmon at Somerville police headquarters received a mysterious telephone call nearly six hours later. A man's voice told Harmon that a boy was in a "bad condition" in a field on Mansfield street, near Union square. The man then suddenly rang off.

HEAD MASS OF BRUISES.

The lieutenant despatched Patrolman John A. Dadmun to the field. The officer found young O'Neill, covered by tall grass, bleeding and unconscious. His pockets were turned inside out and his head was a mass of bruises.

The patrolman took the boy to the Somerville Hospital, where, after receiving restoratives, he regained consciousness. He told officers the story of the attack. He described his assailant as a man between 30 and 35 years of age. He could give no further description.

The boy is the son of Thomas A. O'Neill of No. 91 Linwood street, Somerville. The father had left him in Union Square less than an hour before the attack. The youngster then proceeded to make his weekly collections from his paper customers.

At the hospital the boy was held for further treatment. Meanwhile, police are investigating his story and are scouring Somerville for the meanest thug in the city's police annals.

SAYS RUSSIA AND U. S. ARE NEAR AGREEMENT

Moscow, June 19 (By the Associated Press).—Leonid Krassin, addressing a conference of the Russian Foreign Trades Department, of which he is the head, voiced belief that resumption of official relations between Russia and the United States was not far off. Coincidently, the newspaper Pravda advocates dealing with America to build up the Russian oil industry.

"Serious business relationships for us are possible now only with America," says the Pravda. "We can give her oil, of which she has great need, and receive from her technical equipment for industry and agriculture."

BAY STATE AIRMAN BURNED TO DEATH

Houston, Tex., June 19.—Captain Thomas Shea, who entered the air service from Massachusetts, was killed at Ellington Field when his airplane crashed to the ground from an altitude of 150 feet. An explosion of gasoline followed and burned Shea's body almost beyond recognition. She was twenty-eight years old and unmarried.

Life Is Not So Short—

"Life is not so short but that there is always time enough for courtesy"—Emerson

MEN have gone down in history renowned for their courtesy when little mention is made of their learning and achievements. Such is the high value the world has always set upon courtesy.

So the Waldorf management, ever striving to make the Waldorf an unusually pleasant place to eat in, impresses upon all its employes that, in a Waldorf, courtesy in big and little things, and cleanliness in all things, are two most important standards to live up to.

We hope that, in addition to the comfort of mind in knowing that, in a Waldorf, you are eating the purest, cleanest food possible, those who serve you will make it more pleasant by attending to your wants with courtesy.

$2,000,000 LOSS BY FLOODS IN 2 STATES

Syracuse, N. Y., June 19.—A second cloudburst, heavier and more violent than the one a week ago, which swept over Syracuse and neighboring towns, tieing up railroads, paralysing local trolley and telephone services and flooding immense areas in the low-lying districts, caused a total property loss in Syracuse and vicinity of about $100,000,000.

One brook, swollen far out of its channel, inundated an area containing a dozen blocks, toppled two houses from their foundations and caused fully $100,000 in property loss. Two families were rescued by firemen when the flood was at its peak. Four women and three children climbed out of the window of their home into boats piloted by firemen, and two women and a child were taken from another home by rescuers in boats.

TUNNEL IS FLOODED.

Sweeping down from Syracuse University hill, a dozen streams poured into the New York Central tunnel, which was filled to a new high water mark. All trains were routed over the old West Shore tracks. Trains on the Lackawanna Railroad were held up by washouts. The towntown business section, for the first time in its history, was flooded.

Carbondale, Pa., June 19.—Damage exceeding a million dollars was caused by a flood that swept through Lackawanna, Wayne and Susquehanna counties following a cloudburst.

Practically the entire city of Carbondale is under water. Families fled to places of safety.

Brooks and streams raced down the mountainside and struck cities and towns in the lowlands with terrible results.

FAMILIES FLEE TO HILLS.

Fifty families in the Park place section were made homeless when the Lackawanna River overflowed, tearing up railroad tracks and flooding industrial plants and homes.

Several large buildings were loosened from their foundations. Small outbuildings were washed down stream. In many instances automobiles were swept away with them.

Water entered the mines of the Hudson Coal Company at Carbondale and pumpmen had to flee for their lives. All mines in the vicinity were filled.

INSANE WOMAN CAUGHT AFTER 22-MILE JAUNT

Auburn, Me., June 19.—Mrs. Eva Hunter, forty years old, who was released from the State Insane Hospital when her relatives promised they would care for her, was brought back to the home of her husband, Harry C. Hunter, here after she had wandered twenty-two miles to the adjoining town of North Leeds. She was taken into custody by the sheriff there, after she had entered a farmhouse, taken some food, and saddled a horse to continue on her journey.

HIGH SCHOOL PROFESSOR IS BELIEVED DROWNED

Middletown, N. Y., June 19.—Prof. Charles D. Dumbauld, head of the commercial department of Middletown High School, is believed to have been drowned Saturday night in the swollen waters of Neversink River, near here.

He had been fishing in company with Attorney Russell M. Vernon of this city and the two were separated for a time, when it is believed he had an attack of a recurrent illness and fell into the stream.

SEA CAPTAIN KILLED IN FALL FROM TREE

Montclair, N. J., June 19.—Falling from a cherry tree at the rear of his home here, Robert F. Selfridge, forty-two, sustained a broken neck and died a short time later. He was after cherries for his two children, seven and eight years old. He fell forty-five feet. Mr. Selfridge was a marine superintendent for the Lamport and Holt Company of New York. During the war he was a deep sea captain, making many voyages into danger zones.

LYNN MAN IS KILLED UNDER WHEELS OF TEAM

Joseph Hollis of No. 127 Commonwealth street, Lynn, was instantly killed when a team of horses, attached to an ice cream delivery wagon on which he was working, took fright and bolted, throwing him to the ground so that the wheels of the wagon crushed his head. The accident occurred on Boston street, Lynn, after the team had been stopped to make a delivery. Hollis is survived by a wife and three small children.

At one time Marconi did receive an intangible message which was believed to have been sent from Mars.

RADIO-PHONES TO SPEED UP MINE RESCUE

Washington, June 19.—The Bureau of Mines is planning to use radio-phones to speed up mine rescue and safety work.

High-power broadcasting towers at the bureau's experiment stations at Pittsburgh and Salt Lake City will receive news of an accident in a flash and will broadcast it to specially equipped cars maintained in all parts of the country.

Rescue and safety cars will be equipped with aerials capable of receiving messages over any required distance.

There is already a radio outfit at practically every mining centre in the United States. Sending and receiving stations will be installed wherever needed.

BOSTON ELKS LADIES' OUTING ON JUNE 29

Preparations are under way by Boston Lodge of Elks to hold its annual Ladies' Day outing on Thursday, June 29. This year the outing will take the form of a sail down the harbor, concluding with a dinner at Pemberton Inn. Special arrangements have been made for dancing.

GIRL DANCERS FREED WHEN POLICE DISAGREE

New York, June 19.—"To the pure all things are pure," remarked Magistrate Simpson in dismissing the charge of indecent dancing against four girls in a restaurant. One policeman was "shocked," the other one was thrilled.

Question Box for Radio Fans

F. H., South Boston.—You may use either No. 22 or No. 24 wire on your secondary coil, as there is but slight difference between the two. A single wire aerial is very nearly as good as a double or triple wire for receiving, but it should be from eighty to 150 feet long. Copper wire presents less resistance to the current than aluminum, and is therefore that much better. High frequency current, however, travels mostly on the outside of the wire, so that if the wire has copper on the outside, the inside makes little difference.

C. F., Lowell—The hook-up that you show is O. K. The reason you receive only telegraph is probably because you are too far removed from a broadcasting station to get phone messages on a crystal detector set. If you could get phone messages, the improvements you suggest—a variable condenser and a secondary—would be valuable for sharper tuning, but if you cannot get phone on a tens and units tapped coil, it is unlikely that you will get it with the other things. Either buy a vacuum tube or wait until cooler weather, when you may be able to pick up phone with a crystal.

W. H., Middleboro—Unless you are interested in radio, it would be better to buy one of the standard sets for the sanitarium you mention. You will need a set with two stages of amplification and a loud speaker. For the best results this should be installed by an expert. A good set well installed should be an excellent addition to the sanitarium's equipment.

F. J., Needham—The number of plates of a variable condenser are no sure indication of its capacity. This is governed by the size of the plates and their nearness to each other, as well as by their number.

Is Money Ever "Spent" for Advertising?

A young and energetic executive took hold of a fine old retail business in New York.

"What this business needs," he told himself, "is a place in the mind of the public."

And deliberately he set out to sacrifice the greater volume of his profits and invest the sacrifice into the building of goodwill.

He did. And to this old business, advertising was the breath of life.

For six months had not passed before the business had grown so that the advertising cost was a smaller percentage than ever it had been, and, because of a larger volume, the shop effected economies and gave far superior service.

That was five years ago. Today a certain percentage is spent, or supposed to be spent, for advertising. But as fast as the appropriation is spent, the more the business increases; and the more that the business increases, the smaller the percentage becomes.

Is money ever "spent" for advertising?

SHE'S TUNING IN.

Miss Mildred Faxon, of No. 5 Chester street, North Cambridge, is shown wearing the latest in jewelry, the wrist radio receiver.

WRIST RADIO SET LATEST IN JEWELS

The latest radio device combines radio and jewelry.

It consists of a tiny radio set the size of a wrist watch, with a crystal and cat-whisker, which hangs at the end of what looks like an ordinary chain of beads.

Instead of being strung on thread, however, a small silver wire runs through the beads, either end being connected to the receiver. This silver wire forms a small loop antenna, the beads serving as insulation.

The receiver is shaped like a watch, with two small pan-cake coils inside. Tuning is accomplished by turning the stem, just as a watch is wound. The whole thing is good for several miles.

Miss Mildred Faxon, of No. 5 Chester street, North Cambridge, is shown tuning in with one of the little sets.

POLICE CONDUCT OFFICIAL INVESTIGATION INTO Peabody Auto Accident That Cost Lives of Four Youths and Perhaps Fatally Injured Two Others! Protests against the unguarded grade crossings along this section of the Boston & Maine were heard from all sides today as a result of the fatality. The closed automobile, with curtains drawn, was struck on Rutland street, the impact crushing to death instantly four of the occupants. The two others, shown in circles above, Leonard Coppenrath (left) and Charles Lewis, both of Roxbury, were thrown out and terribly injured. Both were in the front seat. The diagram above shows how the accident occurred.

A DASH o' lavender makes all women kin—or something like that! But what is more charming than a pleated frill worn with a tuxedo sweater of lavender, set off by a lavender and gray skirt? The echo says "nothing!" (Underwood)

Here is Something to Blow About!!

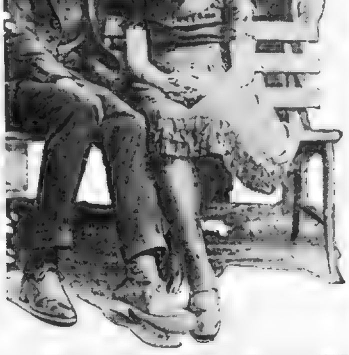
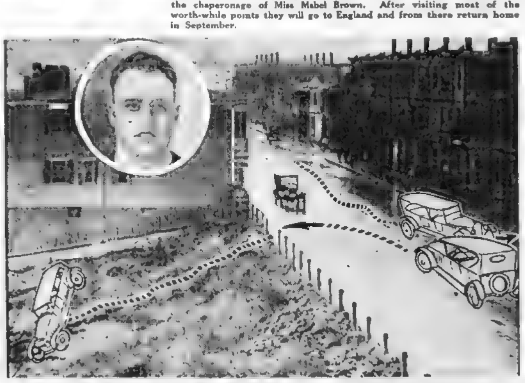
RUM ON THE RUN IN Little Rhody! Map shows how the Katy B, an auxiliary sloop, outwitted revenue cutters passing Newport, but landed in the net near Rhode Island Yacht Club. Alleged whiskey was seized. Craft cleared from Bermuda.

FLORENCE WAS TOUCHY, SO THEY TOUCHED Naples! Bay State school girls on their arrival in Italy for a tour of the continent. The youngsters sailed on the S. S. Conte Russo under the chaperonage of Miss Mabel Brown. After visiting most of the worth-while points they will go to England and from there return home in September.

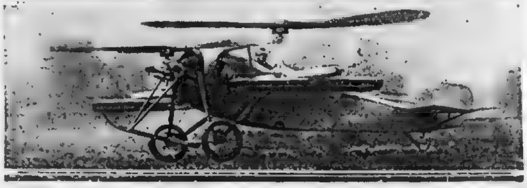


ASK YOUR FAVORITE COP TO GIVE YOU RIGHT spooning position! Don't start a petting party on Boston Common unless you desire to keep within the rules, as shown above. Cuddling and clinching is looked upon with askance—which must be a tough way to look. But watch your step—also your arm.

GOOD WEATHER COMING, GIRLS—SO JOIN THE Sea' Beauty Winners! Five dollars awaits these lucky cuties. Check will be mailed if you entered yourself—call and be identified if you were snapped by the American cameraman. Send in your favorite sea picture today. Among recent winners were Anna Hessalle, Chelsea, and Loreta Lucia, Revere.



AUTO DIVES OFF 30-FOOT EMBANKMENT IN EAST BOSTON WHEN IT COLlides with another car! Henry L. Tonrey of Winthrop (shown in inset), Boston University athlete and former commander of the Winthrop Legion Post, and two girl companions nearly lost their lives on Saratoga street, when their car was struck by another machine and dashed down the embankment. It landed on its nose and settled back on four wheels. The girls were Elizabeth M. L. Kane and Birdie S. O'Brien.



NAVAL AIR BOARD SEES AMERICA'S FIRST HELICOPTER TAKE THE AIR! Emile Berliner, the inventor, has been working on this model for eight years and has thus far developed an airplane which will rise straight into the air for at least 10 feet. A $250,000 prize awaits the first inventor to perfect a device that will rise horizontally. One propeller draws it straight into the air and another pushes it forward. Tests were made at College Park, Md. (International News-Reel)

DOPESTERS MAY BE CROSSED UP BY HARVARD-YALE CREWS

BOTH CAN'T RUN TRUE TO LAST PLACE FORM

By CHARLES E PARKER

The dope is due for a "crossing-up this week

Ever since early Spring followers of rowing have been picking the alleged varsity crews of Harvard and Yale to finish last in their regattas. On Friday these alleged crews meet on the Thames River, New London, Ct., and one of em is bound to finish ahead of the other

Which it will be is a question. They both have proved so woeful that it is difficult to determine which is the worse Yale has taken the backwash of Pennsylvania, Columbia, Princeton and Cornell Harvard has taken the backwash of Pennsylvania Annapolis and Princeton, and would have taken the same from Cornell but for the fact that it was necessary to postpone the race, and the Harvard coach neglected to arrange stopover privileges for his oarsmen

Capt. Gibson.

Of course, those were mere preliminary races and not to be considered as counting in the Harvard-Yale scheme of things.

Yet they have served to dampen the customary Harvard-Yale enthusiasm, and it is doubtful if one half the usual number will journey to New London this week to witness the rival splashings of the unlicked oarsmen It is certain that no coach, ambitious to know what is what in rowing, will waste any time studying the respective styles of the Crimson and the Blue

From a competitive standpoint, however the approaching race may prove one of the most bitterly contested in the long history of Harvard-Yale regattas Certainly the records of the crews are almost identical—neither has done nothing And there are other conditions and development that seem to counterballance one another

Both Have Had Coaching Troubles

Both navies started with coaches who have since lost their pristine authority. At Yale Jim Cocherry, who took up the reins when Gut Nichalls was deposed and produced a winning crew for Yale last year, has been supplanted by his brother George, whom Jim brought over as an assistant coach, at Harvard, R Fisher Howe, who has been long on theory but short on praiseworthy results still retains his title but our information is that Robert Herrick, former head coach, former advisory coach and member of the graduate rowing committee has really become the boss of things

So there seems to be a fifty-fifty break there

In the loss through graduation injuries or withdrawals, it is six for one and half a dozen for the other The Elis lost greater through graduation and have since lost Captain Gibson through injury Harvard suffered its greatest blow when, shortly after Coach Howe's appointment, McTaggart, captain-elect Kane and Terry, all varsity veterans of two years experience, withdrew from the squad Both crews have been shifted and shuffled about all season and not until last week were the probable seatings for the race determined

But good bad or indifferent as to the oarsmanship and speed of the crews, possessing or lacking championship significance, the meeting of Harvard and Yale on the water is bound to produce a spectacle that will be worth the watching Rowing Is Rich Man's Sport.

Rowing at Harvard and Yale has been primarily a sport in which the sons of the wealthy rather have excelled or gained favor Until his recent illness the young son of J Pierpont Morgan held a position in the Harvard shell, there is a Whitney and a Rockefeller in the Yale squad one or both of whom will be found in the big race on Friday, and the names of many others of the competing oarsmen or their families will be found rated very high in financial circles and occupying space in the Blue Book

The run of the undergraduates and graduates at both institutions will tell you rowing is the rich fellow's sport, and some will declare without a quiver that the varsity crews are not truly representative of their institutions

But it is the wealth represented in the Yale and Harvard shells that is largely responsible for the colorful ness of the annual get-together on the Thames

The Morgan and Whitney yachts are placed at the disposal of the rival crews during their training on the river and these yachts, together with the fancy sailing craft of other wealthy families directly or indirectly interested in the oarsmen, make up the brilliant lane down which the race is rowed Without such a setting Friday's race would indeed prove a dull drab affair with such a setting it will present a picture worth travelling miles to see.

S a funny thing to find J P and Harry Payne so interested in the worst and next to worst crew on the well-known map.

SNOB II WILL NOT RUN IN $50,000 LATONIA

New York, June 19.—Morvich, no longer "the unbeaten," was expected to leave in his special car today for Latonia Kentucky. There, in a special $50,000 race next Saturday against the cream of the three-year-old thoroughbreds, he will seek to regain the prestige he lost when he was beaten badly by Harry Payne Whitney's Whiskaway in the Carlton stakes at Aqueduct

Whiskaway with an advantage of fifteen pounds over Morvich in the weights, never was threatened after taking the lead at the start and won, pulled up with a margin of eight lengths in the remarkably fast time of 1 35 3-5 for the mile.

Snob II., J. S. Cosden's French bred colt, a poor third, pulled up lame and was found to have a split front foot, which will prevent him from competing at Latonia He will not run for some time, it is said

The explanation of Norwich's defeat can be given, experts agree, in one word—speed

The handicap in weights undoubtedly had its effect on the showing of the black colt, but it would have taken more than a super horse to match the pace Whiskaway set from the barrier to finish. Clocked in 45 seconds at the half mile the Whitney colt was more than a second faster than the American record for this distance, 46 1-5 seconds, and finished the mile just a second slower than the American record of 1 34 3-5 set by Audacious

Morvich after getting off to a poor start rallied and for a time kept within striking distance of the flying Whiskaway but he never was able to close the gap In the final sprint his rival drew rapidly away

Whiskaway as well as Pillory winner of the rich Preakness and Belmont stakes is expected to enter the Latonia special this week and at even weights with Morvich.

Yanks Lose Another on Top of the Seven Games

Cleveland, June 19.—Having lost seven games in a row, the New York Yankees will lose another decision, it became known from an authoritative source.

Ban Johnson, president of the American League, will act on the protest of the Yankees today against the 9 to 8 victory Detroit got over them last Saturday.

The Yankees base their claim on the fact that Cobb went into the crowd to catch a fly hit by Ward, and that instead of getting a three-bagger, as the ground rules would have allowed, the Yank infielder was declared out.

Johnson, it is said, will not allow the claim, relying on the report made by Umpires Chill and Hildebrand

Ty After First Base Job

George Tyler recently released by the Braves, may give up hurling and start as an infielder. Tyler is considered a good first baseman, and he could make good with some good minor league club.

Donnelly Leads Arlington

Francis E. Donnelly has been elected baseball captain at Arlington High for next year. This was his first year on the varsity nine, but he gave a good account of himself both in his outfield position and at the bat.

Tiger's Son Will Attend Tiger College

Princeton will soon boast of Ty Cobb, Jr.

The son of the Detroit manager is on his way to Princeton, and he has ambitions to pitch the Tigers to victory over Harvard and Yale in the dim future.

Cobb says that his youngster will make a star ball player some day, while Princeton will welcome the boy with open arms.

HARVARD'S CREW CRUISES IN SCHOONER

Red Top, Ct., June 19.—Harvard crew quarters were deserted by the varsity squad for their annual cruise down Long Island Sound Although the weather was very bad, the crews boarded the launches about ten in the morning and were taken to New London Harbor where they boarded Harold Vanderbilt's auxiliary schooner Vagrant and sailed down the Sound as far as Block Island returning to the quarters about 7 p m and reporting a rough trip

The freshman squad were disappointed on their sail as the Queen Mab which was scheduled to take them for a cruise could not reach here on account of rough water but they did take a long ride in the coaching launch down to Pequot Point and back to the quarters, just escaping a heavy downpour

Today Coach Howe plans a strenuous day to make up for the idleness of the past two days and a time row for the freshmen and combination crews is scheduled and several racing starts as well as long paddles.

WOBURN IS CONCEDED MYSTIC VALLEY TITLE

Woburn High is now in first place in the Mystic Valley League, having displaced Winchester by defeating it Saturday and is practically sure of the title for the second successive year Woburn has a postponed game to play with Melrose but should win easily if it is actually played.

The standing follows:

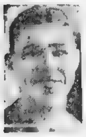
GEORGE WARD TO CLASH WITH NATE SIEGAL AT BEACH OVAL

WELTERWEIGHTS HEAD OPEN-AIR SHOW

By JACK CONWAY.

There'll be a real fighting man on the card at the open-air boxing show to be conducted by the Unity Club at the Revere cycle track Friday night. We refer to George Ward of Newark. This young man is rated with Jack Britton, Mickey Walker and the other headliners who are walloping their way to glory in the welterweight division.



Pat McCarthy

Ward is one of those rare birds who can punch as well as box. He has been campaigning out front with the blue-ribbon performers for several years and figures he will make his New England debut by scoring a victory.

Nate Siegal will be the young man in the other corner. The [illegible] Carter entry has had a long rest and should be prepared to battle at a lively clip. Siegal is the kind of ring warrior who always gives the opposition a real tussle, no matter how fast the old wallops come whirling in his direction.

There'll also be three other tens. Dan ([illegible]) Flynn will mingle with Tom [illegible]. Pat McCarthy will [illegible] the [illegible] who [illegible] Sear[illegible] [illegible] Hambone Kel[illegible].

The announcement that there will be [illegible] at $1 has made a hit with the fans.

Reservations may be secured at Room [illegible] No. 2 S[illegible] street.

Jock Malone to Finish His Training Here

Jock Malone, St. Paul junior middleweight, was due to parade into our midst today. This celebrated ring star announces the soreness has almost all left his left hand and that he will be able to resume battering his sparring partners around by Wednesday. Meanwhile Jock will restrict his efforts to road work. He's in [illegible] condition as he battled Bryan Downey at Toledo [illegible].

Mickey Walker, who will oppose Malone [illegible] at the Arena next [illegible] training at Elizabeth, N. J. [illegible], his manager, has informed Matchmaker Joe Goode of the Arena A. C. that Walker will arrive in Boston Thursday.

The Arena A. C. announces that there are still many choice reservations. Apparently there will be a capacity crowd if the demand for reservations at the [illegible] offices at No. [illegible] street is to be taken as an indication of the interest in this match.

Stanislaus Zbyszko Will Give Calza Real Test

Those fans who have been demanding that George Calza, Italian heavyweight wrestling champion, be given the acid test, should be satisfied with the announcement that Calza will battle Stanislaus Zbyszko in a finish match, best two falls out of three, at the Boston Arena Friday night, under the direction of the Old Howard management.

Zbyszko is one of the world's most sensational athletes. At the age of forty, he won the world's heavyweight wrestling title by defeating Strangler Lewis. He had previously gained a victory over Joe Stecker.

The signing of Calza and Zbyszko came after a bitter feud. Calza was booked to clash with Wladek Zbyszko, younger brother of the great Stanislaus, on May 6. Calza was [illegible] to pass up the match on account of [illegible]. Wladek then charged Calza [illegible]. When he [illegible] challenged W[illegible] [illegible] then claimed the Pole w[illegible].

This aroused the [illegible] of Stanislaus. He came to [illegible] of his brother, and the result was that the men finally signed for Friday night's match.

The Italians and Poles are aroused over the affair and a tremendous crowd is sure to be on hand to witness the festivities.

Danny Edwards Battles Friday at Brockton

Danny Edwards, colored featherweight sensation, and Abe Freeman, New England [illegible] weight champion, will clash in a ten-round bout at Brockton Friday night. It will be the second meeting between these rivals. Edwards won the decision in the last meeting. Freeman attributed his defeat to the lack of condition. Inasmuch as Abe recently easily won over Irish Johnny Curtin, he is liable to land Edwards a setback at the Shoe City.

BENNY LEONARD ALREADY REDUCES TO 140 POUNDS

New York, June 19.—Benny Leonard will not weigh much more than 138 pounds when he climbs through the ropes of the New York Velodrome ring a week from tonight to dispute Jack Britton's welterweight titular honors. After a stiff workout yesterday in the presence of several hundred friends, Benny jumped on the scales and touched the 140 notch.

Fothergill Clicks 'Em

Bob Fothergill, turned over to Rochester by Detroit, is murdering all sorts of pitching in the International League. He has a batting mark of .420.

BOSTON TENNIS STARS DEFEND TITLES

Wilmington, Del., June 19.—Some of the country's leading tennis players are entered in the Delaware State Tournament, which opens today on the sixteen turf courts of the Wilmington Country Club.

Included in the list are Philip Neer of Leland Stanford University, William Sherrill, Princeton, Louis A. DeCaverate, and Dean Mathey, New York, Harry Guild, Boston, and Stanley W. Pearson, Rose Thayer and Sidney Thayer, Philadelphia.

Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, [illegible] champion, and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, holder of the Delaware championship for women, will defend their titles. Mrs. Jessup with Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston, also will defend her doubles championship. Miss Florence Ballin of New York, who yesterday won the women's championship of Pennsylvania and Eastern States, is among the challengers for Mrs. Jessup's singles crown.

GREB TO FIGHT WALKER NEXT MONDAY

By ED CURLEY

New York, June 19.—Harry Grebb will confer with his manager, George Engel, regarding a fight in which his [illegible] will be at stake.

Harry is matched to fight Hughie Walker of Kansas City in a ten-round scrap to be held at Pittsburgh a week from today.

Greb is "het up" over the refusal of Carpentier to come here and fight him. He cannot understand why Georges should side step a "real fat purse." "As for the two fights Georges is signed for, the thought [illegible] Greb [illegible] Joe Beckett and Nille, the two men the French hero will battle, would be easy for me," he said.

"Carpentier would never fight a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] was an honor to meet the world's [illegible] and what's a sock on the jaw when you collect $200,000?"

So far as Greb going abroad to fight the Frenchman, that would be a bully idea, providing they offered him the same sum in dollars that Carpentier could get to visit here and battle Greb.

"Nice fellow, is Carpentier," says Engel. "[illegible] [illegible] but when it comes to [illegible] he picks the softest ones in the world. Don't blame him at that," concluded Engel.

YOUNG GOULD TO TAKE ON DEVINE

Young Gould.

Young Gould, Brockton welterweight, who is back battling under the direction of Cy Goodwin, has signed to meet Mickey Devine in a ten round bout Wednesday night at Providence. The affair will be staged under the direction of Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Gould is a big favorite in Rhode Island as a result of his sensational run of victories at Woonsocket. Gould says he is fit and that he will bang his way to a decisive victory.

OLESON STINGY AGAINST THE RED SOX

Detroit, June 19.—Arthur Oleson was very stingy with the Red Sox in the first game of their series with the Tigers, granting them the sum total of seven hits and one lone run. Herb Pennock and Bennie Karr, on the other hand, served very acceptable offerings to the native sluggers, who battled their way to the long end of an 8 to 11 score.

The Cobbmen swatted hard and they got their licks in so as to make them count. Harry Heilmann led the attack with a double and a trio of singles for a flawless record. George Burns, who registered a pair of doubles, was the only invader who could do much toward solving the Oleson puzzle.

The game drew a heavy attendance, nearly 20,000 fans witnessing the affray.

STANISLAUS ZBYSZKO IS WONDER WRESTLER

By RINGSIDE.

Stanislaus Zbyszko, who clashes with George Calza, Italian heavyweight champion, in a finish mat bout at the Boston Arena Friday night, is one of the marvels of the sport world. At the age of forty this brilliant athlete won the world's heavyweight wrestling championship by victories over Joe Stecker and Strangler Lewis.

He is now coming to Boston to avenge a slur on his brother's name. Calza, with twenty-five straight victories to his credit, charged that Wladek Zbyszko went to Mexico to avoid meeting with the Italian mat idol.

Stanislaus, who lives at Old Orchard, Me., declared he was prepared to take up his brother's battle. As Stanislaus is considered a better wrestler than Wladek, it was not at first believed that Calza would consent to meet him.

But the Italian had hurled down his challenge and wouldn't give ground. He signed for a finish match with the mighty Stanislaus. It will be best two falls out of three and should be one of the most sensational mat contests ever staged in this city.

Stanislaus Zbyszko is one of the most brilliant grapplers the world has ever known. For fifteen years he has been defeating the foremost mat men in this country and in Europe.

Frank Gotch and Strangler Lewis are the only men who have been able to defeat Stanislaus. His tremendous strength and marvelous knowledge of the fine points of the grappling game have enabled him to crush all opposition.

The appearance here of Stanislaus means that every person of Polish birth in this city who possibly can, will be at the ringside. For Stanislaus is a patriot and went to the aid of his country when it needed his assistance.

Sam Smith has been named referee for this match.

All-Scholastic Stars

By FRED C. LANE

Only after the batting and fielding averages of all candidates for second base were figured were we inclined to cast our lot with Cornelius "Tubber" Cronin of Cambridge Latin for guardian of the keystone sack on the Boston American's All-Scholastic baseball team.

Cornelius Cronin

The scarcity of star second baseman made the problem of filling this position difficult. Were one to go outside the city limits and cast an eye in the direction of Lynn English, the assignment would be easy; but since our team is made up of players in and about Boston that plan was given up.

The steady play of "Tubber" is what makes him the choice for the second station. He has been a stone wall in the inner defence of the Cambridge Latin team all season, and for general baseball knowledge and ability Cronin is in a class by himself.

Cronin was captain of the Cantab nine and no abler leader could be chosen. He was also one of the best of the schoolboy hockey players, a fine back field man on the gridiron.

Tomorrow—Third Base.

MOLINARI RECORD LIST GROWS

Emilio Molinari, famous Italian long distance runner, has added another record to his long list. Emilio ran from City Hall with a letter of introduction to Mayor Hylan in New York city.

It is asserted that the young man who came from Italy only a few years ago made a record on this jaunt, being clocked at 35 hours 24 minutes and 40 seconds for the 250 miles.

Molinari holds all records from five miles to the thirty-five-mile mark in Italy, and in the B. A. A. Marathon from Ashland to Boston he finished eighteenth and would have done better only for an infected foot.

THREE-GAME SERIES FOR MIDDLESEX TITLE

Reading and Stoneham High Schools are tied for the Middlesex League title. A three-game series will be played, the first contest coming tomorrow and the second Saturday.

The final official standing follows:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Reading High	5	1	.833
Stoneham High	5	1	[illegible]
Lexington High	2	4	[illegible]
Belmont High	0	6	.000

FAVORS LEAGUE OF NEGRO FIGHTERS

The colored fighters should form a league of their own. This is the advice handed out to Harry Wills, Jack Johnson and the other black ring stars by one of the boxing fans who has entered the controversy on "mixed" bouts.

Sam Langford

Another fan figures that Johnson is too old and that Wills is the only colored heavyweight who is worthy of consideration from "Tiger Jack."

W. A. McKeen of South Boston writes:

"Why all this talk of Johnson and Wills looking for a go with Dempsey? These mixed fights are not wanted. Why don't these colored gentlemen get up a league of their own? I should say nothing doing in the line of a go between Dempsey and Johnson. It makes me laugh to hear of Johnson selling out in his fight with Willard at Havana. He would not have lost that title for a million dollars, and was licked fair and square.

"If he did fake it, why does he look for recognition now? My way of thinking is that Tiger Jack could lick both Johnson and Wills in the one ring.

"Some of your correspondents are still harping on Dempsey's war record. Why don't they lay off that stuff? Does any sensible person think that if Dempsey was drafted and went across he would be sent to the firing line? Not much. Again, would any of these critics tell Jack he was a slacker? I guess not.

"Dempsey is a good champion—clean living and all the rest, and because he don't mingle with the cheap sports they do nothing but knock him."

Favors Harry Wills for Dempsey Bout.

C. E. Whipple of Stonington, Ct., writes:

"I have kept pretty well posted on heavy-weight fighters since John C. Heenan fought Tom Sayers in England. I do not approve of a Jack Johnson and Dempsey fight.

"Johnson is getting to be an old man as fighters go. He sold his fight with Willard and might turn the trick again. Harry Wills would make Dempsey a good match. He is young, has the size, also the reputation as a number one fighter."

Says Johnson Never Defeated Good Fighter

Here's one from Braintree:

"I have read of your boasting and bragging of Jack Johnson, the man who is the conqueror of Tommy Burns, a good little man, and the man who fought Jim Jefferies when a eleven high school boy could have licked him.

"Jim Jefferies was the best man in the world, barring none. He licked them all and then licked them over again.

"Johnson came in the same as Corbett came in when there wasn't a good man in the world.

"How was Sam Langford who chased Jack Johnson all over the world?

"How about Stanley Ketchell, who gave him the best fight he ever had in his life.

"Why don't you stick up for your white boys and let the negroes stay in their own class?

"Give Tom Cotter of Braintree a show."

Zbyszko Is to Do Training in Public

Jack Herman wires from Buffalo:

Zbyszko, now training for match at Old Orchard. Will be in Boston Tuesday and finish training in public. The Pole is already in perfect condition and if Calza's manager still insists on making the match winner-take-all, these terms will be satisfactory to me—will be in Boston Monday to post balance of forfeit and will bring the diamond belt Zbyszko won when he defeated Lewis in Madison Square Garden, New York.

RAIN RESCUES THE REDS FROM BEATING BY BRAVES

MITCHMEN IN LINE FOR HIGH HONORS

By NICK FLATLEY.

The well known wet grounds gummed up the scheduled opening clash of the Braves and Reds at the Wigwam today.

Pat Moran had his Porkopolis team in town for the final series of the Braves' home stay, and the Mitchmen were all set to climb at Pat's expense, when the official tester of the playing surface made his official test and declared in strident tones that the grounds were absolutely wet.

Today's Dope

Braves to beat the Reds at Braves Field.

Tigers to beat the Red Sox at Detroit.

So the little stunt of moving up while the Reds move [illegible] is postponed until tomorrow. By taking the Redlegs, the natives can stumble into sixth place, and once they get there, it's a cinch nobody is going to blast them out, from below.

After concluding with Fitchburg Pat's hirelings, the Braves take a short swing throug the East, and come home again next week, for quite a flock of games with their near rivals.

Thus far they have collected ten victories while losing five games on their own pasture, and as they did the same with a badly patched line up, it's a record to be really proud of. Maintaining the same clip for the rest of the season would hoist the team right into the pennant and if the truth be known, the athletes have lively hopes of getting there.

The fans who have watched them go along lately are also inclined to be very optimistic. The upset the Cubs administered was due solely to poor fielding, which must be expected once in a while with the relief forces on the job. The substitute outfield has played splendid ball as a general thing, and so has the infield.

Reserve strength has held the team up while the regulars were assimilating hospital treatment, and now that the big fellows are about ready to hop back, the club is in good position to get somewhere. The Braves are only three games away from the first division, and a little winning spurt would quickly wipe out that margin.

These next two series with the Reds and the Phils offer the Mitchells a real chance to climb. Both hostile clubs have been skidding terribly these last couple of weeks.

The Phils have plopped into the cellar and pulled the stairs down after them. The Reds have been getting socked at all points. Their victory Saturday was their first in seven starts.

Cripples Recovering Rapidly and Are Ready to Play

Moran's club is only a single game in front of the Braves, and two out of three will prop the Tribe right back of the Cubs again. That outfit was lucky to get away with three out of four here, and will probably take a few extra beatings hereafter to make up for it, even though they are playing the lowly Phils.

The reeling Reds have a couple of regular pitchers, but there is plenty of assault in evidence at the Wigwam, and any day the team holds together in the field, the other fellows get the worst of it.

Our cripples are recovering rapidly now. Billy Southworth has lost his limp, and appeared in the pinch hitting role Saturday. So did Ray Powell. Cruise is back, not entirely mended, but sufficiently firm in the underpinning to go the distance.

Horace Ford has a bad ankle, but will be ready to resume operations as soon as he has a dry field to scamper on. Meantime Cruise will get some practice at first, where he did a mighty good job in Saturday's double bill. And he was present in both affairs with those very useful extra base wallops.

Powell and Southworth could be rushed in now, but they will be reserved until after the team makes the brief Eastern tour. The subs look good enough to Manager Mitch to toss against the second divisioners for the next week.

One sub who has manufactured a regular job for himself is Al Nixon. He belongs in that outfield, and he'll be there, until he slumps, which he shows no signs of doing. In his last ten games he has hit better than .400, and nobody has shown better fielding. His catch off Miller Saturday was one of the greatest ever made. The score board in Braves centre field is farther away from the plate than the other side of the street around most ball clubs. Yet Nixon bumped into it just as he speared a fearful liner with his gloved hand.

TWILIGHTERS A HIT WITH SCOUTS

Big league scouts having completed the rounds of the college ranks may now be expected to glance casually at some of the real ball players representing the numerous Twilight League clubs of Greater Boston.

Our newly formed and very successful Greater Boston Twilight League, in particular, has developed ball players whose ability has reached the ears of the big league timber hunters.

Billy Leonard, representing several of the major outfits, has been making the rounds and already has delivered "Ike" Kamp of the J. J. Connelly Club, Roxbury, to the Cubs.

GOLF

By F. G. THAYER.

Two open tournaments are scheduled this week, one a three-day medal and match play competition on the newly designed Belmont Spring Country Club's eighteen circuit, starting Wednesday and winding up with the semi-finals and finals on Friday. In this event, three sixteens will qualify for match play on Wednesday. Entrance fee is $3 and post entries are allowed.

Friday or Saturday members of clubs belonging to the M. G. A. will be privileged to play over the attractive and difficult nine-hole course at Concord. This is always one of the best tournaments of the year and the scores always run high. A 76 will surely win the gross and perhaps a 78 will be good enough. Only in the last two years have any players bettered the 80 mark.

Scarboro is producing a fine group of regular every-day-in-the-week golfers. In the recent State events they were in the prize list in almost every tourney and Saturday at Lexington, Bradley was in a tie for second net, J. H. Kelley took the first net, S. Delury also coming into the tie for second net at Lexington and a close finisher to the gross winners. At Mt. Pleasant Billy Quinlan came through again with a fine round of 76, which is excellent work over this nine-hole links, the fairways being none too favorable for either the iron or wood play and the greens being of the rough variety.

Speaking of Lexington, which has always been a well-liked course for scoring by Bay Staters, a few changes have been made which greatly improve the test for scoring. The best change made by Alec Ohlson, the popular professional, is the shortening of the No. 8 green, bringing it forward, trapping it at the back and corners and giving it a contour, properly backed in the rear, to permit the ball to stick from the tee. The hole now measures 128 yards and the tee is in on the hill in line with the elevation where the drive to the seventh hole would ordinarily land. The hole is now completely visible from the tee.

Any distance lost by the shortening of number 8 is made up by the lengthening of the ninth hole, the tee being set back across the old eighth green about twenty five yards, making the drive and pitch to the water green more of a first class golfing proposition rather than a matter of guess work and breaks in the game.

The second hole is lengthened now so that the mashie or mashie niblic home is an impossible shot and most of the big hitters will be using the iron or the spoon, depending upon the direction of the wind. The new green is beyond the old one, the stone wall is removed and taps stick out at each corner of the built up green compelling the accurately directed approach, or the four or five will be highly improbable. The increase of 125 yards makes the present distance of this hole 434 yards, and the total distance of the course is now extended to 281[illegible] yards.

Larry Dowling, New Hampshire State champion, is not done yet with winning the Granite championship, according to the reports his friends are circulating, his most recent and best performance being a 74 over the Englewood Country Club of New Jersey. Is he going to make it four championships in a row?

HAGEN SCORES A 75 IN QUALIFYING PLAY

Sandwich, June 19 (By the Associated Press).—Qualifying play in the British open golf championship tournament was stated today under ideal weather conditions. A gentle west wind swept the two courses—the Prince's and Royal St. George's—and the turf was in excellent condition, having benefitted from recent rains.

More than 200 competitors started out with the hope of qualifying in this the greatest golfing event of the year. The eighty turning in the lowest cards for today's and tomorrow's medal play will be eligible for the match play on Thursday and Friday.

Jock Hutchison, the American who won the open last year, is defending his title, and the United States is represented by two other strong players in Jim Barnes and Walter Hagen.

The Prince's course measures 6,543 yards, and the Royal St. George's [illegible].

Hagen turned in a card of 75.

He went out in 37, taking the first six holes in fours. He did the homeward trip in 38.

Other scores made were:

Prince's course—Captain Carter, 77; Arnaud Massey of France, 78; W. I. Hunter, 80; George Duncan, former British open champion, 81.

Royal St. George's course—Roger Wethered, Oxford, 74; A. J. Miles, Wilton, Watt, 73; Alexander [illegible], 76; James Braid, 79.

RICHARDS SAYS HE'LL DO AS HE PLEASES

New York, June 19.—Vincent Richards has thrown down the gauntlet to the executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association on their ruling that exhibition matches must give way to tournament play, and that players should make their arrangements accordingly.

He said that he did not care what the ruling of the National Association, that the association was harmful to lawn tennis, and that he would play this week both in the Westchester-Biltmore exhibition matches and the Metropolitan Clay court championships, in which he is title holder.

BUSH LEAGUER SETS NEW TWIRLING RECORD

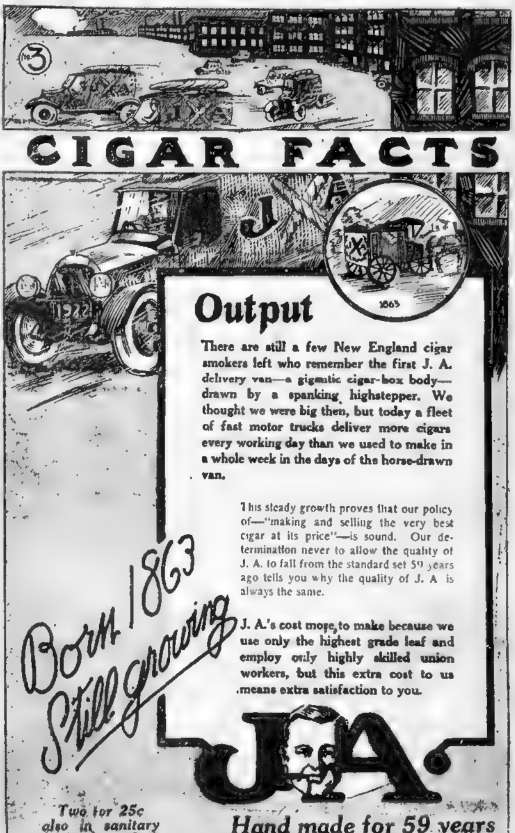
Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 19.—What is believed to be a record in pitching was made yesterday by Tommy Bowman of the Nanticoke, Pa., team in pitching sixteen hitless innings during the course of a double-header with the Pittstown and Wilkesbarre clubs.

In the opening game he retired the Pittstown batters in orders during the nine innings for a perfect no-hit performance and incidentally fanned twelve men. He then relieved Pitcher McGraw in the third inning of the second game with Wilkesbarre leading 4 to 0, and proceeded to pitch seven hitless innings, fanning ten batters, while Nanticoke came from behind to win 5 to 4.

In this game one runner reached second base. Bowman recorded twenty-two strikeouts in all.

DILBOY POST TEAM WILL PLAY AUSONIA TONIGHT

Dilboy Post and Ausonia K. of C. ball teams will clash tonight at the Richard Tr[illegible] Playgrounds, Somerville. Ausonia Council has been represented by a championship team for three years, and a large crowd is expected to see the game. Herlihy and Wholley will be the Dilboy battery.



CIGAR FACTS

Output

There are still a few New England cigar smokers left who remember the first J. A. delivery van—a gigantic cigar-box body—drawn by a spanking highstepper. We thought we were big then, but today a fleet of fast motor trucks deliver more cigars every working day than we used to make in a whole week in the days of the horse-drawn van.

This steady growth proves that our policy of—"making and selling the very best cigar at its price"—is sound. Our determination never to allow the quality of J. A. to fall from the standard set 59 years ago tells you why the quality of J. A. is always the same.

J. A.'s cost more to make because we use only the highest grade leaf and employ only highly skilled union workers, but this extra cost to us means extra satisfaction to you.

Souls for Sale

RUPERT HUGHES' GREATEST NOVEL

What Would YOU Do?

IF you were beautiful young Remember Steddon, a Massachusetts minister's daughter, whose sweetheart died before the wedding, would you try to bring up your baby among those who knew you in your own home town? Or would you run away for a fresh start with new surroundings? If you had your living to make, would you try to get into the movies? Dr. Bretherick, the family physician, advised Remember to go to California. This she did, writing her parents a fictitious tale of having married and lost her "husband." She is thrown in with a movie company, and Tom Holby, leading man, gets her a chance. She makes a hit in a close-up picture and is out in a terrific desert sand storm. She falls from a cliff and is told that the accident caused the death of her unborn child. Remember arrives in Los Angeles and gets a job in a movie studio. This struggle of a young girl to work out her own salvation is stirringly told in Rupert Hughes' greatest novel. Go on with the story.

SHE was not sure whether to call herself a lost or a new found soul in her scanty bathing suit, but she was sure that she was an utter changeling from the remorseful girl who stole shamefast out of Calverly to hide herself from human eyes.

She was already publishing her bodily graces to the world and she was devoured with ambition to give her soul also entire to the millions. She wanted to attitudinize her soul upon a film as public and as huge as the sky and compel mankind to watch it and admire.

Mem in a way was an allegory of all recent womanhood. She had dwelt in Puritanical respectability as in a kind of mental harem, with a yashmak on her demure mind and a shapeless black robe of modesty over her bundlesome clothes. Her thoughts had been her father's to direct until he should guide them into a husband's fold. Something had gone wrong. Her thoughts had contained black sheep that strayed and fell into the dark ravines.

But now she was out of it all, joining the vast hegira of humanity from the dark ages of ritual and ceremonial and uniform into the new era of all things good in their place, and concealment of the truth the one irretrievable evil.

Her soul and body were her own now. No, they had gone beyond even that. Her soul and body were the public's. Beauty was community property. She was committed to their fullest development into such joyous acrobatic agility and power that they should give joy and a delightful sorrow to the public. For which the grateful public would pay with gratitude and much money.

Idleness Heavy

In swimming, dancing, mountain climbing, horseback riding, motoring, singing, laughing, days and nights reeled by. But gayety as an ether against the pangs of idleness was a heavy, an almost nauseous drug. She looked back on her earlier existence at home as a slothful indulence at best, a waste of gifts, a burying of genius in a napkins and the napkin in the ground where it must rot yet never lift a flower from its corruption. To be busy, to achieve, to build her soul and sell it—that was her new passion. She gave up all thought of going home to Calverly. She would never be content with village life again.

One day she loitered through Westlake Park and watched the visitors feed the wild fowl that grow tame there. The man or child who had bread crumbs for largess was almost mobbed. Overhead the chuckling seagulls made a living umbrella, careening and dipping to hook the morsels tossed in air. From every quarter birds of various pinion gathered, swerved, darted, flung backward on wings that were both brake and motor. About the feet others scampered or stalked, pecking, gobbling. On the nearer ripples ducks, terns and geese moved like little ferryboats, coots scooted, and swans, black and white, thrust up their periscopes from the reedy banks where they moored.

Mem loafed about until she grew too weary to stand. Her despondent soul drifted as lazily as the swans, and felt almost as willing to beg for bread. She sat down on a bench on the Seventh street side, and by and by was hailed by a sturdy mid-Western voice.

From Her Home

"Well, as I live and breathe! If it ain't Miss Steddon!"

"Why, how do you do, Mrs. Sturgs!"

It was a middle-aged woman who had been a member of her father's church and had gone West—Mem had now to say, "come West"—because of her husband's [illegible].

Mem's first impulse was to welcome anyone from home. Her second was to fear anyone from home. But Mrs. Sturgs was already squeezing her broad person into the remaining space on the bench.

Her life in this Babylon had not changed her small town soul, body of prejudices.

Mem's wits scurried in vain to bring up protecting lies. Mrs. Sturgs was too full of her own opinions and adventures to ask any embarrassing questions beyond a hasty take-off for her own biography: 'And how's your father and your mother and your whole fambly? All well, I hope. And so you're here! Well, well! Well, as I was sayin' yesterday, everybody on earth gets to Los Angeles sooner or later. It's a nice city, too, full of good, honest, [illegible] o' course those awful moving picture people have given the town a [illegible] but there's plenty of [illegible] fine folks here and the town growt[illegible] faster than— Well as I was tellin' m[illegible] and last week it takes a [illegible] to [illegible] a world and the Lord may have had some idea of his own when he made movies, of course. I enjoy seein' 'em. You just can't help enjoyin' the terrible— But the people that make em—well!

"Such stories as they do tell about their— Why, that Hollywood is just a plague spot on the earth! The gentman we used to rent from— We own our own home now or will soon when a few more installments are— And the prices here—my dear! oh dear! But he said that friends of his who had rented their homes to movie people— Why, would you believe it? some of those cowboys—one day on the ranch, next day earning a thousand dollars a—and buying jewelry on credit—wrist watches with split diamonds for crystals—and they rent a nice house and ride a horse in the dining room and shoot the china right off the—it's a fact! And some the women—little pink ninnies that don't know enough to come in when it—they get fortunes for just making eyes at the camera, and they rent nice respectablomes and hold—well, orgies is the only word—orgies is just what they are.

"It's a sin and a shame and if something isn't done about it—Why, young girls flock there in droves, and sell their souls and bodies for— It's simply terrible.

"A gentman who claims to know was telling m'usband—and he told me that there isn't one decent woman on the screen—not one. Would you b'lieve it? Every one of them has to pay the Price to get there at tall.

He says to m'usband that it's the regular thing. Before a girl is engaged she has to— Those directors— Why any pretty girl who is willin' to lose her immortal soul can get a chance if she'll only— And if she won't—why, they turn her away.

"I declare it makes my blood run cold just to— Don't it yours?"

"I don't believe it," said Mem.

She had hear a vast amount of gossip, but she had not heard of anybody paying such an initiation fee. She had seen a great deal of joy and some of it reckless, but with a childish recklessness. She had seen no vice at all.

Mrs. Sturgs flared up. There is nothing one defends more zeal[illegible] [illegible] pet horrors.

"Don't believe it? Well, that's [illegible] because you're so innocent, yourself—speaks well for your bringing up—so strict and all. You naturally wouldn't believe folks could be so depraved, but if you'd heard what I've— Why, it's true as gospel! My husband had it from a man who knows whereoff he speaks. They sell their souls for bread, and, as the Bible says, their feet lay hold on—well, you know. Any girl that's too honest to pay the Price don't get engaged—that's all—she just don't get engaged. Of course there may be some decent ones, old ladies that play homely parts and—but if a young girl wants to succeed in that business she's just got to— Oh dear! that's my car. There's not another one for half an— They run out to our place only every— Goodby. I hope to see you again soon. Wait! Hey! Hey!"

And she was gone into the infinite purlieus of Los Angeles. She caught her car and it slid off, gong banging, and bunted a passing automobile out of the way with much crumpling of the fender and the vocabulary of the driver, but no fatality. Which was unusual.

Mem did not regret the abrupt departure of Mrs. Sturgs. She was glad of the woman's breathless garrulity.

It had not only left her with her secrets intact, but it had given her a hint. Mrs. Sturgs had substituted faith for facts and had spoken with that earnestness which is more convincing than evidence.

Accused Herself

Mem accused herself of blindness instead of charging Mrs. Sturgs with scandal. She felt that the alleged wickedness had escaped her notice because she was too stupid to recognize it.

But Mrs. Sturgs's accusation had the same perverse effects as her father's jeremiads. His sermon had made her long to see Los Angeles. Mrs. Sturgs had suggested an answer to her own riddle.

She wanted to act. She was determined to act. She needed money. She must have money. It had never occurred to her that a pretty woman is merchandise. She had given herself away once and now she found that there was a market ready and waiting, with cash and opportunity as the price. She had wares for this market. She could barter them for fame and future. Since she could, she would.

She sat on the bench and noted with a new interest that some of the men who passed her and stared at her had question marks in their eyes. Up to now she had shuddered at the vague posing of this eternal interrogation. She had not taken it as a tribute of praise or as an appeal for mercy, but as a degrading insult. Now she thought of it as a kind of sly appraisal, a system of silent bidding, auctioneering without words—the never-closed stock market of romance and intrigue.

These men, who swept their eyes across Mem's face and tacitly murmured, "Well?" had nothing to offer but little sin or a little coin. She had no notion of the rates. She wanted none of their caresses or their dark purposes. She wanted the light of glory, opportunity; so much fame for so much shame.

Grew Grim

She grew grim as she meditated. The Price was only a vague phrase, but she was ready to pay it, whatever it was. But to whom?

She brooded a long while before she thought of a shop to visit. She smiled sardonically as she remembered The Woman's Exchange at home where women sold what they made—painted china, hammered brass, knit goods, cakes and candies. Well, she would sell what God had made of her for what man might make of her.

At the studio she had met the casting director, one day when the commissary was crowded with stars in their painted faces and gaudy robes and with extra people portraying Turks, Japanese, society women, Mexicans. He had been introduced to her as Mr. Arthur Tirrey when he asked if he might take the vacant seat at the table where she sat with Leva and another girl.

He was an amiable and laughing person with an inoffensive gift of flattery. When he learned that all the girls worked in the laboratory projection room, he had exclaimed:

"Why waste yourselves in that coal cellar? I'll put you all in the next picture."

The others had not taken him seriously. Indeed, they had no ambition to be photographed. Mem had often wondered at the numbers of pretty women she knew who had no desire to have their pictures published.

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL—A NEW SERIAL

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

THE poor girl looked down at her ringless hands. In spite of the sick woman's delirium she had noticed that the attendant's fingers were bare of jewelry.

OPENING IT ADELAIDE BROWN SELECTED TWO DIAMOND RINGS——

On the dressing table stood Patricia Hollingshead's jewel case. Henry Hollingshead had not thought to have it removed. Opening it, Adelaide Brown selected two diamond rings and slipped them on her fingers. She remembered that Patricia had always worn these rings.

"If you can hear me," she whispered now, passionately, "help me to talk like you—and act like you—for your own dear mother's sake!"

Then with a straightening of her slender body she went from the room and down the hall.

Physician and nurse were again attempting to restrain the sick woman. Henry Hollingshead stood helplessly by, hands clenched, face pale.

"Addie lied to me!" Hannah Hollingshead exclaimed as Adelaide entered the room. "She said she would bring Patty to me! She promised! Then she went away and left me here. But I told her I would not stay. I told her I would go to Patty! And I shall! Let me alone, I say! I want Patty—I want——"

"Mother!" The hard, almost metallic accents broke in upon the excited ravings. And at the voice so like his daughter's, Henry Hollingshead uttered a muffled exclamation. "Mother!" Adelaide went on. "Be still and listen to me. Addie called me. I was asleep. I came as soon as I could. See, here I am!"

"Patty!" The exclamation was a wail of relief. "Patty!"

The thin arms drew the girl down and held her tight.

"Come close to me, darling!" the delirious woman begged.

Sinking upon her knees, Adelaide Brown submitted to the passionate caress. She even dropped a kiss on the flushed and burning cheek.

"You have been gone so long!" the shrill voice complained. "But now I will hold you right here by me. They shall not take you away again."

The tremulous hands stroked the heavy locks of hair, then felt for the girl's fingers.

"I always know Addie's fingers from yours," the mother said with an hysterical laugh. "She never wears rings—you always do, don't you?"

"Always," the girl replied.

"Lay your head here on the pillow by me," the invalid begged.

With only a second's hesitation, Adelaide complied.

"Put your arms around me," was the next order.

This too, Adelaide did. Kneeling at the bedside, her arms about the shrunken form, her cheek against the sunken countenance on the pillow, she remained immovable. Her long hair hid a part of her face. Once, when a lock fell across the patient's forehead, the physician pushed the hair back into place. Adelaide was conscious of his touch through every fibre of her being.

Gradually the ill woman became calmer. But still she held the girl fast. Once Miss Johnson moved a chair to the bedside and motioned to the kneeling girl to rise and sit on it, but, when Adelaide started to get up, the patient cried aloud in protest.

"No!—don't get up!—Stay right here!"

Dr. Carter spoke gently. "Mrs. Hollingshead—your daughter will stay close to you. But let her get up from the floor and sit in a chair by you."

The suggestion only excited the patient. "No!" she exclaimed. "Let her alone! She and I want to stay right close together. You have kept her from me all this time. If I let her go, you will carry her off. I know you! And I don't trust you!"

"I will stay here," Adelaide motioned with her lips, looking up at the man.

As before, she dropped her head upon the pillow and remained motionless.

Nor did she move as the long minutes dragged themselves away. She could feel the rapid breathing of the sick woman becoming more regular as the exhausted creature slipped into drowsiness. But a sound, a word, might startle her and the work of the past hour would have been in vain.

Adelaide did not know how long she knelt there. She was aware that the nurse had sunk into a chair near the bed, that the husband had moved away—perhaps out of the room. Once she had heard a step she was sure was Richard's pause in the open doorway. She heard his voice as he began what sounded like a protest—then Henry Hollingshead answered him and the two went down the hall together.

What she was most keenly conscious of was the occasional proximity of John Carter as he bent over her and his patient. She knew when his fingers were laid [illegible] the wrist of the sick woman [illegible] pulse.

[illegible] her knees in [illegible]. But she dare not move. She felt the sick woman's hot breath against her cheek. She longed to get away from this unhealthy atmosphere, this enforced contact with a diseased body. Then she [illegible] herself that the patient [illegible] might depend on her [illegible].

[illegible] the girl was conscious of [illegible] of the tension of the [illegible] the bed. Her arms slid [illegible] her whole figure [illegible].

Still Adelaide remained motionless until a gentle hand touched her shoulder and a low voice spoke in her ear.

"She's fast asleep," John Carter said. "Get up slowly, and you will not awaken her."

Very gently, Adelaide drew away from the bed, but when she tried to rise her legs were so stiff that, for an instant, she could not stand. Putting his arms about her the physician raised her from the floor and held her until she was able to steady herself on her feet, then released her.

"This is the first natural sleep she has had tonight," he remarked as Adelaide stood looking down at the patient.

Once more he laid his fingers on the thin wrist, then shook his head.

"The excitement and delirium have done her heart no good," he muttered. "Still—thank Heaven—and you, child—she is quiet now. You," with a compassionate look at Adelaide, "should go right to bed."

She felt strangely weak as she went towards the door. In the hall Richard stepped forward and took her hand in his.

"Let me help you!" he said. "You are actually staggering."

POOR LITTLE ME

Poor little me, always lonesome
and sad
Poor little me, always getting in bad
No matter what I do or say,
Somehow I'm always in the way
By thunder I wonder will my luck change some day,
I've tried to be just as nice as I should
But I can see there's no fun being good
I sit at home, but no one calls
I'm tired of looking at the four bare walls
So don't you feel sorry for poor

A Song of Yesterday

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET

How dear to this heart are the scenes of my childhood,
When fond recollection presents
them to view!
The orchard, the meadow, the deep tangled wildwood
And ev'ry loved spot which my fancy knew,
The wide-spreading pond, and the mill that stood by it,
The bridge and the rock
where the cataract fell
The cot of my father, the dairy house night it,
And e'en the rude bucket that hung in the well.
The old oaken bucket, the iron-bound bucket,
The moss-covered bucket that hung in the well.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

By ANN LISLE

I SHOOK my head. I didn't feel feel the need of explaining, but I knew that would accomplish nothing, since the Yelda account can't be paid until someone in authority gets back to town and o.k.s the bill which a careless treasurer neglected to delegate anyone to pay in his absence. Poor Mr. Derringforth is as hard pressed for cash as I. As for Max Hoadley, he has already month

I THINK I'LL GO OUT AND TRY TO PICK UP A NEW CLIENT OR TWO

"I think I'll go out and try to pick up a new client or two," I said, with a great air of breeziness.

"Oh, I wouldn't do that," fluttered Miss May. "At this stage of the game each new client means new expenses and until we get running it's too bad to increase our debt. I've quite a bit saved. You're welcome to it if it will help just now. I don't want to intrude, but a new business is so hard to get on its feet. Don't be frightened, my dear. I know this will be all right if we can just keep our heads above water at first."

"Thank you," I said with a confused feeling of gratitude for her devotion—the devotion of a hen that has hatched ducklings and has to stand by helpless while they essay the dangers of navigation by water. "We're going to be all right. And I won't need to risk your fund, you nice person! We haven't come to our 'rainy day' yet. But before we do, I think I'll just call a—director's meeting. Will you get Mr. Hoadley, please?"

After a few minutes Miss May put her telephone back on its hook and turned to me gravely.

"Mr. Hoadley's out of town—indefinitely," she said.

Refusing to be daunted or to grow panicky because Max Hoadley was unavailable just when I needed him, I smiled at Miss May with fictitious brightness. I hardly expected to have deceived her and said:

"Call Mr. Booth at Haldane's, please. It would be a joke if he were out of town, too, wouldn't it?"

But in another moment she turned back to me, her face showing signs of the greatest relief.

"Mr. Booth isn't in yet, Mrs. Harrison. But he'll call on you just as soon as ever he does come."

Just as she was speaking the door of my office opened and a girl stepped timidly and almost gingerly over the threshold. One glance at the neat flat sailor, the plain little dress of dark blue, and the trim oxfords and I hurried across the room to greet Irma Warren.

Before I could turn to introduce her, Miss May had gathered up her things and had pattered away to the inner office with her unobtrusive and unfailing desire not to intrude.

"I'm glad we're alone," said Irma, "because I know I haven't a right to much of your time and I really am sort of lonesome for a real talk with you. It's so hard to say much when there's a third person 'around, don't you think so?"

To Have Curly, Wavy Hair "Like Nature's Own"

In three hours you can have just the prettiest curls and waves! And they remain a long time, when liquid silmerine is used before doing up the hair. When the hair is combed out it will be nice and fluffy. Silmerine is perfectly harmless, of course, and is easily applied with a clean tooth brush. It can be obtained at drug stores and at toilet counters generally, directions accompanying each bottle. It serves also as a splendid dressing, keeping the hair soft and glossy.

Silmerine is fine for the outdoor girls, as it prevents the hair from stringing about the face and neck even when the day is quite warm or windy. A boon to the bobbed hair girl!

Prices Advance On New York Exchange After Irregular Start; Call Money 3%

FINANCE —AND— BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

Who's going to become kingpin in America's second largest international banking house?

Wall Street is keenly discussing whether Mortimer L. Schiff, son and heir of the former head of the firm, or Otto H. Kahn will become the leading partner.

Young Schiff—he is no longer so very young; he is forty-five—has been much in the public eye lately through his crossing of oral swords with Sam Untermyer over the Midvale-Island Republic steel merger under the name of the North American Steel Corporation. Verdicts on Schiff's showing don't all agree. Some contend that in him the sharp-tongued lawyer met his match; that, indeed, Schiff returned more than parry for parry, often confounded the redoubtable and domineering Untermyer.

Be that as it may, Schiff has already won quite a reputation for his ability as what Wall street calls a "trading banker," that is, a banker who knows how to handle a deal. When younger, Schiff was often accused of being purse-proud. But he has lived that down. I have heard bankers declare that they would rather do business with "Morty" Schiff than with any other member of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

In my judgment, Schiff is destined to become a more and more important factor in the world of high finance. In addition to having learned the financial game thoroughly, he has contrived to find time to become quite a student and scholar. His occasional addresses—which, unlike a good many others, he writes himself—are usually uncommonly sound.

Otto H. Kahn first sprang into prominence because of his close association with Edward H. Harriman. Harriman, who was no mean judge, had great respect for Kahn's ability. Since Harriman passed, Mr. Kahn has attracted chief notice by his countless speeches. It is common knowledge in financial circles that there were times when relations between Kahn and his partners were not exactly the friendliest.

* * *

The other Kuhn-Loeb partner, Felix M. Warburg, is perhaps the most public-spirited and philanthropically-inclined man in the whole financial world. He gives the greatest part of his life, and not a little of his money, to broad-gauge charitable work, never sparing himself either day or night. Like young John D. Rockefeller, Felix Warburg is more interested in using money to help mankind than in making money.

Boston Notes

NEW HAVEN Railroad has asked the Interstate Comerce Commission for permission to issue $5,900,000 of first and refuding mortgage 4 per cent. bonds as collateral for a U. S. loan of $2,400,000.

ELMER H. BRIGHT & CO.—"Steady expansion of loans has been noted for a considerable time, and, although to no sign of tight money can be attributed the decline, presumably an increasing amount of securities had recently been carried on borrowed money."

HAYDEN, STONE & CO., says of Mack Trucks—"The company's plants are operating at about 80 per cent. of the 1920 rate, and present indications are an output at a rate of 6,000 trucks per annum will be maintained well into the Fall."

FIRST NATIONAL BANK predicts "apparently there is to be an era of high-priced wool."

CENTRAL AGUIRRE has still unsold about 44 per cent. of its sugar crop. Although the crop was smaller than in 1921, higher sugar prices should swell the company's assets measurably.

HUDSON MOTOR stockholders look for dividend increase with net income for six months given at $3,024,623 and heavy forward contracts being placed.

ELDER MANUFACTURING reports total loss for the year ended April 30 of $178,117, adding: "The recent reorganization which has been effected has resulted in placing $448,600 of new money in business."

MUTUAL OIL owns Frantz Oil Co. as a subsidiary. Completion of Mid-Northern-Frantz well is said practically to double proven average of the Cat Creek field.

W. P. PHILLIPS has been elected a member of Sinclair Consolidated executive committee to fill a vacancy.

CHARLES H. NEWTON has been chosen as manager of the Boston office of Guaranty Co. of New York, succeeding A. L. Devens.

MANCHESTER, CT., treasurer has rejected all bids for $90,000 of 4½ per cent. coupons refunding bonds. New bids are to be called for.

ENDICOTT-JOHNSON and International Shoe Co., running at full, would turn out around 70,000,000 pairs of shoes, or more than a fifth of all made in United States.

NATIONAL SHAWMUT BANK has bought from Melrose a temporary revenue loan of $100,000, maturing $50,000 on both November 15 and December 15, 1922, at 3.56 per cent. plus $3.51 premium.

CHANDLER MOTOR shipments for six months of 1922 are estimated at 60 per cent. above shipments for entire year of 1921.

CONOLIDATED COPPER stock offer to shareholders for reorganization has been underwritten. Issue will be 1,600,000 shares at $5 par.

MEXICAN PETE MAKES FRESH YEAR'S HIGH

After an irregular start, the oils led the New York market to higher prices, with Mexican Petroleum up 7½ at 153¼, again setting a new 1922 high around 20 points above the closing for Thursday.

At noon Pan-American had gained 2⅝ at 71⅝; Houston, 1⅝ at 75; California Pete, 1⅝ at 60⅞, and Standard Oil of California, 2½ at 106⅞.

Marland Oil, up 1¾ at 46, was at a high for the year.

Gulf States Steel at noon advanced 3½ to 77, while Republic Steel was off 1⅜ at 68⅝.

Shipping issues became strong in the second hour. Marine preferred was up 2⅛ at 73¼ and Atlantic Gulf advanced 1½ at 37½.

Gains of one or more points were made by American Smelting, American Sugar and Mack Truck.

Lima Locomotive sagged 2¼ points.

OPENING IRREGULAR.

The market opened irregular, Mexican Pete continued in demand, advancing 1¼ to 147, and Invincible Oil rose ¼ to 15. New Haven was ⅜ lower at 27¼, and Royal Dutch showed a loss of ½ at 55. Studebaker yielded ½ to 121½, while U. S. Steel was ⅝ off at 97⅝, then sold at 98.

Baldwin sagged ⅝ at 110¾, and Republic Steel lost ⅝ at 69⅜. Utah Copper had a gain of ⅝ at 62½.

Barnsdall "A" gained ¾ at 36¼, and Pan American was ⅝ higher at 69⅜. Midland Steel was unchanged at 44⅜.

Gulf States Steel continued its advance to 73¾.

RAILS UNAFFECTED.

Rails, as a group, were unaffected by strike talk and showed a firm opening at about the level of Saturday's close. Canadian Pacific was unchanged at 135½. New York Central ⅛ lower at 88¾, Rock Island unchanged at 33¼.

Retail Stores started up ⅛ at 63¾, and American Car & Foundry, up ½ at 159½. Marine stocks were slightly lower.

Maxwell "B" gained ⅜ at 23½.

Call money opened at 3 per cent.

Foreign exchanges displayed increased weakness, especially British, French and Dutch rates.

CHAMBER WARNS OF MAIL THEFT

Postal money order blanks, stolen from various United States postal stations, have recently been used fraudulently in Massachusetts, according to a warning issued by the information and investigation bureau of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The bureau advises "Should any questionable orders be presented, refuse payment and notify Mr. F. S. Childs, United States Postoffice Department, Boston."

The following series of postal money order blanks have recently been stolen:

Idaho, Granite, Nos. 11,001 to 12,000 inclusive; Illinois, Chicago, Nos. 29,244 to 29,400 oinclusive; Kansas, Selkirk, Nos. 1,825 to 2,000 inclusive; Mississippi, Petal, Nos. 12,535 to 13,000 inclusive; Mississippi, Orange Grove, Nos. 9,069 to 9,200 inclusive; New Jersey, Moe, Nos. 327 to 350 inclusive; Tennessee, Bemis, Nos. 50,756 to 61,800.

BOSTON KIWANIS CLUB OFF FOR CONVENTION

On board the "Governor's Special," which left South Station, are more than 160 members of the Boston Kiwanis Club on their way to attend the Kiwanis International convention at Toronto, Canada. Stops were made at Worcester, Springfield and Pittsfield and large delegations joined the Boston men at these places. On the train also are representatives from Kiwanis Clubs at Lynn, Framingham, North Adams, Holyoke and Northampton; Portland, Auburn and Lewiston, Me.; Providence and Wonsocket, R. I.; Hartford, New Haven, Waterbury, Stamford, South Norwalk and Bridgeport, Ct.

U. S. WORKERS TO BUY SOVIET TEXTILE MILLS

New York, June 19.—The Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union has started its second venture in capitalism, organizing a Russian-American Industrial Corporation with capital of $1,000,000 to take over seven clothing factories and two cotton textile mills in Moscow and Petrograd.

H. C. L. IN GERMANY 34 TIMES OVER PRE-WAR

Berlin, June 19.—In Germany prices in May rose 10 per cent. over the average for April, and increased in the last three months 4 per cent. The minimum standard of living index is 34 times that of the days before the war.

MAY MAIL MOST IN 14 YEARS

Washington, June 19.—Postal receipts soared to a total of $23,317,000 for the nation's fifty largest cities during May, according to the statement just made public by Postmaster-General Hubert Work.

Receipts during the month amounted to a total greater than any May in fourteen years, or roughly 200 per cent. more than the revenues of May, 1909.

Postal revenues constitute one of the best natural barometers of business condition readily available, according to government officials. From this point of view the volume of business was nearly 16 per cent. greater in May than in the same month a year ago.

In actual returns the post office took in approximately $3,080,000 more this year than in May, 1921.

LELANDS TALK OF WAR ON FORD

Detroit, June 19.—Henry M. Leland and his son, Wilfred, within sixty days will market a new automobile project, fighting Henry Ford and his high-priced Lincoln car. They have financial backing.

Leland says his break with the Fords came when Henry Ford went back on his word, took active direction of the company out of his hands and put in his own officials.

He also charges Ford honeycombed the plant with a spy system.

DE BEERS DIVIDEND STATEMENT ISSUED

London, June 19.—Directors of De Beers Consolidated Mines Company say that, although demand for diamonds has improved, they are unable to declare dividends either on preference or deferred shares.

SINCLAIR BRINGS IN WELLS AT BURBANK

New York, June 19.—Sinclair Consolidated Oil has brought in well No. 4, tract 35, Burbank, flowing 1500 barrels daily, and well No. 1, tract 20, Burbank, flowing 860 barrels daily.

BIG CALUMET IS UP FOR GAIN OF 5 POINTS

Prices started irregular in the Boston market, but improved.

Calumet & Hecla was up 5 at 275. Coppers as a group were irregular, packers steady and rails quiet.

Edison Electric achieved an opening advance of 2 points at 174.

Carson Hills was quite active and off ½ at 10¼.

This is the lowest price for Carson since 1920.

Mexican Investment reflected the amicable Mexican debts agreement, starting up ½ and then gaining 2 points at 24.

Mohawk, selling ex-dividend, was off a fraction at 61¼.

St. Mary's Land and Waltham Watch preferred sagged a point each.

Island Creek Coal was up ⅜ at 115.

Boston Curb prices were mixed. New England Fuel Oil advanced 4 points at 56 and Bagdad a point to 24. Shea Copper lost ¼ at 1 and United Verde Extension 2 at 24. United Verde has just declared regular quarterly 25 cents dividend, payable August 1 to stock of record July 5.

Crystal was unchanged at 1½.

Wall St. Gossip

LAIDLAW & CO.—"There appears to be a general disposition to anticipate a quiet and probably irregular market until the mid-year settlements of July 1 are out of the way.'

J. S. BACHE & CO.—"There is little question that our inflated money situation has given the stock market opportunity for far greater activity and advance than would have been otherwise possible."

JOSEPHTHAL & CO.—"While we believe the market may continue in a trading position for a time, we favor buying on sharp reactions."

PRINCE & WHITELEY—"Rails should be bought on all little recessions, as outlook for them grows brighter every day."

MAXWELL - CHALMERS organization in May ran true to the predictions of those "on the inside" and exceeded its exceptionally favorable April volume by close to a million dollars, according to figures just released by President W. R. Wilson.

STOCK EXCHANGE questionnaires sent out to brokers are expected to be all returned for filing, it is stated, by July 1. One firm is said to have been told it is time it severed connections with the exchange.

NATIONAL ENAMELING is known to be considering a new bond issue. Company's president says its plants are running practically at capacity, with fixed charges and preferred dividend earned.

FEDERAL SUGAR CO. estimate discounts recent unfavorable reports on European beet sugar prospects, on which were partly based advances in prices here.

L. L. WINKELMAN & CO. say of Standard Oil of New Jersey: "There is general expectation among stockholders that, when the company does take action, it will be something worth while."

MUNDS & WINSLOW, around current levels, favor U. S. Steel, Mack Trucks, Studebaker, American Locomotive, Lima Locomotive, Cerro de Pasco, Kennecott, Texas Co., Pacific Oil, Sears Roebuck and Jones Tea.

MACK TRUCKS, although not yet paying a dividend, reports business as improving.

VIRGINIA IRON'S dividend on common is said to have been passed rather because of trade dullness earlier in 1922 than on present operations and outlook.

U. S. STEEL mills at arrell are being operated on a basis practically 100 per cent.

CARNEGIE STEEL CO. has three blast furnaces going and is to start skelp mill within a few days.

ELECTRIC STORAGE battery prospects for the remainder of the year are reported as first-class.

MEXICAN PETE is said to be averaging approximately a dollar a barrel for its oil at Tampico, and an estimated profit of 50 cents a barrel would give the company net earnings of $3,000,000 a month.

S. W. STRAUS & CO. have purchased an issue of $1,200,000 6½ per cent. first mortgage bonds of the M. E. Blatt Company, Atlantic City, N. J.

THIS RAILROAD ASKS MEN TO CUT OWN PAY

Kansas City, Mo., June 19.—Receiver Kemper of Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway says the road must be offered for sale as junk by July unless financial assistance is obtained and appeals to employes of road to accept voluntarily a wage reduction.

TOBACCO TRUST MUST PRODUCE ITS BOOKS

New York, June 19.—Writs compelling the American Tobacco Company and P. Lorillard & Co. to give the Federal Trade Commission books and papers in the investigation of the alleged "Tobacco Trust" have been issued.

Railroad Workers 98 P.C. in Favor of Walkout

Chicago, June 19.—Railroad union executives say only withdrawal of wage reductions ordered by Railroad Labor Board and taking back by railroads of contracts farming out shop work can avert strike of approximately 1,000,000 workers July 1.

Union leaders declare strike vote so far returned is 98 per cent. in favor of walkout, but they do not expect final vote to be more than 95 per cent.

HUGE CONTRAST IN BUSINESS CONDITIONS

New York, June 19.—Continued improvement in business conditions makes a sharp contrast with those of a year ago. Current buying in various lines reflects breadth and activity, while price advances, rather than declines, now predominate.

Reports have less comment in regard to the quieting influence of Summer, as was evident last year. The most significant feature, however, is the change in the main question from "has business improved?" to "how far will the improvement go?" Dun's Review states:

"While the recovery has actually been in progress for many months it had come so slowly and irregularly in different quarters as not to be widely noticed, and some unsatisfactory phases had raised doubts as to the character of the forward movement.

"Recent statistical exhibits, however, have caused a more general recognition of the fact that the commercial situation has taken a decided turn in the right direction, gains in iron and steel output, in building permits, in railroad traffic, and in bank clearings being among the favorable indices. Supporting these and other measures of progress is the more confident sentiment in many channels, and the increasing disposition to anticipate future requirements."

JULY MATURITIES $89,054,550

Corporate maturities in July will be extraordinarily large, aggregating $89,051,550, contrasted with $70,325,666 in July last year, and $48,992,380, the total for the current month.

Railroad issues coming due account for $35,697,330, among which the largest are $9,076,000 consolidated 5s of the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg, and $7,988,000 equipment trust certificates of the Delaware & Hudson, maturing July 1. The first named road will also pay off $500,000 3½ per cent. bonds on the same date.

Public utility bonds expiring in July are also numerous, but for most part small amounts that can be met without refunding. The largest issue in this group is $4,623,000 Union Traction Company of Indiana first 5s, due July 1. The Steinway Railway, now in receiver's hands, will probably default on its $1,500,000 6 per cent bonds, also due on that date.

The largest industrial issue due for payment on July 1 is $6,000,000 Gulf Oil Corporation 6 per cent notes.

HAVERHILL TO START FIXING SHOE PRICES

Haverhill, June 19.—The Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers' Association is desirous of starting proceedings today which will serve toward securing an adjustment of the question of prices and fixing the date when prices shall expire. The association through their secretary sent out a notice to the Shoe Workers' Protective Union asking the union to select their representatives to sit on an adjustment board to settle this important question.

The final arbitration board have finished taking evidence in the stitchers' cases and have adjourned to Wednesday. The members are holding themselves ready to step in and sit on the price questions in the event that the adjustment board cannot arrive at an amicable decision.

This week will see a cleaning up of odds and ends of business in many of the shoe factories which will be closed over the Fourth. Generally a week is taken by the power plant concerns in which the plants are thoroughly overhauled. No brisk business in the shoe factories is anticipated until well into August at least.

Pittsfield, June 19.—The pending wage reduction announced for July 1 by officials of the Berkshire Street Railway Company will probably bring about a complete tie-up of trolley service. Union officials are opposed to a reduction, and although a conference will be held with representatives of the company during the week, it is generally believed that all motormen and conductors will walk out if the wage cut is not removed.

Lawrence, June 19. — Despite strike conditions in this city there have been forty-nine permits for new buildings granted at the office of the building inspector. The total cost of the new property is estimated at $596,775. The new six-story Washington mill, a part of the American Woolen Company's chain of mills, permit calls for the expenditure of nearly a half million and the city's proposed swimming pool of $40,000.

EXCHANGE TRUST OUTING JUNE 30

The officers and employes of the Exchange Trust Company will hold their tenth annual outing at Victory cottage at Point Shirley on June 30. Victory cottage is the structure that stood on Boston Common and was used for the sale of Liberty bonds. It was donated by the Exchange Trust Company, and is now used as a Summer camp by the bank employes.

The program of events for the outing includes athletic sports, with suitable prizes. John J. Martin, president of the bank, will act as judge in the sports and he will also award the prizes to the lucky winners.

In the evening the feature will be a shore dinner, followed by a program of speeches. Mr. Martin will be toastmaster and Francis H. Benson will be master of ceremonies for the entire day's card.

PRICES ADVANCE ON N. Y. COTTON FUTURES

New York, June 19.—Cotton prices were firm. July sold at 22.30, up 26; October, 22.20, up 22; November, 22.15, up 28; December, 22.25, up 29.

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND GOSSIP

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

ALL is not well along the Thames! London is aghast and awaits only until it regains its breath to give utterance to British indignation. The Goldwyn company is the cause of it all.

They sent over a company, with Richard Dix and Mae Marsh for the leading roles, to film Hall Caine's "The Christian" on the home grounds. They used the famous Trafalgar Square as a location one night last week, starting at one in the morning. The huge arc lights set up for the occasion hissed and spit blue flames as Dix orated from the Nelson monument.

Although they had arranged for a mob to appear on the scene no one was prepared for what happened. London, particularly the coster-mongering element, didn't like the idea at all and proceeded to mob the place systematically, and thoroughly. The forces from Scotland Yard eventually brought order into the scene at dawn and the director is boasting of the most realistic mob scenes in captivity. Dix is not so enthusiastic.

ANN FORREST CHOSEN

Ann Forrest

SLOWLY but surely the cast of the Fox production of A. S. M. Hutchinson's novel, "If Winter Comes," is being gathered. Ann Forrest is the latest to put her name on the dotted line for this film and is preparing to sail for England within a few days. She will be seen in the role of Nona, Lady Tybar. Percy Marmont, the Mark Sabre of the piece, —and offhand, I cannot think of a better choice—is already abroad with William Fox, the producer, and Harry Millarde, the director.

NAZIMOVA AGAIN

NOW is the time of year when Madame Nazimova announces that she may return to the stage, which is her way of saying that her plans are up in the air. Last time she made the statement, she immediately made arrangements to produce her own pictures. So far, two have been made, "Doll's House," a decided success, and "Salome," not yet released.

Her present announcement is that she will return to the footlights provided she can find a suitable vehicle, an excellent precautionary measure. If she decides to go on making films, then we can suppose she couldn't find a suitable vehicle.

ABOUT "SALOME."

RIGHT HERE is a good opportunity to have a little say about "Salome"—Nazimova's version. This player—and she has an artistic sense far above the average—has made it clear that she is making the production as a distinctly bizarre, colorful bit of artistry. It is not merely the filming of a story, it is to be regarded somewhat in the light of an object d'art.

Considering the length of time the movies have been with us, it seems strange that no one has taken the trouble or had the initiative to do just this thing, use the film as a medium for effects. Judging from the still and photographs sent to this office of the coming Nazimova feature, I should say that she has accomplished her purpose. The settings, costumes and characters are undeniably arresting.

RE, AS IT WERE, "FATTY."

WE DON'T for a moment intend to start another controversy on the Arbuckle case, but here is part of a letter I received from a reader, Bernice Stowell, regarding the item in this column relating to the fact that "Fatty" is trying to get back into pictures. It touches on Hays' position in films.

"Your news item about 'Fatty' Arbuckle," Miss Stowell has written, "was welcomed by an interested public, which finds the complete silence about him most annoying.

"It has only been the 'wild talkers' who have denounced him. Other people have been disgusted at the manner in which his case has been managed. It will be a relief when his case is settled by public opinion and Mr. Hays discovers some means less objectionable and more convincing than bans to clean up the movies."

Our only query is, "What, for instance?"

GENERAL STRIKE AT VERA CRUZ SETTLED

By Universal Service

Mexico City, June 19.—A settlement has been reached in the general strike at Vera Cruz, where all the port activities, public services and general stores were completely paralyzed. Work is being resumed by practically all of the striking unions who went out largely out of sympathy with the general strike at Progreso, in Yucatan.

H. C. L. IN GERMANY 34 TIMES OVER PRE-WAR

Berlin, June 19.—In Germany prices in May rose 10 per cent. over the average for April, and increased in the last three months 4 per cent. The minimum standard of living index is 34 times that of the days before the war.

ALL KINDS OF REPLIES TO EDISON

From Morris P. Beadansky, No. 150 Addison street, Chelsea:

No. 1—I would play and draw two cards. If they gave me a full or four of a kind, I'd shoot the ten. But if I didn't better my hand I'd drop out.

No. 2—Six hours.

No. 3—I would not let the manufacturer know that I saw him, but I would send him an anonymous letter telling him to be more careful how he appears in public with unknown women.

From William G. Silliman, No. 185 Pine street, Burlington, Vt.:

No. 1—See his quarter and raise a quarter; draw one card, leaving him in doubt as to what I have. If I fill or better I have more chances to win; if not, I drop out.

No. 2—Six hours.

RIGHT UP TO HIM.

No. 3—Go right up to the gent as if I had just observed him and did not note he had company, and apologize, as follows: "Parson, sir, I was not aware you had company. If it pleases you to appoint a time and place at your convenience, so we may talk business—eh, what?"

From George L. Gross, 5th Infantry, Camp Devens, Mass.:

No. 1—Call the bet, as I have two cards to draw for fours or a full house. If I better my hand, I bet $9.75. No. 2—Seven hours. No. 3—I'd call the next day for an order and, realizing he had seen me in the restaurant dining with the chorus girl it's nine chances out of ten he'd give me an order.

From Frank Hurley, No. 275 Blackstone street, Fall River:

No. 1—Would call, bet or drop on the worth of my hand. No. 2—Seven hours. No. 3—Would not consider a selling proposition that would force me to use other than straight selling methods.

From N. Shea, No. 250 Richmond street, Providence, R. I.:

No. 1—I would give him what I had left to show me how he did it. No. 2—Ten hours. No. 3—I would figure that he had another date—with me—to buy my goods.

WOULD SELL TO WIFE.

From Thomas Conley, No. 30 Cheney Place, Manchester, N. H.: No. 1—Call a flush. No. 2—Twenty-four hours. No. 3—Sell his wife.

From Daniel J. Walkers, No. 32 Woodbine Terrace, Auburndale: No. 1—Would raise the pot and trust to luck and may the best bluffer win. No. 2—Three hours. No. 3—Would invite him to lunch and talk the matter over with him in a businesslike way.

From Martha Seiniger, No. 193 Chambers Street, Boston: No. 1—I do not play poker. No. 2—Four hours. No. 3—What I should do under the same circumstances I cannot say. However, the right thing to do is to sell the article on its merits.

From C. O. Langlois, No. 1 Pine Place, Burlington, Vt.: No. 1—I'd call him, because I'm not a poker player. If I were I might possibly take longer chances. No. 2—Four hours. No. 3—I'd simply keep on calling on him and try to sell the goods on their merits.

DEPORTED WOMAN HELD UP BY BAGGAGE DELAY

New York, June 19.—Because her baggage from Ellis Island did not arrive on time, Mrs. Anita Motti of Milan, Italy, wife of a banker, was taken from the Reliance a few minutes before the liner sailed. "Before I will go without my baggage I will jump overboard," she exclaimed. She was put ashore despite the order of deportation.

GOVERNOR WILL SPEAK AT WORCESTER FETE

Worcester, June 19.—Governor Channing Cox will be the principal speaker at the midsummer festival of Swedish-speaking people of Worcester County next Saturday at the Crompton & Knowles athletic field here.

AMERICAN FUND IN MUNICH IS EXHAUSTED

Berlin, June 19.—American Church Relief Committee in Munich has appropriated the last of its funds for the care of under-nourished children threatened with tuberculosis.

2,000,000 MORE RODE ON 'L' IN MAY

The average fare paid by passengers on lines of the Boston Elevated is slightly less than nine cents, according to the railway's report for the month of May, made public today. Approximately 2,000,000 more passengers were carried last month than in May, 1921, although the receipts were $47,000 less than during the same month a year ago.

Revenue exceeded cost of service during the past month by $257,800. This brings the reserve fund up to $1,429,666.

Announcement is also made that the special Revere Beach service, now operating on Sundays and holidays via the East Boston tunnel, will be extended to Saturday afternoons and week-day evenings, beginning today.

Plans are under way for the construction of a terminal prepayment area at Harvard avenue, Allston.

G.A.R. HONOR FOR FORMER BOSTON MAN IN WEST

Samuel Bassett, formerly of Boston, and a veteran of the First Massachusetts Infantry in the Civil War, has just celebrated his 48th wedding anniversary at his home in Iron Mountain, Mich., according to dispatches from that city. Mr. Bassett, the only surviving member of the G. A. R. post in Iron Mountain, will be given the post of honor in a big parade which the Upper Peninsular American Legion men will hold there on July 8.

He was married here in 1874, and went to Michigan when that State was undeveloped. He has a brother, Charles Bassett, living in Cambridge.

SEEKS DIVORCE FROM ACTRESS GONE 12 YEARS

New York, June 19.—George M. Gillette, bank clerk, seeking to have his marriage to Florence E. Fritzen Gillette, a one-time vaudeville actress, annulled upon the ground that she disappeared twelve years ago, was granted permission to serve her by publication in two newspapers to be mailed to her at her last known address.

In his complaint Gillette alleges that he met his wife on May 9, 1910, and within a few hours they were married.

43,000-TON LINER STICKS ON WAYS

Danzig, June 19.—The 43,000-ton liner Columbus stuck fast on the ways shortly after launching ceremonies. The vessel is the largest flying the German merchant flag.

LAUD LILLIAN RUSSELL AT KEITH'S

A most impressive service in memory of Lillian Russell (Mrs. Alexander P. Moore) of Pittsburgh was held at B. F. Keith's Theatre at the time when similar services were held in all the leading cities of the United States, through arrangements made by E. F. Albee. All classes paid tribute to this remarkable woman of the American stage. Among those on the platform and in the audience there were many who had benefitted by her kind thoughtfulness.

The Army and Navy was largely represented, among the men being several who had worked with Miss Russell during the local campaign during the war, particularly when she had led in entertaining the soldiers and sailors, and the men from the hospitals at Sunday concerts given at the Boston Theatre at that time.

MARINES ON GUARD.

A detachment of Marines flanked a huge lifelike portrait of Miss Russell placed behind the speakers.

E. Mark Sullivan, corporation counsel, representing Mayor Curley, spoke feelingly of the career of Mrs. Moore before the public and in the home. An orchestra of fifty musicians conducted by Leo Reisman, gave Beethoven's "Gorrolanis," Thomas E. Quinn sang "Face to Face," and the Rev. George P. Bentley offered prayer.

The Meistersingers sang "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," Miss Russell's favorite hymn; after which the Rev. Robert Walker read a eulogy, quoting at length from the eulogy of Rev. Dr. Travers of Pittsburgh, Miss Russell's pastor, who officiated at her funeral. Mrs. Joan Parsons sang "There Is No Death" and the congregation joined the orchestra and Meistersingers in "Rock of Ages."

"TAPS" SOUNDED.

A prayer by Rabbi Samuel Abrams was followed with taps by buglers from the Marine Corps.

Many organizations were represented, including: Mrs. Helen Bishop and Mrs. Laura Bailey, representing the Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion; Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards, Leo Spillaine of the American Legion; Mrs. Elizabeth O'Brien of Hyde Park, Mrs. Irving Grady of Malden, Mrs. Nathaniel Emmon of Hingham, Mrs. Charles S. Roberts of Rockland, Mrs. Harry Ballard of Malden, Mrs. May McKenzie of Cliftondale, Mrs. Margaret Mitchell, soldiers' and sailors' relief; John Ruby, A. Kilby, Mrs. Marion Howard Brazier of the Professional Woman's Club; General Mark L. Hersey, Colonel Marix, Admiral Wiley, Mayor Quinn of Cambridge, and others.

THOMAS F. HUNT IS DEAD AT SEATTLE

Attorney Thomas Francis Hunt, for many years a political writer on Boston newspapers and deputy penal commissioner during the administration of Mayor Quincy, is dead in Seattle, Wash., following an attack of heart disease. Mr. Hunt was born in the North End, and was a political student in his boyhood days of the late Matthew Keany. A few years ago he moved to Seattle, where he practiced law and for a short time did special work for the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. He became a Republican and served as assistant prosecuting attorney. In 1919 he resigned to wage a contest for the Republican nomination for the Attorney-Generalship of the State.

STOREY URGES PASSAGE OF ANTI-LYNCHING BILL

A strike for life and liberty by negroes would be justified, according to Moorfield Storey of Boston, former president of the American Bar Association, speaking before the thirteenth annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People in Newark, N. J. Mr. Storey urged the passage of the Dyer anti-lynching bill now before the United States Senate.

DECLARE EX-PRIEST WHO SLEW BROTHER INSANE

Montreal, June 19.—La Presse says alienists have declared Adelard Delorme insane, and asserted that he should not be tried for the murder of his half-brother, Raoul. The former Catholic priest is alleged to have killed his young half-brother, in order to collect on an insurance policy.

Bolshevik's Bed Bugs

Bedbugs here, bedbugs there,
These little reds seem everywhere.
Of all the Bolshevike we've heard,
These "reds" are dangerous, take my word;
Together let us fight these pests,
Forever drive them from our nests.
We'll do our part, Will you do yours?
For Martin's Powder always cures.

PROPOSALS

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS, State House, Boston, Mass., June 17, 1922.
STATE PRINTING AND BINDING.
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Sealed proposals for the execution of all the printing and binding for the several departments of the government of the Commonwealth, except office stationery and blank books without printed headings and such printing as may be done at any State institution for its departmental use, for a term of two or five years, or both, from the first day of July in the year 1922, will be received at the office of the Attorney General, Room 373, State House, Boston, Mass., until ten o'clock, A. M., on June 29, 1922, at which time and place the bids will be publicly opened and read by the officers designated in chapter 48 of the Resolves of 1922.

All proposals must be made upon the form prepared by the said officers, which form may be obtained on application at the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

A bond satisfactory to the said officers in an amount not less than ten thousand dollars will be required from the party to whom said contract is awarded to secure the faithful performance of the contract.

The right is reserved to reject any and all proposals and also the right to award the contract to such bidder as in the judgment of said officers the interests of the Commonwealth may require.

To Curb Supreme Courts

Healthy Sign That American Federation of Labor Proposes to Take Serious Action

It is a very noteworthy and healthy sign that the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, now being held at Cincinnati, O., proposes to take seriously and to attempt serious measures to curb the increasing political power of the United States Supreme Court and of our State Supreme Courts following the example of the United States Supreme Court in the interpretation of the judicial powers granted to the several courts by the several State Constitutions.

The creation of the balance of powers in our State and national governments which was once thought the genius of our American institutions and the redress of that balance and the means for automatically providing its redress are one of the fundamental political necessities of the day.

The power which our Supreme Courts now exercise wholly by their own interpretation of their powers makes them far more than courts, far different from anything that the founders of our governments intended them to be.

Thus have our Supreme Courts reached a place of authority where they combine all the judicial and the most dangerous part of our political powers. Indeed, the principles which underlie the exercise of some of their alleged powers give them more political power than the so-called political branches of the government. Those which were contemplated by the fathers of the country who created them to be courts composed of from seven to ten rather oldish gentlemen, who had considerably distinguished themselves at the bar as lawyers, not as statesmen, have arrogated to themselves by their own interpretation of their powers greater power than is held anywhere by any political office in the world except that of the absolute autocrat, who scarcely exists today in modern civilization.

But we must remember this, that in a great democracy there is no more necessary power than the judicial power, and no power which ought to be more free; more free from tinkering and jobbing and influencing within its proper sphere of action. In curbing the political power of our American Supreme Courts, we want to prune their powers and not lay the axe at their roots.

More Money for Widows

One Noteworthy Act of Legislature Was Increase Under Workmen's Compensation Law

While the recent session of the Legislature was by no means as progressive as we would liked to have seen it, there was one noteworthy act for which it may take credit to itself. We refer to the act which increased the payments under the Workmen's Compensation Law to widows with families from $4,000 to $6,400.

The unanimity with which this new law was passed was commendable. Certainly the sum of $4,000 was insufficient to maintain the family whose breadwinner had been lost to it by an industrial accident. Living costs had increased while the payments under the law remained stationary. The new sum is a nearer approximation to justice. Having made this beginning, the Legislature can better consider other increases in the payments under the Workmen's Compensation Law when it comes in for another term.

Condition of Bridges

At Least One Hundred in State Unsafe. Should Be Maintained by Commonwealth

The retirement of Colonel Frank B. Kemp from his office of the Commission on Highways calls to mind some of the things which he has urged lately. Chief among them is the condition of our bridges. He says that at least one hundred are unsafe or will be unsafe in a short, indeterminable time and are therefore potentially unsafe now. Some of these bridges are very much too narrow even if they were strong enough.

On the other hand, under our present law, a great deal too large a part of the cost of maintaining these bridges falls upon the small towns, which receive practically no benefit from them because they are highways. For example, he cites one bridge which would cost a quarter of a million dollars to the town to rebuild, yet the total value of the entire property of the town is only $1,000,000.

Of course, there is only one answer to a situation like this. The maintenance of such bridges should be at the expense of the State.

What Caused the War

Russia's New Idea

Copyright, 1922, Star Company.

Those Bolshevik gentlemen from Russia are ingenious as well as bold. They say to the allies: "We don't owe you money, you owe US money, many billions. We fought with you all through the war, and because we formed our own kind of government you turned against us, blockaded us and fought us with your Wrangels, Kolchaks, etc. But we beat you to a standstill, and you quit."

They also tell the surprised allies: "You really owe your victory and your peace to Russia, although Russia was out of the war when the armistice came. It was Bolshevism that spread throughout Germany, the revolutionary spirit that refused any longer to obey the Kaiser. If it had not been for Bolshevism's influence on Grmany, the fight would have gone on and you might have been beaten. Think over these things and treat us fairly; if you don't, we are ready for more fighting."

It is the last part of this statement, of course, that counts, for there are a great many in Europe that are far from being ready for "more fighting."

Many things not usually considered helped along the end of the war. Undoubtedly the Russian's state of mind had its effect on Germany and hastened the armistice.

Undoubtedly, also, the foolishness of the Russian Czar, sending troops to France, marching them from Marseilles up to Paris and letting them see that a republic could be made to work, was a foolish thing for Czars.

Color Line at Harvard

Editor Boston American:

There are some people who take issue with your paper, saying that there is no color line drawn or race prejudice shown at Harvard. Not only is it present at the college proper, but it has spread to the professional schools as well. As an instructor at the Dental School. I know what I am talking about. Take, for an example, the class book, "The Mirror." In this class book the students' names are arranged alphabetically. In the "Mirror" of the class of 1918 all the names are arranged in this order until the name of Sullivan, who was placed last of all for the simple reason that he was colored. If this isn't showing prejudice, I don't know what is. Probably the dean of the school can explain this. H. S.

Lillian Russell

Editor Boston American:

While columns have been written about the untimely death of Lillian Russell, few have commented on some of her distinguishing characteristics, entirely apart from her beauty of features and her stage career. An unthinking public did not take her seriously at all, but dwelt chiefly on her matrimonial tangles. As a matter of fact, no breath of scandal was in any way attached to her in these ventures, and her marriage a few years ago to Mr. Alexander Moore was ideal in all ways. Hers was the beauty of character, mind and soul and she radiated good cheer and loveliness. No person ever heard Lillian Russell say an unkind word of her fellow-creatures, and her sympathies and generosity may never be fully known. Lillian Russell was a member of the Professional Women's Club and was the first of her profession to be tendered a reception by that club thirteen years ago.

Not Matter of Faith

Editor Boston American:

Apropos of a letter in the Boston American on the Jewish prolem in Harvard, signed by a certain D. M. D. Dadkin, he asserted the Jews were being discriminated against on account of their faith, but would not be disturbed long, as they were opulent enough to soon have a university of their own in every city of this country. In the first place it isn't a question of faith, as Harvard is not very finicky on such things, but the Jewish faith isn't such a momentous asset when only 2 per cent. of all the Jews in New York city, 1,500,000, attend the synagogue, and there are almost as many Jeys in New York as in the rest of the United States. Now, if the Jews have that racial pride and independence which they profess to have, why have they not built a college of their own long ago before they were snubbed as undesirables at Harvard. Catholics, less prosperous than they, did it years ago. My opinion is it isn't one of faith or jealousy either, but is the commercial and social prestige the Jews will gain by intermingling in an academic life with son's of wealthy scions, and basking in all the worldly benefit that accrue from such an elite and aristocratic body. I assert a Jew's pride is only vulnerable where the wound is of a mercenary, financial nature.

A Dangerous Practice

Editor Boston American:

Many children lose their lives every year from tetanus or lockjaw caused by stepping on the points of nails thoughtlessly left pretruding from boards which are thrown down and left where bare-foot children or children with worn-thin shoe soles can step on them. It only takes a few minutes to take the nails out of the boards. Better be safe than sorry. A. L. POTTER.

PEARLS TO BE STRUNG FOR THE GLORY OF ALL

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

HAVE you ever read a book by H. G. Wells, called "The Reasearch Magnificent?"

It was written too long ago, as far as concerns fashions in books, to constitute this query as a free advertisement for one of the brain children of this prolific author.

Anyhow, this reference is designed to emphasize the theme of that thought-provoking volume. Evidently, Wells meant to suggest the desirability of a magnificent, worldwide search for those fine souls who, because of their intrinsic excellence, ought to dominate mankind.

The present writer has to write quite personally on this theme, because it has long been one of his pet thoughts, and it involves his interpretation of the innermost meaning of democracy.

More of that further along.

Many years ago, the writer was visited by a learned Japanese, who was then representing the Imperial University of Tokio at Harvard. The professor was lecturing on Buddhism, of which he was a devotee.

We talked freely, each right out of the heart and mind of us. After several hours of soulful conversation we found that we were actually speaking the same spirit-speech.

As Kipling has intimated, though East is East and West is West—as far as concerns the average of orientals and occidentals—when two men come together who fairly embody the culture of both civilizations, then surely the twain shall meet!

The significance of such an experience is in its illustration of the essential identity of the human race.

In this finer sense, it is deeply true that human beings at their best are the same the world over.

To return to the Wells suggestion. His idea is that, scattered here and there—quite irrespective of race, religion, country, or station—are men so splendid and so plainly related in spirit as to constitute an aristocratic brotherhood.

It is the function of these choice souls in effect to rule their fellowmen.

They are, as it were, the pearls of the human family, to be strung for the beauty of adornment and the glory of service of all.

Do not be alarmed, dear reader. This does not spell treason to democracy. On the contrary, this is its highest expression.

For it is the function of democracy to develop aristocracy. That is to say, it must be the continuous result of democracy to bring the best, like cream, to the top.

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

IF born today you should certainly seek the environment in which you feel free, as you will never thrive in adverse circumstances. You are a person of sensitive feelings and you need to be delicately adjusted to your surroundings.

The signs of today are uncertain until sunset, and then the influences are of good portent for the signing of documents.

You will have an active and progressive year in business involving both travel and change. Do not make any permanent investments.

A child born today will be industrious and impressionable with a tendency to diseases of the lungs.

SEEN AND HEARD

By Lambert and Daily

NOW that vacation time is here, you may be interested to know where some of the big guns go in search of rest and recreation. GOVERNOR COX will put in his spare time at Wellfleet on the Cape. You will find him ploughing through the broad Atlantic any pleasant afternoon.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL ALLEN, who hopes to jostle Mr. Cox out of the Governor's chair, will make week-end trips to South Yarmouth. Tennis and yachting are among his favorite recreations.

SECRETARY OF STATE FREDERIC W. COOK is already commuting from his Summer place at Plymouth, where he may be found afternoons and holidays on the nearest golf course. Page any golf course for PRESIDENT FRANK G. ALLEN of the Senate. He is a member of all of them.

"It is about time that Dorchester sent a representative to Congress," said SENATOR JOHN J. CAREY of Dorchester, when on a visit to City Hall. The Senator is a candidate for Congress from the Twelfth District, the seat which is now held by CONGRESSMAN JAMES A. GALLIVAN of South Boston. "The present incumbent," continued Carey, "has had more terms than any other man since 1872. The 1919 Legislature, of which I was a member, gave the war veterans more of a bonus than any Congress has done." Looks like a good fight is brewing in the old Twelfth.

Anybody want a judgeship? Speak up. GOVERNOR COX has three of them to hand out, all in the Superior Court. The best guessers allow that one will go to SENATOR LEONARD F. HARDY of Huntington.

MAYOR CURLEY is not overlooking a bet when it comes to having Boston represented at conventions, conferences and meetings of important associations and committees. So interested is he in city planning, which is a big question in Boston's congested sections, the Mayor, MISS MARY A. BARR, JOHN J. WALSH, MISS E. M. HERLIHY of the City Planning Board and HENRY L. WHITNEY of the Street Laying-out Department are attending the annual meeting of the National Conference on City Planning in Springfield yesterday and today.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON SPIRITISM AND SCIENCE

By Garrett P. Serviss

I AM asked by a number of readers to express again an opinion on the "spiritualistic" or "spiritistic" phenomena that all the world is hearing and reading so much about at the present time. One man asks: "Why can't you see the truth as well as the French astronomer Flammarion?"

To this I can only reply: M. Flammarion is doubtless more gifted than I am. Sometimes the spectacles that one looks through make a great difference in the appearance of the things looked at—and the mind (as well as the eye) often looks through spectacles of various colors. In fact, it is very difficult to get mental spectacles without some color in them.

In this matter of spiritism I should say that colored spectacles play a predominant part. The most deceptive of such distorters of intellectual vision might be named "theory lenses." Instead of contenting themselves with accumulating facts and the results of repeated and critical observation until they have got together a mass of unprejudiced and thoroughly digested information that Lord Bacon himself would have to acknowledge as sufficient to form conclusions upon, so-called "scientific" leaders of the spiritist movement insist on grouping every phenomenon that they observe, in support of a ready-made theory, and that the very theory they profess to have set out to test.

It is a most curious exhibition to be made by men once so highly placed in the public mind as some of those now trying to persuade us that we are surrounded by the disembodied spirits of the dead, talking and singing ("in joyous baritone voices," some of them!) to their former friends and relatives who still remain in the trammels of flesh and bones.

I have heard that "baritone voice" (or another like it) myself.

But the really objectionable thing is that they proclaim that they have "scientific proof" of the disembodied spirit theory, when the fact is that the only proof they have—if we admit that they have any—is the proof of their experiencing or witnessing things which they are unable to account for except by prematurely granting the very hypothesis that they were going to test.

I do not believe that the most juvenile "doctor of philosophy" (Ph. D.) would for an instant grant that there is the slightest scientific validity in the methods pursued by these hearers of banal messages, seers of dead faces and experimenters with "ectoplasm"; for every holder of that certificate of earnest and concentrated work done has at least learned what scientific method means.

He has learned that to start out to investigate a subject which is already covered by a more than dubious theory, and after having accumulated a number of puzzling, largely disconnected, often contradictory, quite frequently absurd, and upon the whole manifestly fragmentary and insufficient results of observation, suddenly to drop all the scientific skepticism, and accept the original dubious theory, without having added an iota of new evidence in its favor, would be a proceeding which would quickly withdraw him from the firing line of science.

The truth is that there are several different kinds of puzzling phenomena reported by investigators (or quasi-investigators) in this obscure field. But you will find them mixed all together in a farrago of skilfully presented marvels, calculated to astonish and bewilder audiences untrained in critical observation, or in logical thinking on subjects outside of their daily occupations.

—Medbury Says—

Don't Kick if You Can't Understand the Street Car Conductors.

The street car companies are rapidly improving their service. While they're not installing any more seats, they're putting in several additional straps in each car.

The street car company has a heart, and to prove it they make their straps out of sole leather.

They believe in that old saying, "The public be hanged!"

Sometimes you see two or three people grabbing the same strap. In order to give everybody a fair chance they are greasing the straps.

The passenger with the roughest hand wins.

Several patrons have complained about missing so many cars lately. The traction company is remedying this by running fewer cars.

A man has no kick coming when he misses a car. The only time he has real cause for complaint is when he catches one.

You can't be uncomfortable when you're standing on the corner.

The officials of the traction companies are doing all they can to relieve the congestion. They are giving up their seats in the street cars and riding in limousines.

A lot of people are kicking about being carried two or three blocks past their street. The street car company thinks they are doing you a favor when they do this as long as they don't charge you anything extra.

Of course most passengers can't understand the conductor when he calls out the name of a street. How can you expect to understand him when he doesn't know himself what he's saying.

When he gets to a corner he knows it's time to open his mouth and you've got to listen to whatever comes out.

Maybe he doesn't speak clearly, but for a nickel or a dime you can't expect to get a professor of English.

While every car is usually crowded, most men are gentlemen and will always get up and give their seat to a lady if she's good-looking.

A lot of guys are only polite when they're ready to get off.

The street car companies are trying to find a way to handle the big crowds around five-thirty and six o'clock in the evening. This congestion could be done away with if people would go home from work in the middle of the afternoon.
